BORAH DECIDES TO ENTER OHIO G. O. P. PRIMARY

Agrees to 'Anything Necessary.'

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 30.—[Special.]—The candidacy of Senator William E. Borah for the Republican nomination for President assumed larger proportions today with the announcement that he is willing to enter the presidential primary in Ohio and that Borah for President organizations are being formed in Minnesota and Colorado.

Previously the senator has expressly authorized a canvass for Borah delegates in Wisconsin and given tacit consent to his friends in Illinois to enter his name in the presidential preference primary in that state. The liberal faction of the party has espoused his cause in New York and the senator will inaugurate his campaign in the east with a speech in Brooklyn Jan. 28.

Sees Ohio Leaders.

The announcement with regard to Ohio came at the close of a two hour conference between Mr. Borah and three Ohio Republican leaders — former State Senator Roscoe Conkling McCulloch, Daniel E. Morgan, former city manager of Cleveland, and Julius Cohen, Cleveland attorney. At the close of the conference Mr. McCulloch issued the following statement:

"We think we can say with certainty that Senator Borah will have delegates in the national convention from Ohio.

"Senator Borah has more strength by far with the voters in Ohio than any other candidate whose name has been mentioned. We believe it nothing less than good politics to have that sentiment represented in the national convention. It is our purpose to see that it is represented.

"We are not prepared without further consultation with friends at home to state in detail our program.

"If to accomplish this purpose it will be deemed necessary for Senator Borah to enter the Ohio primary he will so enter. The decisions to this matter will be reached at an early date."

Willing to Make Speeches.

Senator Borah said that he had "agreed to do whatever is necessary to put the program through."

"I won't make any speeches in Ohio or elsewhere unless absolutely necessary because of the necessity of staying in Washington during the session of congress," the senator added. "But if asked by my friends to do so I will undertake to make speeches if convenient. So far I have only asked for the support of liberal delegates."

"What is a liberal delegate?" he was asked.

"How far on the other side?"

Need Not Enter Formally.

Mr. McCulloch explained that under the Ohio primary law delegates instructed for Borah can be elected without the senator formally entering his name in the contest. To have his name on the ballot, however, for the expression of preference by the voters it would be necessary for him to declare himself a candidate in writing. It is on this latter step that he is undecided.

The Borah contingent is extremely confident of success in Ohio. The elder La Follette carried Cleveland in 1924. Recently the Republican state committee of Ohio took an unprecedented step when it declared against the renomination of Mr. Hoover.

This was a blow to former Postmaster General Walter Brown, who had been maneuvering to round up an Ohio delegation favorable to the former President. The Ohio conservatives who will fight Borah to the last ditch indicated some time ago that they would seek an uninstructed delegation nominally committed to Congressman Chester Bolton as a favorite son.

NEW APPOINTEE OF ROOSEVELT STIRS BAR'S IRE

Hardy in Mortgage Scandal; Held Unfit.

New York, Dec. 30.—[Special.]—The fitness of Lamar Hardy for the post of United States attorney for the southern district of New York, to which he recently was appointed by President Roosevelt, will be challenged before a special meeting of the 1,500 members of the association of the bar of the city of New York next Thursday evening.

Notices of the special meeting were sent out today. At the same time an adverse report on Hardy's qualifications, which the committee on the judiciary will submit for action at the meeting, was made available to members who called in person and signed receipts for the document.

Bar association members who have read the report expressed the belief that it would militate against Hardy when his nomination comes before the United States senate for confirmation on Friday.

Fitness Is Questioned.

They further disclosed that questions as to Hardy's fitness were based largely on the findings of Moreland Act Commissioner George W. Alger and A. J. Alprin, who conducted an investigation for the insurance superintendent, as to the conduct and management of the now defunct State Title and Mortgage company and affiliated companies. Hardy was attorney for and an incorporator of that company and was connected with it from 1927 to 1931. During the same period he was chairman of its executive committee.

The report of the judiciary committee also points out, it was disclosed by some of those who have obtained copies, that the company and its affiliates paid Hardy some $165,000 in fees for his legal services.

Illegal Practices Revealed.

In his report to Gov. Herbert Lehman on Oct. 8, 1934, Moreland Commissioner Alger condemned many of the practices of the State Title and Mortgage company.

The commission was appointed by the governor under authority of the Moreland act, which provides for such inquiries when violations of state laws are suspected, Alger's report said.

The examiner found, as of Dec. 31, 1930, that the company had a loan to its affiliate, Realty Foundation, Inc., in excess of $1,500,000 which loan he reported as a violation of subdivision 3 [A], section 16, of the law. A year later the company's annual statement submitted to the department showed that the loan had been increased to over $2,000,000. The annual statement for the year 1932 showed that the loan had been increased to $2,340,000.

Bank Transactions Assailed.

"State Title and Mortgage company in 1929 purchased a bank which was operated thereafter as a wholly owned subsidiary under the name of State Banking company.

"This bank was used by the Mortgage company so that when the Mortgage company required cash, it would sell mortgages to State Banking company under a repurchase agreement. The mortgages were for sale to the public by the mortgage company, and when sold would be repurchased from the bank.

"The State Title and Mortgage company [which was a subsidiary of National American company] caused its State Banking company to open an account with the Bank of United States in November, 1930, a few weeks before the Bank of United States was taken over by the banking department.

Penal Code Violated.

"This inactive deposit of $150,000 appears to have been maintained in violation of section 290 of the penal law in that it has the earmarks of having been used to influence the Bank of United States to lend a substantial sum of money to one of the other subsidiaries of the National American company."

A number of the directors of the company have been indicted in connection with the conduct of the company; its president, John A. Dilliard, has been convicted. It is understood that the report of the committee on the judiciary challenges Hardy's qualifications as United States attorney to prosecute the case against the State Title and Mortgage company and four of its officers who have been indicted by the federal court for the southern district of New York.

LOST, TRAM PILOT PUTS OFF 55 AND CALLS IT A DAY

Minneapolis, Minn., Dec. 30.—(AP)—Lost for 30 minutes in the unfamiliar maze of tracks in the downtown district, the operator of a one man street car tonight admitted defeat and discharged fifty-five passengers to help themselves.

It was shortly after 5:30 p. m. when he got off the route he should have followed. He couldn't seem to find his way back. The passengers finally asked where he was taking them.

"Doggone if I know," he said. "I'm lost. Let's call it a day."

Then the operator began a meandering ride which took in part of North Minneapolis, Washington avenue, a ride across a Mississippi river bridge, and finally he came to the east side car barns.

They weren't the barns he was seeking, but he didn't care. He turned in.

Doctors Claim Two Cures for Angina Heart

St. Louis, Mo., Dec. 30.—(AP)—Instantaneous relief for the pain of angina pectoris and complete cure for most sufferers from the disease was claimed today by Dr. John C. Krantz Jr. of the University of Maryland in a report which he read to the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

The cure, he said, is a drug called trichlorethylene, one cubic centimeter of which is snuffed into the nose when the pains and heart compression of angina pectoris begin. It gives relief within one second.

Used to date on 20 human patients Dr. Krantz said it had given permanent relief to 18 of them. He explained that these 18 were apparently completely cured with no other treatment. The other two cases failed to benefit, he said.

Professor at Maryland.

Dr. Krantz is professor of pharmacy in the medical college of the University of Maryland.

Joining him in the report were C. Jeleff Carr, Ruth Musser, and William Harne of the University of Maryland.

The treatment, Dr. Krantz said, is still somewhat mysterious in its mechanism, but it apparently acts to clear obstructions in the coronary blood vessels which feed the heart. In angina pectoris, he explained, these coronary vessels "lose tone" and decrease the supply of oxygen being carried to the heart in blood pumped to it.

Dr. James C. Munch of the Sharpe & Dohme company, Philadelphia, Pa., announced in an interview at the meeting that he had also obtained highly favorable results in the treatment of angina pectoris and high blood pressure with a substance taken from the pancreas, a gland in the abdomen.

Suspect It's a Hormone.

Suspected of being a hormone, it is extracted from the pancreas after the insulin, another hormone used in the treatment of diabetes, is removed, he explained.

To date 500 human cases of angina pectoris have been treated with the substance, Dr. Munch added, and the attacks have been stopped in 85 per cent of them. In about half of the cures the attacks never recurred, he added, and no harmful effects were felt by the patients who were not relieved.

According to statistics of the Metropolitan Life Insurance company the occurrence of angina pectoris in the United States has been growing rapidly. In 1915 the death rate was only 15 persons per 100,000 population. In 1930 the rate had climbed to 80, and by 1935 it reached 100. It is more frequent among men than among women.

ASKS U. S. TO BUILD CHEAP RENT HOMES FOR CONGRESSMEN

Washington, D. C., Dec. 30.—(AP)—Angered at what he called "almost prohibitive" rentals in Washington, Representative Deen [Dem., Ga.] proposed tonight that the government undertake a slums clearance project here and build houses for members of congress, at "reasonable" charges.

The Georgian, after an all day search, paid $125 as the first month's rent for quarters he said were less desirable than his home in Alma, Ga., which he has just rented at $15 a month furnished.

"Members of congress have no harder problems to solve," Deen stated, "than those of securing living quarters in Washington. Everywhere I have gone to look for a house or an apartment I am questioned: 'Do you have any children?' I notice that dogs are plentiful in all apartments but children are not wanted."

DEMOCRAT SEEKS TO CLOSE MAILS ON STRAW VOTES

Washington, D. C., Dec. 30.—(AP)—Democratic disapproval of current straw votes was emphasized today when Representative Walter M. Pierce [Dem., Ore.] moved to have the ballots barred from the mails.

Postmaster General Farley recently threatened severe "disciplinary action" against postal employes with an "unwarranted curiosity" in ballots which pass through their hands.

Pierce, announcing he would take up the question not only with Farley but also with the Democratic national committee, of which Farley is chairman, asserted his belief that Republicans were manipulating "a current national poll which shows a trend away from President Roosevelt."

3 Lindberghs Await Chance to Slip Ashore

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Dec. 31.—[Tuesday.]—With the American Importer, swinging against heavy waves in the darkness just outside the bar of the Mersey river, Liverpool, last night, and due to dock at 6:30 a. m. today [12:30 a. m. Chicago time], it was expected that Col. Charles A. Lindbergh would tear the veil of secrecy from his movements when he lands with his wife and their son Jon. A tug was standing by at 5 a. m. to dock the Importer, whose only passengers are the Lindberghs.

Authorities, it was learned, advised Lindbergh by wireless that he had best meet the small army of newspaper men and cameramen and make a statement explaining his position, particularly concerning his reputed flight from America to escape the threats of kidnapers.

Liverpool officials said they would try to prevail on Lindbergh to grant newspaper men and photographers ten minutes as soon as he debarked on the promise they would all let him alone afterward.

Worst Weather of Winter.

It is expected the Lindberghs will leave for the south by rail or road immediately upon landing, but all efforts have been unable to discover any reservations.

A fierce gale whipped the Irish sea as the American Importer rounded Holyhead yesterday and made its way toward the Mersey river. The landing was expected to take place in the worst weather England has experienced this winter.

For the Lindbergh's arrival a veritable regiment of British and American newspaper men, photographers, police, and shipping officials and consular officers was mobilized both in Liverpool and in ports as far north as Carlisle and Glasgow, for until the Lindberghs actually come down the gangplank, newsmen were taking no chances. A score of reporters and cameramen from the continent swelled their ranks last night.

Admit Trio on Board.

One news agency hired three tugs and was patrolling the waters about the mouth of the Mersey river, while several London newspapers had airplanes rented and ready in front of a hangar at the airport from early yesterday morning at $25 an hour, indicating that the Lindberghs had little chance of escaping a tidal wave of publicity in the British and continental press.

The vigil was somewhat relaxed last night when consular and shipping officials for the first time definitly admitted the Lindberghs were on board. C. G. Roper, Liverpool manager of the United States Lines, revealed the Importer was to enter Gladstone dock on the morning tide. He denied the Lindberghs would land by tender, though other officials said it would be possible for the Lindberghs to get off farther up at Princess Landing stage. Liverpool police said they would not permit tugs to approach the boat. They were stopping cars and trucks half a mile from the dock.

Announce Landing Time.

"Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh and their son definitly are on board," said Philip Holland, American consul general at Liverpool, in the first official admission.

"They will disembark at 8 o'clock in the morning, but I have no idea what their plans are after their arrival.

"A Liverpool business man has offered to place his home at their disposal, but I am assured it is not necessary to accept his offer. At least forty offers of hospitality have

A suspect, halted last night by gunfire as he fled from detectives raiding his home, brought police a step nearer identification of the assassins of State Representative Albert J. Prignano. The suspect, Angelo Lazzia, fell and wrenched his knee as a police bullet knocked his hat off. He was caught outside his home at 4764 Cornelia avenue.

Lazzia, a second-hand auto dealer and a friend of Sam Lapicola, who is being sought as the owner of the automobile used by the Prignano killers, has a brief police record. Files at the bureau of identification show that he was arrested at Trinidad, Colo., as the operator of a moonshine still. In the same year he was seized by the police of Syracuse, N. Y. The disposition of the cases was not disclosed.

Denies Ever Being Arrested.

Although his finger prints are on file, Lazzia denied that he had ever been in the hands of the police. He professed to know nothing of the present whereabouts of Lapicola, nor of a young woman believed to be Lapicola's sweetheart, for whom police squads were searching.

Several other persons were held for questioning. One is Michael Virusso, 45 years old, 1418 South 51st court, nominal owner of a car found in Lazzia's possession. He declared that he had turned the vehicle over to the dealer for sale. Vincent Cutaia, 60 years old, 827 Milton avenue, and five other members of his household, all cousins of Lapicola, were seized in the hope they would disclose where he could be found. They denied they could tell.

Seize Visitor to Home.

Early today watching squads arrested Samuel Guardina, 35 years old, 4457 Nevada street, when he called at the Cornelia avenue residence of Lazzia. He announced immediately that he had gone there to see Lapicola. When the police asked what he wanted to see the fugitive about he replied: "I'd like to sell him some fruit."

The unusual hour for such a sale, as well as the important linking of Lazzia and Lapicola as close associates, impelled the investigators to lock him up and hold him as a more important witness than any of the others, except Lazzia.

The capture of Lazzia came about because the assassins abandoned their automobile after they had shot Prignano to death in a simulated holdup Sunday night on the doorstep of his home at 722 Bunker street. It is this car on which the police are relying to lead them to Lapicola and through him to the slayers.

Lapicola Holds Car Title.

The certificate of title for the automobile was in the name of Lapicola, although the license plate was listed in the name of Morris Schattell, 1933 South Homan avenue. This circumstance, which confused police for a time, was evidently due to a mistake of clerks in the branch office of the secretary of state at 120 South Ashland boulevard, who gave Lapicola and Schattell each other's plates when the two men paid their license fees on Sept. 19.

Lapicola had purchased the car, paying cash, on the previous day, at the C. & M. Auto Sales company, an open air salesroom for second hand cars at 3605 North Cicero avenue. Lazzia is a part owner of that concern. He introduced Lapicola to Dan Mulcahy, the salesman who sold the car.

Bullet Halts Fugitive.

When Supervising Police Captain John Stege learned of the sale last night, he sent Policemen John Freed and Henry Goebel to Lazzia's home. When they entered Lazzia jammed on his hat and fled by the back door. The policemen dashed after him and opened fire. A bullet went through the fugitive's hat, missing his head by a fraction of an inch.

Spurred on by the shots, Lazzia jumped over a stair rail to a courtway below. He wrenched his knee in this fall and was seized by the policemen. In his home Freed and Goebel found a shotgun, a rifle, and a revolver with a quantity of ammunition.

Lazzia was then hurried to the Maxwell street police station

ing were Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Paquet, operators of a rooming house at 1942 Lincoln avenue, and their tenants, a dozen in number. It was this address which Lapicola gave in his state vehicle license application.

He was not known at the place, but Capt. John Norton of the Maxwell street police reasoned that someone there must have received the certificate of title issued with the license. Although plates are given to the motorist when he pays his license fee, the certificate is always sent by mail.

From Mrs. Paquet it was learned that a young woman had occupied a single light housekeeping room in the place for several months. Frequently Mrs. Paquet found two coffee cups on the table when she cleaned the room after the girl had gone to work, leading her to suspect that her tenant had been entertaining a guest overnight.

Girl Visits Prignano Home.

The young woman left the rooming house, saying that she would not return, at 3:30 o'clock Sunday afternoon. A short time later a man and a girl of somewhat similar description appeared at the Prignano home and asked for the politician, who at that time was not there.

This combination of circumstances led the police to suspect that the girl from the rooming house was Lapicola's sweetheart, had received the certificate of title which he had had mailed to the Lincoln avenue address, and may have accompanied one of the killers on the scouting trip which preceded the murder.

Mrs. Paquet and her roomers were released after they had given their information to the police.

Lazzia's Prosperity a Puzzle.

Lazzia's apparent prosperity became a puzzle to the police after they learned he had sold only two second-hand cars in a month. His apartment, they said, was well furnished, his clothing was of expensive make, and a bankbook in his possession showed he had $1,500 on deposit.

Although he declared he had made money in a fruit business and also that he shared in profits from all sales made by the C. & M. company, the investigators figured that such activities were not enough to support his living standards.

While police were searching for the actual assassins, politicians gave a credible explanation of the motives for the killing of Prignano, who in addition to being a state representative of the 17th senatorial district was Democratic committeeman of the 20th ward, the "bloody 20th."

Fundamentally, Prignano was regarded as another victim of the gangster feuds which constitute politics in the "bloody 20th." More particularly, it was said, he lost his life because Ald. William V. Pacelli, the real boss of the ward, underwent a surgical operation for the removal of a kidney two months ago.

Reviving Power of Nitti.

According to one police theory of the crime, it was the serious illness of the alderman, now recuperating in Florida, which gave Prignano a chance to "spread out" faster than his real power justified, and brought down on him the vengeance of his opponents in ward politics.

Back of this story lies a study in the personalities of the two men, Pacelli and Prignano, and beyond that the shadow of the Capone gang, never completely wiped out by the federal government's income tax drive and today reputed to be a reviving power in politics and racketeering under the supposed guidance of Frank Nitti, the shrewd cousin of Al Capone.

Capt. Norton and Supervising Captain Stege denied that they had ordered the arrest of Nitti. By coincidence or design Nitti was in Florida. But his name was frequently mentioned in the discussion of the killing.

Prignano was at times a friend of Capone. He appeared publicly with the gangster before Capone went to prison for income tax evasion. So did State Senator Dan Serritella and others of the so-called "Italian bloc" in the legislature. But there is evidence that on other occasions Prignano quaked at the name of the gang leader.

Election Fright Is Reported.

One of those occasions, according to report, was in the aldermanic election of 1929. Pacelli defeated Prignano, who was seeking reëlection as the alderman of the Twentieth ward. On the night before the election Prignano, a relative of Pacelli, appealed for a police guard. On election day, it is reported, he set out to cast his own vote, changed his mind, and hurried back to the safety of his home.

Pacelli has risen to leadership of the Italian politicians, it was learned. Although he is a Republican, he has coöperated closely with the Democratic city and state administrations and has received his share of patronage. When Prignano made a political comeback in 1934 and was elected Democratic ward committeeman and state representative, it was reputedly by the sufferance of Pacelli.

Prignano Branches Out.

Then two months ago Pacelli fell seriously ill and the reins of fear were lifted from Prignano. He became increasingly active in the ward. He was rebuffed by Capt. Norton, a veteran who is scheduled for retirement at midnight tonight under a bill introduced in the legislature by Prignano, when he attempted to interfere in police affairs.

But in other affairs Prignano was more successful for a time. As one commentator phrased it, "his hat got too small."

In the process of his expansion he trod on a number of toes, including, it is said, those of Nitti. Nitti is reported to have sent him word that it would be healthier for him if he did not seek reëlection as ward committeeman. Prignano defied him. The bullets fired Sunday night settled the question of his candidacy.

Coroner's Inquest Opened.

Prignano's body lay yesterday in an undertaking parlor at 942 Taylor street. The coroner's inquest which opened there in the morning was the perfunctory affair usual to such killings.

James Prignano, a brother of the slain politician, set a new high in the professions of ignorance of possible motives for killings which it is customary for relatives to make at such hearings. Not only was he unaware that his brother had any enemies, he testified, but he said that he knew nothing of the killing until he read of it in newspapers yesterday morning.

The only other inquest witness was the slain Prignano's chauffeur, Victor Galanti, who retold the story of the murder which he gave police Sunday night. Prignano, his wife, Jean, who is a former radio entertainer; their adopted son, 9 years old, and Mrs. Prignano's mother, Mrs. Julia Beardmore, had had dinner with Mrs. Beardmore's son, Joseph, at 2743 Hampden court.

Chauffeur's Story of Killing.

About 10 p. m. Galanti drove them to the Prignano home, a luxuriously fitted suite above the office which Prignano maintained on Bunker street, in the midst of one of Chicago's dreariest slums. Two men were strolling along the sidewalk, young and well dressed, Galanti said.

The chauffeur got out of the Prignano automobile and walked around the front of the car to open the rear door for the two women and the boy. Prignano climbed out of the front seat. The two gunmen approached and said, "This is a stickup."

Prignano raised his hands. His wife begged him not to make trouble, Galanti said. One of the gunmen covered Galanti, the women and the boy. Then, it appeared, Prignano made his last gamble for life, and lost it through the slow wits of his chauffeur.

Prignano's Last Ruse Fails.

Galanti had a revolver in a side pocket of the automobile. Prignano knew this. The gunmen had motioned the women and the boy to the stairway leading to the second floor apartment.

"Get the luggage out," Prignano told Galanti.

Galanti obeyed him, too literally. He took a traveling bag and a package out of the automobile and didn't touch the revolver. He followed the women and the boy up the stairs. Prignano turned to follow them also, and met his death in the entry of the building.

The first shot knocked him down. The killers poured five more bullets into his body.

In flight the killers were joined by a third man, Galanti said. The chauffeur ran back to the Prignano automobile and got out the revolver, firing at the assassins as they plied into their car parked about 150 feet away. They were unable to start the car and fled again on foot, finally eluding Galanti.

PARDONS COURT DISCUSSES PLEA OF HAUPTMANN

Trenton, N. J., Dec. 30.—[Special.]—During a meeting that lasted more than two hours the court of pardons informally discussed Bruno Richard Hauptmann's plea for clemency today and then adjourned without setting a date for a formal hearing. While the man convicted of the murder of Charles A. Lindbergh Jr. waited in his cell a few miles away, the court—his last resort—authorized Governor Harold Hoffman to set a date for the condemned man's hearing.

After the session it appeared unlikely that Hauptmann would be asked to testify.

Members of the court did not discuss the case after the meeting adjourned, but Albert B. Hermann, clerk, said Hauptmann's plea had been discussed "informally." The governor would not disclose his plans.

The governor reiterated that he did not intend to grant a reprieve to Hauptmann saying he had the impression he had no power because the law limited such reprieves to a ninety-day period following conviction.

SMOKE VIOLATOR FINED.

David Proyus, owner of a rooming house at 1108 North Dearborn street, was fined $100 yesterday by Municipal Judge Erwin J. Hasten on a charge of violating the city smoke ordinance.

Held in Lincoln Park

A memorial service for John Peter Altgeld, governor of Illinois from 1893 to 1897, was held at noon yesterday before the Altgeld statue at Diversey parkway and West drive in Lincoln park. The ceremonies, held annually on the anniversary of Altgeld's birth, were conducted under the auspices of the Altgeld society of De Paul university. Altgeld was born Dec. 30, 1847, in Germany. He was the first Democrat to hold the office of governor in Illinois after the civil war. He died on March 12, 1902.

An official of the shipping line said: "No relatives of the Lindberghs are in Liverpool at present, and we know of no friends who are likely to meet the vessel. The arrival of the ship will be treated as a special occasion and no passes will be issued allowing people to go aboard."

Police authorities had London and Liverpool plain clothes men and bobbies on the dock to form a protective cordon against throngs of people whose curiosity and interest were whetted to a high pitch.

British Press Angry.

The British press, which has printed floods of pictures, editorial essays and news about the Lindberghs since last week, is demanding that he meet the press halfway.

The News-Chronicle declares: "Lindbergh himself is so celebrated a person and the flight of his family from America has been so sensational that it is idle to suppose his arrival in this country could fail to excite the curiosity both of the public and the press.

"It is not an illegitimate curiosity. A public man cannot claim his movements and intentions are no concern of anybody but himself, and when they are of some dramatic character, so as to set two continents talking, it is idle to expect the press of the world will not seek to chronicle the developments of the drama.

"If Lindbergh is wise he will satisfy at once by a frank and full statement the public desire to know his immediate intentions. Mystification will merely serve to sharpen curiosity. Not nearly so much attention would have been attracted to his arrival if it had been less shrouded in mystery which has excited, instead of allaying, general curiosity. That done, Lindbergh may rely upon it he is very unlikely in this country to be pestered with publicity which he does not desire."

"Strangest Voyage."

The Daily Mirror called the Lindbergh journey "the strangest secret voyage ever made across the Atlantic."

"If it were not tragic," the paper said, "there would be something farcical in the plight of these persecuted people for whom hign achievement and excessive publicity meant little but grief.

The newspaper urged the British people to leave the Lindberghs alone.

Nurse Seeks Peace.

GLASGOW, Scotland, Dec. 30.—(AP)—Betty Gow, former nurse of the murdered Charles A. Lindbergh Jr., said today she had been asked to reënter the Lindberghs' service, but said she prefers her quiet life in a dress shop here.

"I want to forget all about the past," she explained.

Miss Gow said that Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh had asked her to come to work for them again, and added:

"But I don't think I'll go. All I want to do now is to be allowed to live a normal life."

The former maid has been living quietly in Glasgow since the first Lindbergh baby was kidnaped and slain nearly four years ago but for one interruption—when she returned to America to be a key witness in the trial of Bruno Richard Hauptmann.

She was interviewed on the top deck of a street car as she rode to work at the dress shop.

"The Lindberghs were the most kindly and considerate employers one could ask, but I want to forget all about the past," she asserted.

"I don't want money. I have received offers from film producers and theatrical representatives. I have been asked to make personal appearances on the stage. But I have refused them all."

DEATH MARCHES WITH POLITICS IN BLOODY 20TH

Prignano Murder Recalls Years of Violence.

For many years political manipulation and assassination have marched together as important factors in the government of the area covered by the 17th Illinois senatorial district on Chicago's west side. Albert J. Prignano, state representative from the district and Democratic committeeman of the 20th ward, who was slain by gunmen Sunday night, was only one of a number of victims who have fallen in fights over control of this territory.

The small size of the 17th district [carved in part from the "Bloody 20th" ward] and a peculiar racial setup of its inhabitants have favored the bi-partisan political arrangements that have prevailed among its leaders at least for the last 15 years.

Politics in the Murder.

One of the most favored explanations of the Prignano killing is that he was erased because he had been trying to overturn this "live and let live" policy of the bi-partisanites and make the area a strictly Democratic stronghold.

Both in area and population the 17th is the smallest of the city's senatorial districts. It is composed of precincts 15 to 48 of the 20th ward and precincts 50 to 60 of the 27th ward. On Nov. 6, 1934, it cast only 34,233 votes in an election of state representatives. In contrast, the 11th district on the southwest side of the city cast 362,689 votes and the 25th district on the northwest side, 531,886.

In effect, the 17th is what England used to call a rotten borough. The state senator is James B. Leonardo. The state representatives who served with Prignano are Peter C. Granata and Charles Coia. Leonardo and Granata are Republicans. Coia is a Democrat, as was Prignano.

Changing Racial Elements.

How Italian politicians came to dominate the district and the 20th ward as well is a history in itself. It was not always thus.

Away back in 1902 the district was represented in Springfield by John Powers, senator, and by these three representatives, Edward J. Smejkal, John Noonan and Clarence S. Darrow, the noted attorney. Smejkal was a Republican and Darrow ran on a public ownership platform. Then as now the district was nominally Democratic. The point here is that the Irish elements in the population were politically supreme.

Powers was in the legislature only one term. He preferred to be an alderman and he passed, altogether, 38 years in the city council. Others might come and go, but "Johnny de Pow," as his Italian constituents called him, held onto his power until he was ready to give it up less than ten years ago.

Jewish Group Shows Power.

As the years went on the Irish elements gradually lost out. There was a good sized Jewish group in the district and they put in a representative in 1906, Edward J. Glackin, Canadian born, was the state senator and held on for nearly 20 years.

The Italians by 1920 felt they were ready to combat all other groups for control of the district. In 1921 Anthony D'Andrea announced his opposition to Powers. A political meeting of the D'Andrea faction was bombed in March of that year. Then the bullet for the first time became the most persuasive argument. Before the end of the year 13 men had been slain in the 20th ward, all apparently over the political quarrel. One of the victims was D'Andrea.

It should be noted that Ald. Powers represented the 25th ward after the re-districting of 1921, but still retained much of his influence in the 17th district and the 20th ward.

Battleground of Dry Era.

During the prohibition era the three racial groups continued to fight for the 20th ward, and also the 17th senatorial district. Patronage and privilege offered rich rewards. The Genna brothers, notorious bootleggers, rose to wealth in the Bloody 20th and sank—nearly all of them—into the grave by bullets.

Morris Eller, under a Republican city administration, gained control of the ward and, coöperating with the Italians, used his power as a lever to be chosen city collector. The population had become by this time dominantly Italian and in 1926 the state senator of the 17th district and two state representatives were of that race.

By 1930 all were Italians. Leonardo was senator and Coia, Roland V. Libonati and Anthony Pintozzi were representatives.

Eller Opponent Is Slain.

A new factor appeared in 1928 when Octavius Granady, colored, sought Morris Eller's Republican ward committeeman post. He was slain by gunmen on primary day. Prignano was then alderman, elected with the help of the Eller faction although he was a Democrat. He served only one term, being defeated in 1929 by his kinsman, William V. Pacelli, a Republican who had also taken Eller's committeeman post.

Pacelli is still the alderman and Republican committeeman. Prignano was elected Democratic committeeman of the ward in 1934.

One of the theories about the motive for Prignano's murder is that the bi-partisan leadership entrusted him with the job of dividing patronage and that he was greedy in doing so.

Other Whispers Are Heard.

Further, it has been whispered that he achieved some important enmities by refusing as ward committeeman to approve certain candidates for municipal judge highly recommended by his bi-partisan associates. Pressure finally forced him to bow, it was said, but he did it with ill grace and hinted that he wouldn't go along any further.

PAROLE PROBLEM TO BE TAKEN UP BY PROSECUTORS

Reply to Commission Is Withheld.

Prosecutors from 45 Illinois counties met in the Morrison hotel yesterday to consider the crime and parole problems as W. C. Jones, chairman of the state parole board, reserved his answer to a critical report of the Chicago crime commission.

JESSE WILLIS.

Mr. Jones said he wanted an opportunity to check the figures of the commission which showed that 1,155 Cook county convicts were paroled during the last twelve months, while 1,050 new convicts were being sent to prison from Cook county. The commission also showed that in three years under Gov. Horner 3,056 Cook county convicts were paroled, while in the last three years under former Gov. Emmerson only 1,893 were paroled.

Chairman Jones served under Gov. Emmerson and has been held over as chairman of the parole board by Gov. Horner, although the other members of the present board are Horner appointees.

Protests Parole for Robber.

State's Attorney Jesse Willis of McLean county, here for the prosecutors' convention, said he has notified Chairman Jones of the strong protest of his county against the proposed paroling of Harry Funk, bank robber. The prosecutor said he was told to make his objections next Monday to the sub-committee which meets at the Joliet prison.

"Funk and two others robbed the Farmers' Bank of Gehoa on Jan. 13, 1925," State's Attorney Willis said. "They obtained $184,000 by posing as bank examiners and thereby getting the president, James Kelly, to bring out all the bonds and securities from the vault. The bank was not insured against loss and it failed, the stockholders and depositors losing everything.

"President Kelly's death was due to the robbery which wrecked his bank. The money and securities were never recovered and Funk has made no offer to return or to repay anything. Yet they are considering his parole.

New Duty for Prosecutors.

"Two years ago the board considered a pardon for Funk. I opposed it. I will go there again next week, as it seems to be a part of a prosecutor's duties to exert pressure to keep criminals in prison after convicting them."

State's Attorney Charles E. Mason of Lake county announced yesterday that he would criticize the state parole board in an address today before the prosecutors' convention. Mr. Mason said he would cite the case of Nick Maentanis, sentenced to one year to life for the $150,000 robbery of the William Mitchell home in Lake Forest, Nov. 21, 1931, who was paroled last fall without notice to Lake county authorities.

Mr. Mason declared he would present a resolution to the convention consuring such actions of the board, and asking that prosecutors be given more consideration at board hearings.

R. E. Vitterli, chief of the federal bureau of investigation at St. Louis, Mo., told the state's attorneys yesterday America's annual crime bill is $15,000,000,000, or $128 for every man, woman and child in the country. The records show, he said, that 48 per cent of those arrested for crimes have prison records.

ORDERS RECORDS OF DENATURED ALCOHOL SALES

Washington, D. C., Dec. 30.—(AP)—Guy T. Helvering, commissioner of internal revenue, today ordered denatured alcohol dealers to maintain complete records of shipments for the treasury, "if and when needed.

The purpose is to enable the department to trace consignments or shipments of denatured alcohol where diversion into illicit channels is suspected.

The order, Helvering said, applied to "any one who consigns, sells or otherwise disposes" of denatured alcohol.

Germany Ignores Rebuke of League Refugee Chief

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Dec. 30.—The report of James G. McDonald on German refugees and his resignation as league of nations high commissioner for refugees [Jewish and others] were completely ignored in the German press today. Official circles here declined to comment. McDonald announced his resignation yesterday and simultaneously suggested that the league intercede in a "friendly but firm" way to protect Jews and other non-Aryans in Germany.

Judge Asks Deportation of Alien Always on Dole

Judge Thomas Green in the South Chicago court yesterday fined Frank Pupsta, 57 years old, $100 on a disorderly conduct charge and said he would ask the immigration authorities to deport Pupsta. Pupsta lives in a municipal lodging home at 9225 Ewing avenue. Testimony showed that he came to the United States five years ago, has been on relief all that time and has made no effort to become a citizen.

RUBY BAE.
[Associated Press Wirephoto.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 30.—(AP)—Ruby Bae, "federal fan dancer No. 1" of Minneapolis, today was fitted into her little place in the scheme of things at Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt's press conference.

She's one of 6,000 professional theater people—actors, playwrights, designers—whose nation-wide activities on "security wage" from Uncle Sam were described by Mrs. Hallie Flanagan, director of the federal theater project.

Mrs. Flanagan sat on a divan beside Mrs. Roosevelt and detailed shows that soon will be seen the country over for from a dime to a dollar per admission.

Asked about Miss Bae, Minneapolis fan-dancer, Mrs. Flanagan replied, with great seriousness: "We do have some burlesque, variety, and vaudeville performers on our hands, in whom we are very interested. They have great skills. There's no one on earth more skilled than the trapeze performer."

In Chicago: "One theater is to be devoted to plays important in American theatrical history, with Harry Minturn directing, 'Texas Steer,' 'Old Homestead,' and 'The Octoroon' not done with the tongue in the cheek, but reviving the historic values."

Surgeons Remove Safety Pin from Baby's Stomach

LASTING FEDERAL AID STAGE IS AIM OF NEW DEALERS

T. W. Stevens Talks Here at Theater Conference.

"Permanence is one of the objectives of the federal theater plan," said Thomas Wood Stevens, regional director of the stage project branch of the federal Works Progress administration, in an address yesterday before the National Theater conference, in the Stevens hotel.

"Relief work, of course, is now our primary purpose," said Mr. Stevens, "but when that has come to an end we hope to have accomplished something for the drama that will survive under federal aid."

The theater conference represents little theaters and other noncommercial dramatic enterprises. The conference is being held in connection with the twentieth annual convention of the National Association of Teachers of Speech in the hotel.

Cites Old World Subsidies.

Mr. Stevens called attention to subsidies granted by European governments to dramatic art and remarked that while that system may not be adaptable to American life, this country may develop its own methods for governmental fostering of the legitimate drama with the work of the present federal bureau as a background.

F. Cowles Strickland, director of the St. Louis Little theater, gave the 200 delegates some practical advice about choosing plays that will interest little theater patrons.

"My experience has taught me," he said, "that the so-called regional play, dealing with local types and problems, has been overdone in civic and community theater production. Our audiences in St. Louis are not particularly eager to seek folk-plays dealing with Missourians. Sometimes I think that they are definitly trying to forget that they are living in Missouri.

The Test of the Drama.

"The test in selecting a play for little theater production should be: Does it mean something to your audience? If your patrons aren't in their seats because they want to be there and because they are enjoying the performance, then you haven't got a play at all."

Garrett Leverton of Northwestern university, E. C. Mable of the University of Iowa, and Rosamond Gilder presided at various sessions.

At a special session on rhetoric and public speaking, Leland T. Chapin, assistant professor of English at Stanford university, said propaganda has achieved its greatest heights under the New Deal.

"Last year," he pointed out, "propaganda in favor of the New Deal formed public sentiment. But not until this year, when former President Herbert Hoover spoke out, was there any effective opposition, and he created another trend in public opinion."

Propaganda as a means of social control, Mr. Chapin declared, is here to stay, and may be expected in the next political campaign in a hitherto undreamed of abundance. Consequently, he said, it should be studied seriously.

MOTHER IS SATISFIED THELMA TODD DEATH WAS AN ACCIDENT

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 30.—[Special.]—Mrs. Alice Todd, mother of Thelma Todd, blonde actress found dead Dec. 16, denied before the grand jury today that she had charged her daughter was murdered. She told the jury she was convinced Thelma's death by monoxide poisoning was accidental.

Roland West, the actress' "best friend" and business associate, followed Mrs. Todd into the grand jury room. He was the last of the so-called key witnesses to be heard. The grand jury has indicated it would close its investigation soon.

Mrs. Todd corroborated the statement that her daughter had been subject to fainting spells, which was denied at the time of her death by her physician.

Harvey Priester, close friend of Thelma Todd, took Mrs. Todd's arm as she emerged from the grand jury room, weeping and obviously distrait. Deputy District Attorney Eugene Blalock said she had given the jury "nothing that hasn't been told."

Albuquerque, N.M., Rocked by Earthquake; No Damage

Albuquerque, N. M., Dec. 30.—(AP)—An earth tremor, described by Albuquerque residents as the strongest of several felt here in the last ten days, was reported tonight shortly after 10 p. m. The shock was also recorded at Belen, thirty miles south, where earthquakes have occurred intermittently since Dec. 12. No damage was reported in either city.

SCIENCE URGED TO TAKE LEAD IN BETTERING MAN

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

St. Louis, Mo., Dec. 30.—[Special.]—Application of the scientific method to man's search for "the good life" of the philosopher was advocated here by Prof. Edward L. Thorndike of Columbia university. Dr. Thorndike is the retiring president of the American Association for the Advancement of Science and his plea was made in the address that opened the general session of the society tonight.

DR. KARL T. COMPTON.

What man wants and what man should want is a study left heretofore to "humanist-philosophers, sages, men of affairs, historians, and literary men," Dr. Thorndike said. There are no reasons why the methods of science should be abandoned in such an important field as what is best for the human race, he declared.

"It certainly is undesirable for men of science to restrict their thinking to what is and will be, leaving to propagandists, reformers, and talkers the decisions about what ought to be," he added.

Dr. Karl T. Compton, newly slated president of the association, delivered a speech in which he called for aggressive governmental support of scientific research.

Finds What People Want.

To find out what people want Dr. Thorndike took the figures on the spending of incomes in 1929 and, by the aid of a consensus of psychologists, divided each item among the wants to which it probably ministers and combined it all into a list of wants. Seventeen billions were spent for food, eight for clothing, six and one-half for automobiles, a billion and a half for laundry and the same amount for tobacco. Seven hundred millions went for cosmetics and beauty parlors.

"When the entire annual budget," he said, "is transformed item by item into a budget for the satisfaction of human wants, payments for sensory pleasures, obtaining of the approval of others, and the pleasures of companionship and sociability [including romance and courtship] each is found to be close to the amount paid for food and drink. In fact, we pay more to maintain self-respect and the good opinion of others and avoid scorn, derision and shame than to keep our bodies fed and free from the distress of hunger.

"We pay more for entertainment [including the intellectual pleasures and the sensory pleasures of sight, sound, taste, and smell] than for protection against cold, heat, wet, animals, disease, criminals and other bad people, and pain.

Less Than Third Necessity.

"Less than one-third of what we spend goes for wants that must be satisfied to keep the human species alive and self-perpetuating. The rest goes chiefly to keep us amused and comfortable physically, intellectually, morally, and especially socially. Relatively little is paid for the satisfactions of the intellectual life.

"The desires and aversions of men can be changed as truly as their ideas and habits, though not as much or as easily. Experiments in changing wants, interests, and attitudes do not justify the fond hopes of certain doctrinaires in sociology and education, but they do guarantee that, if sound methods are used, men can be taught to find satisfaction in useful work, healthful and noble recreation, and the welfare of others to a degree that the world has never seen. What is known concerning the inheritance of moral traits in man and the lower animals encourages us to hope that the inborn cravings of man may be improved at no cost to other goods.

"The consequences of events, especially of the ideas and acts of man to the satisfactions of mankind, need study by all the sciences of men and nature. Nonscientific estimates are sadly untrustworthy. People accept guesses and follow the unconscious logic of hope and fear in estimating consequences.

Must Discover Realities.

"Man makes the world a better home, and himself a more successful dweller in it, by discovering its regular unchangeable mode of action. He can determine the fate of the world and his own best, not by prayers or threats, but by treating it and himself by the method of science as phenomena determined, as far as he can see it, by their past history.

"A deterministic world of science is the least fatalistic world there can be. A world entirely ruled by the wishes of deities external to it would be utterly fatalistic.

"Is any group of thinkers qualified to study the wants of mankind, the consequences of acts and events, and the improvement of human valuations without reliance on the facts and methods of anthropology, psychology, sociology, economics, government, and other sciences of man?" he asked. "Can science avoid the responsibility of trying what impartial curiosity and honest work can accomplish in this field of controversy and prejudice?"

The world needs the insight and valuations of the sages and dreamers and the practical psychology of men of affairs and leaders in business, government, and education, he said, "but it also needs scientific methods to test the worth of the prophets' dreams, and scientific humanists to inform and advise its men only about what is but about what of affairs and to advise them not is right and good."

Scientists Report Wonders and Advances at Meeting

St. Louis, Mo., Dec. 30.—(AP)—Among the many reports of scientific wonders and advancements reported to the American Association for the Advancement of Science today, the following were of outstanding interest:

A new world-wide intensive study of the cause, occurrence, and possible cure for leprosy was outlined by Perry Burgess of the American Leprosy foundation, New York City.

Burgess emphasized that no specific cure is now known for leprosy and that no prediction of one could be made. The study should bring about, however, a comprehensive knowledge of the disease, he added.

He told several little known facts about it: That the weight of evidence is that leprosy is not easily contracted; that few adults contract it; that there are about 5 million lepers in the world of whom about 2½ million are able-bodied; that it is not believed to be inherited by children from their parents.

The first step in a study to discover whether there are any drugs which can improve man's mind was reported by Dr. Walter R. Miles of Yale university.

He sought first for effects on rats with caffein, alcohol, morphine, plain salt water, thyroxin, antuitrin, hyoscin, strychnine, cocaine, and adrenalin.

Even in the smallest amounts none helped a healthy rat, but some improved the learning powers of blind rats.

Earthquakes prove to the Rev. James B. Macewane of St. Louis university that the interior of the earth is solid and resistant and not a glowing, puttylike mass of molten metal. He reported his conclusions, based on years of seismographical study, today to the geology section.

Plants drink more water than rivers. When vegetation is green and growing, Albion Davis of St. Louis reported, it takes two to two and a half inches of rain to put water in the Osage river, while in winter months half an inch of rain will put water there.

By hypnotism Dr. Hans Syz of New York City restored the memory of a man who had lost it by bumping his head in a fall on the ice, he reported. The man was taught to memorize while hypnotized. Gradually his waking memory returned.

Dangers of airplane dusting of poison powders over agricultural fields were reported by Dr. J. E. Eckert and H. W. Allinger of the University of California. Two years' observations, they said, showed that more than 50 and sometimes 78 per cent of the poison dusts and drifts away from the areas aimed at.

A new chemical from Japan two thousand times sweeter than cane sugar was described by Dr. Albert F. Blakeslee of the Carnegie institution of Washington.

It is the sweetest thing in the world, eight times more sugary than the previous record holder, saccharine. The new stuff is a rare chemical named only alpha-anti-pirilla-Aldoxime.

Literary composition begins to end at about 40 years of age. An analysis of the productivity of more than 600 American and British writers of the past which led to that conclusion was presented to the psychology section by Dr. Harvey C. Lehman and Prof. Joseph B. Heidler of Ohio university.

Basing their work primarily on the dates of publication by these writers, they found that the peaks of production for various types of writing ranged from 35 to 42 years of age. Poets produced their maximum output between 25 and 29 years of age while prose and short story writers produced most of their work between the ages of 30 and 39.

Dividing their data into six ages of man the Ohio investigators found that men under 29 years of age wrote most of the narrative and pastoral poetry, tragedies, elegies, odes, lyrics, and ballads. From 30 to 39 most of the narrative prose, novels, comedies, satiric poetry, religious poetry, and short stories were written. Between 40 and 49 the peak of composition of satiric, educational, scientific, and political prose and epic poetry was reached. Philosophical, historical, and critical prose was written mostly by writers between 50 and 59 years old, biographical prose was written principally between 60 and 69 years of age, and miscellaneous poetry reached its peak among writers between the ages of 80 to 89.

Radio instruments floating in free balloons up near the stratosphere will give a minute to minute picture of weather conditions in the high upper air within a few years. This prediction was made by Dr. Willis R. Gregg, chief of the United States weather bureau, in telling how the future weather will be foretold.

The automatic radio robots, he said, will supplant airplane reports and pilot and sounding balloons. The instruments will both register weather conditions automatically and radio them automatically.

Counting the proportionate number of adults in a community is a good way to index the per capita wealth, said Dr. Roland M. Harper, University of Alabama. It applies to small communities or to states. It works because most adults produce wealth, while most children do not.

Indifferent, unhappy children were changed into interested and alert participants in school activities by changing their reading matter. How it was done was explained by Prof. Paul A. Witty of Northwestern university. He said that a child's whole outlook on life can be changed by judicious guidance of its reading.

Dr. Edmund Jacobson of the department of psychology of the University of Chicago delivered a paper on electrical measurements from within the brain of a man during normal activities. This was the first direct evidence, he said, that centers exist in the brain which participate in normal activities. His subject was a man of 57 who had part of his skull removed. His brain was healthy and a platinum wire was inserted into its surface. It was found that the wire tapped the spot in the brain which controled the closing of his jaw.

"Our study demonstrates," he said, "that the reported facts of mental decline as a concomitant of age are, at the least, exaggerated. The power to do mental tasks or to solve those of life's problems which must be approached mentally probably does not deteriorate as a function of age."

JAMES T. IGOE IS TAXED $12,000 ON ILLICIT ALKY

Under a federal statute holding him liable for the acts of his tenants, former Congressman James T. Igoe has been assessed approximately $12,000 by the internal revenue department for taxes on alcohol produced in a 20,000 gallon illicit still which was seized by police and federal agents on Sept. 21 in a building Igoe owns at 610 West Van Buren street. Notice of the assessment was received yesterday by Carter H. Harrison, collector of internal revenue, from Guy T. Helvering, commissioner of internal revenue in Washington.

Agents of the alcohol tax unit and police from the Des Plaines street station raided the tenth floor of the building, which houses the Igoe Printing and Lithographing company on the first and second floors, and uncovered the still and large quantities of alcohol and mash. Igoe said he rented the floor to two men for the manufacture of soap.

Sewers Along Des Plaines to Be Started on Friday

Work will start on Friday under the first of three contracts aggregating 2 million dollars to install intercepting sewers along the upper Des Plaines river, according to Ross A. Woodhull, president of the Chicago sanitary district. Many organizations have been invited to send representatives to a celebration at the Masonic temple in Des Plaines. Funds to finance the project were obtained from the federal Public Works administration as part of the 58 million dollars allotted to the sanitary district.

Britain's Total of Idle Down 50,000 in November

LONDON, Dec. 30.—(AP)—Great Britain's registered unemployed decreased by 50,000 in November, it was announced today. The total now stands at approximately 1,869,000. A marked improvement was shown in coal mining, the metal trades, engineering, and the cotton industries.

Lindblom Alumna

Miss Diana Gibson, a Chicago actress who has attained recognition in Hollywood, is visiting her sister, Mrs. Albert H. Borde, 1043 North Shore avenue, Rogers Park. Miss Gibson, 20 years old, a graduate of Lindblom Technical High school, formerly was employed in the hosiery department of a Chicago shoe store. She has been assigned a rôle with Jack Holt in the motion picture, "Dangerous Waters."

JURY IN SPENCER HOME EDUCATION CASE LOCKED UP

The right of Attorney Mary Belle Spencer and her husband, Dr. Richard V. Spencer, Chicago Heights physician, to educate their daughters at home instead of in the suburban public school was submitted to a jury in the Criminal court yesterday. Unable to reach a decision on the charge that Dr. Spencer violated the state compulsory education law, the jury was locked up for the night by Judge Joseph Burke.

On Oct. 13, 1934, Dr. Spencer was fined $5 by a justice of the peace for failing to send to the public school his two daughters, Mary Belle, 16 years old, and Victoria, 14. He appealed to the Criminal court and was granted a new trial. If convicted he faces a maximum fine of $20, in addition to heavy court costs.

Mrs. Spencer, former public guardian of Cook county, who has often been in the public eye, conducted the defense with Attorney J. J. McCarthy. Their daughter, Mary Belle, testified she received adequate home tutoring from her mother and a former high school teacher.

GIRL LEAP VICTIM IDENTIFIED; SEEK LATE EMPLOYER

More than 24 hours after she plunged to her death Sunday from the 16th floor of the Wellington Arms hotel, 2970 Sheridan road, the body of Miss Esther Dickson, 17 years old, 2863 Burling street, was identified by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Dickson, last night in an undertaking room at 2903 North Clark street.

Search was immediately pressed by the Sheffield avenue police for Christ Antonette, 711 North Kedzie avenue, who has been missing from his home since Dec. 6, when the Dicksons swore out a warant charging him with contributing to the delinquency of a minor.

A sister, Elizabeth, 25 years old, told police that Miss Dickson took a position as nursemaid in Antonette's home three months ago. She left six weeks later, the sister said, and told members of her family that Antonette had attacked her. Later Miss Dickson was not inclined to prosecute Antonette, the sister said, but recently she became despondent. An inquest into the girl's death was continued until Jan. 15.

ROBERT, 6, FOOLS PHYSICIANS, BUT KEEPS 'EM BUSY

Des Moines, Ia., Dec. 30.—(AP)—Robert Gemmill Morris, 6 years old, who fooled physicians by being born alive, came out of his eighth operation in four years today grinning.

Robert is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Morris and a grandson of W. A. Gemmill, Iowa board of education secretary.

After being born alive when physicians predicted a "still birth," Robert thrived until he was two when he suffered a ruptured appendix which required an emergency operation.

Two more years and he contracted scarlet fever. Then a touch of spinal meningitis necessitated another emergency operation.

Since then surgeons have performed four head operations on him, including scraping the brain.

Two months ago "his stiff upper lip" was operated upon the result of adhesions of the lip and gums. The sinus operation he underwent today was his second of this nature.

Single Hand Bank Holdup Gets Woman 5 to 40 Years

Albert Lea, Minn., Dec. 30.—(AP)—Mrs. May Lyons, who single handed robbed the State bank of Twin Lakes of $670 on Dec. 18 and was captured shortly afterward, pleaded guilty late today to a charge of robbery in the first degree. She was sentenced to serve five to forty years in the women's reformatory at Shakopee.

Chicago will have one of the biggest New Year's eve celebrations in years tonight, judging from hotel reservations, which are far ahead of those last year. Prices for parties at the major hotels will range downward from $12.50 a person, with some of the hotels fixing higher charges than last year.

Police Commissioner Allman made no announcement concerning enforcement of the 1 a. m. closing hour for liquor sales, but directed that an enlarged force be stationed in the loop.

310 Policemen to Work.

Hotel officials viewed their reservations with satisfaction.

"We are going to have the finest clientele since 1929," predicted Erik Dahlberg, maitre d'hotel of the Drake hotel. "By that I mean conservative society folk, middle aged persons who ordinarily don't go out New Year's eve.

Price Increased to $10.

The Drake has boosted its last year's price of $7.50 to $10. Last night 1,200 reservations had been listed.

The Palmer house was sold out last Saturday, with 610 reservations for the Empire room [$10 a person]. The fourth floor of the hotel has been sold out to the Interfraternity club.

At the Blackstone hotel Mayfair room the first New Year's eve party in ten years will be given, in line with a "more aggressive" policy of the hotel, an official said. The capacity of the Mayfair room [$12.50 a person] is 300, and the hotel reports it is "almost sold out." A private party is to be given in the ballroom.

Congress to Entertain 2,000.

The Congress hotel had 2,000 reservations yesterday, according to John Burke, vice president, who said this number represented an increase of about 25 per cent over last year. Prices range from $5 in the Pompeiian room to $10 in the Urban room.

The Hotel Sherman reported 1,000 reservations at $5.83 for the grand ballroom and $7.95 for the College Inn and Bal Tabarin.

Business was said to be "100 per cent better" at the Stevens hotel, with reservations of 2,850. The grand ballroom will charge $5 and the Continental room $7.50.

Morrison Hotel Sold Out.

The Morrison hotel is sold out, with 1,200 reservations for the Terrace room at $7.50 and a private party of 600 in the Cameo room. The Bismarck hotel's Walnut room was sold out before Christmas at $6. Prices at the Bismarck Bier Stube and Flamingo room are $5.

The Hotel La Salle reported 800 reservations at $5 and $6. The Edgewater Beach hotel is charging $10.

HODES DEMANDS ENFORCEMENT OF ANTI-SIGN LAWS

Municipal Judge Eugene Holland yesterday continued until Saturday a hearing on a charge of unlawful bill posting against Miss Mae Winarski, 27 years old, operator of a ballroom at 3104 Lawrence avenue. Assistant Corporation Counsel D. A. Geroulis requested the delay to summon property owners between 3800 and 4500 Lawrence avenue where nine signs advertising the opening of Miss Winarski's ballroom are alleged to have been posted without authority.

Corporation Counsel Barnet Hodes told Judge Holland that illegal bill posting "is ruthless vandalism which must be stopped unless Chicago is to have the appearance of a frontier town.

"Defamers of our city are plastering properties from sidewalks to building tops with unsightly signs," he said. "Although many citizens are not acquainted with the anti-bill posting ordinances of Chicago, that is no excuse and the practice must be stopped."

CHICAGO KEEPS ITS WORLD LEAD IN AIR TRAFIC

During 1935 the Chicago airport has continued to lead the world in airplane trafic, according to the annual report of Oscar E. Hewitt, city commissioner of public works, which went to Mayor Kelly yesterday. The report said that this year 191,000 passengers have passed through the airport on scheduled flights.

Police Abandon Women's Hyde Park Cell Block

Capt. John Prendergast, chief of the police uniform force, yesterday ordered abandonment of the cell block at the Hyde Park station which had been used for detention of women arrested on the south side. Instead such prisoners will be taken to the women's quarters at the detective bureau. Retirement of several police matrons is believed to have been the cause of the order.

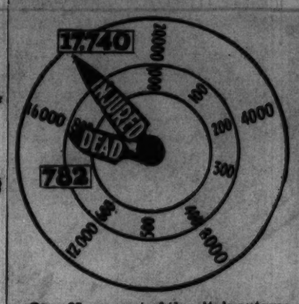
THE MASSACRE

Chicago's 1935 Trafic Toll



Over 98 per cent of the city's automobile fatalities are of a nature physically impossible on an elevated highway.

AUTO DEATH TOLL IS 1,006, LOWEST MARK SINCE 1927

Sharp Decline from Peak in 1934.

The year's automobile death toll in Cook county stood at 1,006 yesterday, and, with only today remaining in the present year, the number of trafic fatalities probably will be the lowest since 1927.

In 1934 a total of 1,249 persons were killed in Cook county. This was a peak year. There were 969 deaths in 1927, which was the last year that trafic fatalities in the county remained under the 1,000 mark.

Death Records Since 1920.

Records of automobile deaths in Cook county from 1920, made public yesterday by the coroner's office, show that the annual trafic toll has almost tripled during the 15 year period. The totals of deaths by years follow:

1922	667	1930	1,122
1923	740	1931	1,297
1924	703	1932	1,099
1925	787	1933	1,131
1926	887	1934	1,249
1927	969

Encouraged by the decrease in trafic fatalties during 1935, the Chicago Safety council announced yesterday that it would campaign for a further reduction during the coming year with the slogan: "Save a Life a Day in 1936."

Three deaths from trafic accidents were recorded yesterday. The victims:

Mrs. Vivian J. Meyer, 25 years old, 10183 South Elizabeth street. Killed last night when she was struck by an automobile at Western avenue and 103d street. Richard Hutchinson, 18 years old, 8944 South Hoyne avenue, drove the car. His father is A. H. Hutchinson, owner of the Continental Scale company, 5701 South Claremont avenue.

Henry Hudson, 57 years old, colored, 2901 South State street. Fatally injured when he was struck at South Park way and 31st street by an automobile driven by David Popilski, 30 years old, 1225 South Kolin avenue.

Mrs. Sally Goldner, 78 years old, 407 South Ashland avenue. Died in the Psychopathic hospital of injuries incurred Dec. 24 when struck by an automobile. She gave hospital attendants no details of the accident.

Three Women Hurt in Crash.

Miss Marjorie Jackson, 25 years old, 4759 Lake Park avenue; Miss Evelyn Hricko, 21, of 167 West Washington street, and Fay Peugh, 32, of 12 West Ohio street, were seriously injured yesterday when the car in which they were riding struck a Pennsylvania railroad abutment at 2600 Ogden avenue.

At 4 p. m. yesterday trafic deaths within the Chicago city limits since Jan. 1 totaled 780, according to the coroner's office, and 17,740 persons had been injured.

UNLICENSED 1936 MOTORISTS FACE SPEEDY ARREST

There will be no delay in arresting persons who do not have their city and state automobile licenses by tomorrow, Jan. 1, City Controler Robert B. Upham announced yesterday. He said the police will start handing out court summonses on Thursday Jan. 2.

The city vehicle license bureau in the city hall established a record yesterday in issuing more than 30,000 city automobile stickers. The bureau remained open until 8 o'clock last night, three and a half hours after its usual closing time. So far 140,853 city licenses have been issued.

Throughout the day long lines of persons gathered in front of the 18 windows where the stickers were issued. City Clerk Peter Brady opened three windows in the water department for the sale of stickers in addition to the fifteen windows in the license bureau.

GETS YEAR FOR ROBBERY.

Municipal Judge Matthew D. Hartigan sentenced Stanley Drost, 25 years old, 2114 West 24th street, to one year in the Bridewell yesterday for robbing a taxicab driver of $5.30.

CITY AND SCHOOL OFFICERS DEFEND BUDGET BOOSTS

Rocketing Education Tax Analyzed by Expert.

City and school officials defended increases in their tentative 1936 budgets yesterday in answer to a statement of John O. Rees, director of the committee on public expenditures, that the proposed outlays will levy 30 per cent more taxes than were required in the 1934 extension [now being collected].

The 122 million dollar city budget and the 70 million school budget are now being whipped into final shape for passage next month. In a statement Saturday, Mr. Rees charged that the two budgets, totaling 192 millions, would require $136,031,437 of direct revenues—to be derived from property owners under the 1936 tax extension.

Higher Taxes Conceded.

The 1934 tax bills totaled $104,629,667, a figure $31,400,000 below the purported 1936 anticipation. To raise this 31 million, according to Rees, it would be necessary to boost general property tax rates $1.30 to $1.40 over the 1934 rate.

Rees' prediction of higher taxes was admitted yesterday by Ald. J. M. Arvey [24th], chairman of the city council finance committee.

"It is undoubtedly true that taxes must be increased as compared with 1934," Arvey said.

"The increase in operating expenses comes largely because, last July the city restored one-half of the pay cuts which had been imposed on city employés, and added 200 firemen and 500 policemen to the rolls.

"At the same time, it seems to me a little unfair to compare the 1936 budget with the excessively pared budget of 1934—the comparison might well have been with 1930, a high year.

Must Maintain Property.

"In 1934 emergency economies were in effect. It was absolutely necessary to cut expenses to the bone, and this was done, in some cases to the eventual harm of the city. The city has millions of dollars in property, and the low budget could not properly provide for its maintenance.

"As a result there has been deterioration in equipment wnich now costs two or three times as much to repair."

More than half of a total $16,530,869 increase in the city budget, as compared with 1934, comes in the field of debt service which will be $8,489,371 greater in 1936 than two years ago, according to Ald. Arvey.

"As a matter of fact," he said, "the city is still economizing as much as possible while attempting to give taxpayers good service and to pay fair wages to employés. A good share of the total budget increase is in pension funds and other fixed charges over which the city administration has no control."

More School Buildings.

In the matter of the 1936 board of education budget, the resumption of a school building program accounts for prospective increases over 1934 tax totals, according to James B. McCahey, president of the school board.

"The board added principals and teachers to the system in the interests of children and taxpayers," Mr. McCahey said.

According to Mr. Rees, most of the increase in taxes from 1934 to 1936 in the city budgets took place in 1935, but the big increase in the school board levies is being made in 1936. A compilation shows that the direct taxes required to support the 1934 city operating budget [exclusive of bond and interest requirements] totaled $43,630,615. This item increased to $50,550,000 in 1935 and, under the present budget, to $51,672,113 in 1936.

Big Jump in Prospect.

The school board taxes, exclusive of debt service, were $49,756,731 in 1934, rose to $50,775,675 in 1935, and now would be jumped to $65,490,545 in 1936.

Although the aggregate school budget appropriations for 1936 are $1,028,199 below the 1935 total, actually there is an increase of $5,163,343 in items under the control of the board. This increase is offset by a $6,181,542 decrease in bond and interest requirements—which are determined by bond ordinances.

The major increase in appropriations is a $3,504,000 jump to $13,089,400 in the amount set aside for the building fund. A much larger increase in the tax levy is required, however, as only $4,000,000 was levied for 1935. The 1936 building fund levy, according to Mr. Rees, is $13,192,437, since the "writing down" of a large "paper" surplus in the fund makes it necessary to impose a heavier tax levy.

Write Off Frozen Assets.

Likewise, although the appropriations for the educational fund are shown at $48,723,977 for 1936, a decrease of $37,323 from 1935, the budget calls for a $6,000,000 increase in the educational tax levy. By writing down receivables, chiefly tax receivable, a deficit has been set up which requires levies considerably in excess of appropriations.

Chicago park district commissioners took final action yesterday on the 1936 appropriations bill when they adopted a budget calling for total appropriations of $23,944,772. The appropriations for corporate [operating] purposes total $9,633,623, or $295,869 below the 1935 figure.

Rudolph Spreckels Sued for $613,753 Income Tax

San Francisco, Dec. 30.—(AP)—Two suits asking a total of $613,753 in allegedly unpaid income taxes were filed in federal court today by the United States government against Rudolph Spreckels, member of the wealthy California sugar family.

STORM CAUSES $2,000,000 DAMAGE IN ATLANTA

Atlanta remained in the grip of winter yesterday as blizzard swept the eastern part of the United States. Wires were broken down by the heavy ice upon them, there being almost no long distance service. Electric lights were out in many sections of the city. [Associated Press Wirephoto.]

17 LOSE LIVES AS WINTER SWEEPS HALF OF NATION

Georgia Hit by Worst Storm in 30 Years.

New York, Dec. 30.—(AP)—Snow, ice, and freezing temperatures lay over the east, south, and much of the middle west tonight following a storm that took at least 17 lives and caused millions of dollars of property damage.

Regionally, the heaviest death toll was in the south, where five persons succumbed to the unaccustomed rigors of winter.

Snow flurries, felt as far south as Florida, were moving tonight into New England after covering the middle Atlantic states with the heaviest fall of the season.

20-Inch Snow in N. Carolina.

In depth the snow ranged from four to six inches in New York City to 13 inches in parts of North Carolina. Mount Mitchell, N. C., reported 20 inches.

For northern Georgia it was the worst snowstorm in 30 years. In Atlanta the situation was aggravated by the snapping of electric power lines. City officials and utility executives estimated the damage there alone at 2 million dollars.

For the first time in years there was a thin coating of ice on the Mississippi river at Greenville, Miss.

Faced with the task of opening snow-clogged roadways, the South Carolina state highway commission began a search for a snowplow which it believed it owned but could not find.

45,000 Clear N. Y. Streets.

New York City officials, who have more use for such apparatus, quickly found 2,000 snowplows and sent them into action, together with sweepers, flushers, and rotary brooms. The city's snow removal crew totaled 45,000 men and a million dollar appropriation was voted to finance the work.

Six ocean freighters, icebound in the Hudson river between Albany and Kingston, N. Y., were freed during the day by coast guard cutters.

Temperatures moderated in Virginia, where between 4 and 11 inches of snow fell. The sun came out in Washington and began easing away the 6 inch snowfall in that city. Rural mail carriers in Maryland made their rounds in sleighs.

50 Snowbound in Trolleys.

The storm was accompanied in New Jersey by a 44 mile an hour wind which piled up drifts and stalled automobile trafic. More than half a hundred persons were held snowbound in two stalled trolley cars for nearly eight hours.

Ice floes disrupted navigation in the Ohio river, halting ferry service at Shawneetown, Ill. The Wabash was frozen over at New Harmony, Ill., and Metropolis, Ill., reported the heaviest snowfall since 1917, six inches.

The week-end brought a total of 9.9 inches of snow to Cleveland, and temperatures throughout Ohio were in the 'teens.

STRIKE AGAINST PAY CUT FACES DUTCH AIR LINES

[Copyright: 1935: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, Dec. 30.—Europe's first strike of airmail pilots threatens to cripple the services of the Royal Dutch airline next Wednesday, it was learned here tonight, unless a settlement can be patched up meantime.

The pilots' grievances are the outgrowth of the three disastrous accidents which befell the Netherland's mail planes in quick succession last autumn. Soon after the accidents the managing director held a conference with his most trusted pilots and asked them whether they thought the route to the Indies should be abandoned as too dangerous. The pilots decided against any such action but suggested only the most experienced of their number should be used hereafter on the route to the east. The younger men, they proposed, should fly the European routes.

The company agreed to these suggestions but last week to the amazement of the pilots announced it had been decided to cut their salaries by 400 guilders [about $270] for each round trip to the Indies. The veterans thereupon decided to strike and their decision was backed by younger pilots.

LEADING LIARS WILL BE PICKED BY EXPERTS AT BURLINGTON MEET

Burlington, Wis., Dec. 30.—(AP)—Championship lying, like Christmas shopping, should be done earlier. So said officials of the Burlington Liars' club today. They watched special delivery mail and telegrams pile high about their modest club offices. For tomorrow night comes the yearly judging of the best lies. The club officers will choose the best from a stack of nearly 5,000 submitted during the year. For instance, Will Vinson of Madera, Cal., wrote of Baltimore, Md.:

"It was so cold there two years ago that the bronze statue of Abraham Lincoln took its hand off the emancipated slave's head and put it in its pocket."

From Robert Bailey, aboard the U. S. S. Bushnell in the Canal Zone, came a story about rain in the tropics.

"It poured so hard here," he wrote, "that water gushing through a nail hole in a roof burst the sides from the house."

Martha Hirsch of Crow Rock, Mont., told hers about a cow:

"I could milk this cow on either side and still she didn't stop giving milk as long as the pail remained unfilled. So I sold all the others on the ranch, knocked the bottom out of the pail and got all the milk I needed from one."

CUMMER WINS HIS APPEAL IN JUDGMENT FIGHT

The Illinois Appellate court yesterday reversed a decision of Superior Judge Rudolph F. Desort, who refused to set aside judgments totaling $17,000 against William M. Cummer, wealthy retired machinery manufacturer, which were obtained by his divorced wife, Mrs. Mary Lang Cummer, 10914 Vernon avenue, while he was traveling in Africa. In its opinion, the Appellate court declared: "We think that the procuring by the plaintif and her counsel of the veritable flood of judgments, injunctions and other orders in the absence of the defendant who had received no notice and was without counsel, constituted a flagrant abuse of equity and an utter disregard to the defendant's rights."

Hollywood, Cal., Dec. 30.—(AP)—Melvin Koontz, wild animal trainer, suffered a badly lacerated hand today when he smashed his fist into a lion's mouth in a film scene. Koontz was staging a fight with Jackie, 8 year old boxing lion from the California Zoological society.

LA GUARDIA VETO SAYS LAW CAN'T FORCE LOYALTY

Holds Patriotism Not a Matter of Statute.

New York, Dec. 30.—[Special.]—Mayor Fiorello H. La Guardia today vetoed the city ordinance compelling display of the American flag at indoor gatherings of fifteen or more persons, with the declaration that patriotism must be "spontaneous and not legislated."

Since the ordinance was adopted by the board of aldermen some weeks ago, the American Civil Liberties union and other liberal organizations have expressed opposition to it.

In his veto message the mayor said:

"I fully appreciate the provocation that prompted the passage of the ordinance. I also understand the motives of the sponsors in introducing, and of the board in passing the ordinance itself. I believe I know what the board intended to accomplish by the ordinance. I fear that it will do exactly the opposite.

Ample Law to Guard Flag.

"Patriotism must be spontaneous and not legislated. There are existing statutes, both federal and state, against desecration of the flag and commanding respect for it.

"The ordinance would require a flag thirty-six by forty-eight inches to be conspicuously displayed at all assemblies of more than fifteen persons discussing political or public questions. The ordinance itself would be most difficult of enforcement. The subject matter of the discussion, whether it is open to the public or not, even to the size of the flag, would all be matters of proof in court.

"The question immediately arises if scientific, religious or social discussions are of a 'public nature'—or if an economic discussion is political within the meaning of the ordinance.

Flag No Molder of Ways.

"In addition to that, the presence of the flag will surely in no way change the style of some of the discussions or the nature of some of the speeches, with which neither I nor the board do or would approve.

"This has been attempted in a measure for meetings in public squares and streets. Surely no one will contend that the presence of the flag at such meetings, in some instances held by disloyal people, have made them either loyal or patriotic.

"Patriotism can no more be instilled into a disloyal person by the forced presence of our flag than can the love of God be put into an atheist's heart by placing a Bible in his hand."

RELIEF ORDERED STOPPED JAN. 15 IF NO AID COMES

Washington Thumbs Down Cash or More WPA Jobs.

Illinois relief stations, serving 185,000 families, were ordered yesterday to close their doors on Jan. 15 unless $3,000,000 is obtained from some source in the meantime to make up total requirements of $5,865,911 for January. This decision was reached late Sunday night at a conference between Gov. Horner and members of the Illinois Emergency Relief commission.

At Washington, spokesmen for Harry L. Hopkins said the national government is doing all it intends to do for Illinois in creating 183,500 jobs under the Works Progress administration, and that Illinois must shift for herself in raising direct relief cash.

They declared President Roosevelt had not brought the matter to the attention of the WPA or of the Federal Emergency Relief administration, both of which are headed by Hopkins.

Governor Hopes for U. S. Aid.

Nevertheless, Gov. Horner insisted yesterday that he had received no official reply to his personal appeal for more jobs or more funds, and he professed still to hope that Washington would make good not only January's prospective 3 million dollar deficit, but also shortages for the following months—in all 10 million dollars. He has stressed in his fund pleas the fact that 183,000 WPA jobs leave 65,000 employables still on relief in the state.

One high relief official said that when all was said and done the Illinois general assembly would have to be asked to appropriate money for relief from the state general fund, now said to exceed $20,000,000.

Reynolds' Contingent Order.

The order to close the relief stations "unless" was issued by Executive Secretary Wilfred S. Reynolds of the IERC, when available funds of $2,780,000 were pro-rated among the various counties.

"All administrative employés are to be suspended," the order read, "and relief clients and the public are to be advised of this action."

After members of the IERC conferred with the governor, they declared in a statement that "Illinois is confronted with the most serious crisis in its relief history."

A similar crisis, however, occurred last May when federal funds were withheld while the state legislature debated increasing the sales tax from 2 to 3 per cent for relief purposes.

Disposition of Sales Tax.

One-third of the 3 cent sales tax now goes to relief, and two-thirds to the state's general fund in place of the state general property tax, which was abolished. About $2,000,000 will be available for relief from the sales and utility taxes in January, and the IERC has on hand about $780,000 saved out of current expenditures.

Executive Secretary Reynolds, whose resignation was accepted a month ago, will be succeeded tomorrow by Leo M. Lyons, present Cook county administrator.

"I shall assume office with this crisis hanging over my head," he said. "Until then I can say nothing."

A delegation of 379 Cook county relief employés who were dismissed a few days ago attempted to see Lyons en masse yesterday. Their vocal violence caused several police squads to speed to the IERC headquarters at 1319 South Michigan avenue.

Finally a committee was admitted to Lyons' office, but the callers received slight comfort from the announcement that 500 more employés must be discharged within two weeks.

N. Y. BOARD VOTES NEARLY NINE MILLION FOR RELIEF IN JAN.

New York, Dec. 30.—[Special.]—The board of estimate voted $8,930,000 for relief in January today at the request of the emergency relief bureau.

The January appropriation exceeds that for December, which was $8,550,000, purchasing warm winter clothing for those on relief accounts for $200,000 of the increase, and the remainder will go to finance an increased case load. Relief taxes will be drawn upon for $5,073,000 of the monthly allotment and $345,000 additional will be drawn from budget funds for veterans' relief.

In addition to their January request, ERB officials were prepared to ask $9,551,000 for February. The board decided to consider only next month's allotment, and action on the February appropriation was deferred. All the money voted today goes for home relief, with the city defraying 60 per cent of the cost while the state bears 40 per cent.

ROBBER, 19, GIVES MOTHER $15 WEEK AS HONEST WAGES

Sergt. John Hanrahan and his squad last night seized Tom Tsicouris, 19 years old, 4619 West Adams street, in a delicatessen at 2936 5th avenue as a suspect in a number of store robberies. He carried 2 revolvers and confessed 35 robberies in the last two months. "I'm the eldest of 7 children," explained Tsicouris, "and my family is on relief. About three nights a week I would go out on holdups, making my mother think I had a part time job. Then on Saturday I would tell her it was pay day and give her $15. I kept my guns in a 10 cent elevated station locker."

Motorist Drops Dead at Steering Wheel of Car

Joseph O'Connor, 47 years old, 8332 Avalon avenue, a track superintendent for the Chicago Surface Lines, was stricken with a heart attack last night while driving his automobile at 71st and Halsted streets. Albert Dyke, 8350 South La Salle street, who was a passenger, seized the steering wheel and drove the car to St. Bernard's hospital, where O'Connor was pronounced dead. He had been employed by the Surface Lines twenty-eight years. He is survived by his widow and twelve children.

ARTICHOKE BAN IS CARRIED INTO SUPREME COURT

Justice William Black reserved decision on a request of the Union Pacific Produce company for a temporary injunction to restrain the mayor from enforcing his ban on small artichokes.

Previously the mayor had modified the general ban on sale of artichokes soon after five large receiving concerns had signed an agreement not to deal with the produce company, alleged to exercise monopolistic control of the vegetable.

Assistant Corporation Counsel Rand told the court that the city soon may turn its attention to the "pepper" racket.

Common Law Wife Slayer Is Electrocuted in Texas

Huntsville, Tex., Dec. 31 [Tuesday].—(AP)—C. B. James, 32, confessed slayer of his common law wife in a death pact, was electrocuted in the state prison here early today. The slayer, who stabbed his wife to death last year as she held a baby in her arms, went to his death without speaking a word to prison officials.

GEN. LIGGETT, 78, WAR HERO, INDIAN FIGHTER, IS DEAD

Headed American Attack Along the Marne.

San Francisco, Cal., Dec. 30.—[Special.]—Lieut. Gen. Hunter Liggett, commander of the First American army in the world war and later head of the army of occupation in Germany, died today in Letterman hospital at the Presidio here.

Gen. Liggett, who was 78 years old, had been in the hospital since last January. His wife, Mrs. Harriet Lane Liggett, herself in frail health, remained there with him during the months of his last illness. They had no children.

Pershing Expresses Grief.

Since the general's retirement in 1921 they had lived a quiet civilian life here. They took a pleasure trip to Hawaii a little more than a year ago, but soon after that the general fell ill and since had been confined to the hospital.

Gen. John J. Pershing, informed of the death at Tucson, Ariz., where he is spending the winter, expressed his deep grief. He termed Gen. Liggett an accomplished soldier, an outstanding leader in the A. E. F., and an officer who won the respect of his associates and the devotion of all who served under him.

BATTLED SIOUX TRIBES.

Hunter Liggett's active career with the United States army began with a battle participation within the year that he was graduated from the United States Military academy in 1879. In his first engagement he led a platoon of the Fifth infantry against hostile Sioux Indians on Little Porcupine creek, Montana, and despite his youth and lack of experience as an Indian fighter was victorious. He then was only 23 years old.

In the 39 years between his first Indian battle and the termination of the world war he was elevated from the rank of second lieutenant to lieutenant general commanding an army of more than 250,000 men.

His service record shows a series of rapid assignments and a variety of duties, including actions in Cuba as a company commander of the Fifth infantry, in the Philippines during the insurrection, and in the United States on the general staf as president of the war college, as commander of the western department, and at numerous other posts.

Assigned with British.

It was from command of the western department that he was withdrawn in 1917 to be transferred overseas for duty with Gen. Pershing. His rank abroad was that of a major general, but he was elevated another notch, making him and Gen. Bullard the two lieutenant generals of active world war service overseas.

In France Gen. Liggett's first assignment was with the British forces at the front.

Soon afterward he was called to Chaumont, headquarters of the American Expeditionary forces, and ordered to organize and take administrative command of the First American army corps.

Led Marne Advance.

Gen. Liggett commanded the first American army corps to take its place in the fighting lines, the sector being in the Soissons-Château Thierry salient. It was under his leadership during the operations which began July 18, 1918, that the First corps maintained a continuous advance during 23 days of determined fighting and drove the enemy back from the Marne and then across the Ourcq and the Vesle.

Immediately after the St. Mihiel offensive, in which he also commanded a corps, he was ordered to establish headquarters at Rarecourt, near Verdun, to prepare for the Meuse-Argonne offensive.

Successive victories of the forces with Gen. Liggett brought his name into prominent mention everywhere in France and there was little surprise when Gen. Pershing relieved him from the First corps command and placed him in charge of the First American army.

Prepares for Final Push.

The First army had seen 20 days of continuous fighting when Gen. Liggett took command. He ordered a suspension of operations and prepared the men for the big push which began Nov. 1, 1918, to end ten days later with the signing of the armistice.

For his war services he received the Distinguished Service medal from his government; the Croix de Guerre with palm, and commander's grade of the Legion of Honor from France; the grand commander's grade of the Order of Leopold from Belgium, and the commander's grade of the Order of St. Maurice and Lazarus from Italy.

CATHOLIC PUPILS IN FIRST GRADE SHOW INCREASE

First grade enrollments in Catholic parochial schools of the Chicago area showed an increase this year for the first time in five years, according to a report distributed yesterday by Daniel F. Cunningham, archdiocesan superintendent.

"During the last four years the falling off in the first grade enrollment has given us much food for thought," says the report.

For the school year beginning September, 1934, and ending June, 1935, the first grade enrollment was 20,244 while for 1935-36 the indicated enrollment figure is 20,407. The total enrollment of all grade schools, high schools, and colleges of the archdiocese was 196,416, as against a total of 200,949 for the previous year.

TWO SLAIN, TWO SHOT OVER MILK MAN'S JEALOUSY

Kills Wife and Girl; Wounds Boy and Self.

Philip Mikes, 40 years old, a jealous milk wagon driver, shot his wife and step-daughter to death yesterday in their home at 2633 North Austin avenue and critically wounded one of his step-sons and himself with a shotgun. Two other step-children, a boy and a girl, were unharmed.

The slain victims were Mrs. Penelope Mikes, 35 years old, and her daughter by a former marriage, Lulu Voornas, 17 years old. The wounded boy is Louis Voornas, 16 years old, who was taken to the Danish-American hospital. Doctors said his right shoulder was filled with lead pellets and his collar bone broken.

At the Bridewell hospital Mikes was given a chance to live by physicians who operated to remove slugs.

Criticizes Wife's Behavior.

"My wife was driving me crazy with jealousy," he told detectives. "Several times she stayed out all night and I never could get her to stay at home with me. She did plenty to me."

The immediate cause for the shooting, it was explained by the two uninjured children, George Voornas, 15 years old, and his sister, Marian, 13 years old, was a quarrel which arose when Mrs. Mikes and Lulu started for Shakespeare avenue police court. There they were to appear as witnesses against Mikes, who was arrested on Saturday evening on a disorderly conduct warant obtained by his wife.

As the two started for the door of the second floor apartment Mikes grabbed a shotgun from a closet and shouted: "Where do you think you're going?"

He fired a shot at his step-daughter, and another at his wife. Louis was dropped by a third charge, then Mikes turned the gun on himself.

Two Children Save Themselves.

George, who was in his bedroom, jumped from a second floor window as the shooting began and fled to the home of neighbors. His sister, Marian, locked herself in the bathroom, then fled from the house after Mikes shot himself.

In Mikes' clothing police found a note to a friend in which he said: "Sorry for the thing I am doing. My life is impossible to live after so many disappointments. This is best."

Mrs. Mikes separated from her first husband, Alex Voornas, a café owner of Crosby, N. D., four years ago. She married Mikes fourteen months ago, and, according to relatives, quarreled with him continually. Voornas was on his way here last night by plane.

THIEVES STEAL POISONED CANDY FROM SALESMAN

Twenty-five cases of sample candy preserved in an arsenic preparation strong enough to cause serious illness and possible death were stolen last night from the motor car of Otto B. Ruwoldt, a salesman residing at the Bryn Mawr hotel, 5530 Winthrop avenue.

The candy was taken while the car was parked in front of 1005 Thorndale avenue. Police searched the neighborhood unsuccessfully for the candy and warned against its purchase.

Ruwoldt said the candy was for display purposes only and that the arsenic preparation was used to preserve it during the long periods in which it remained in the cases. He is employed by the E. H. Wakefield Candy company, Joplin, Mo.

Oscar Hewitt Released from Hospital; Doing Well

600 FIGHT OIL FIRE AT MUSKEGON; 75,000 GALLONS IN FLAMES

Muskegon, Mich., Dec. 30.—[Special.]—The spectacular fire which had raged for 16 hours at the $750,000 plant of the Naph-Sol Refining company on the edge of Muskegon, appeared under control tonight. Firemen and 600 WPA and plant workers, however, continued to battle the flames now confined to the 25,000 barrel fuel oil tank where it started at 1:30 a. m. today.

A fortunate shift in the wind during the afternoon probably saved the plant, after two other 25,000 barrel tanks had exploded and the entire plant appeared doomed. The loss tonight was estimated at $150,000.

Firemen from Muskegon and North Muskegon and many of the workers suffered intensely from the zero weather as they battled to keep the flames from spreading to tanks only 75 feet away.

The ineffectiveness of water on the oil fire caused officials to appeal for the WPA workmen. Armed with picks and shovels, these men erected dikes around the tanks and made considerable headway in extinguishing with dirt flames that spread over a large area after one of the tanks exploded.

They also succeeded in extinguishing the fire at the base of the other two tanks, but the flames continued to burn fiercely at the top of the structure, sending roaring tongues high into the sky and blanketing the countryside with clouds of black smoke.

Rifle bullets were fired into the burning oil tanks in an effort to prevent an explosion by relieving the pressure and draining the oil into the earth dikes. The origin of the fire was undetermined.

HILL CAVES IN; 2 WPA WORKERS KILLED, 4 HURT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Milwaukee, Wis., Dec. 30. — [Special.] — Two WPA workers were crushed to death and four others hurt late this afternoon by the collapse of a frozen hilltop they were undermining in a beautification project in Estabrook park. The dead are:

Joseph Copemzaro, 24, 611 East Wright street.

Alex Ronunski, 29, 507 North 19th street.

Alex Horst, 42, 1720 North 11th street.

There were 140 men employed on the works administration project, leveling off a hillside about a half mile south of the "Blue Hole," a deep quarry in the Milwaukee river which runs through the park. The hill is about twenty feet high. It was being reduced by handpicks, the earth loaded into wheelbarrows and dumped into the river. The surface of the hill being frozen, the workers had cut under it and were removing the unfrozen soil when the unsupported top crashed.

Dancer Sues for Divorce from New York Broker

Charging desertion, Madelyn Lynch Bickford, 25 years old, a dancer with a loop musical show, filed suit for divorce yesterday in Superior court from Edward K. Bickford, a New York broker. According to the bill, filed by Attorney Leo Miller, the couple married Sept. 16, 1929 at Lisbon, O., and separated a year later. Mrs. Bickford seeks custody of a son, Walter, 6 years old.

Evanston Home Is Looted of $500 in Christmas Gifts

Christmas presents valued at $500 were taken last night in the burglary of an apartment occupied by Miss Beulah Bramer and Miss Helen J. LaCroix at 914 Sherman avenue, Evanston. The loot included a fur coat, a radio and jewelry.

Sergt. John Hoover in Uniform 32 Years.

Indianapolis, Ind., Dec. 30.—(AP)—Shoulders thrust back, chin pulled in, and hiding the emotion that was his, Sergt. John Hoover, the oldest soldier in the United States army in point of service, was retired at Fort Benjamin Harrison today.

Belying in looks his 69 years and the hardships of 32 years of the tropics, the trenches, and two wars, the veteran stood proudly at attention as the formal order mustering him out of his life's work was read.

Then, standing on the reviewing stand surrounded by the highest commissioned officers at the post, the old soldier, struggling to keep the tears back, watched the entire 11th infantry pass before him in tribute to his service.

Moved Up a Day.

Sergt. Hoover's retirement was advanced a day because tomorrow is pay day for the troops and officers did not want to interfere with their day through the formality of a review.

Sergt. Hoover, a member of the service company of the 11th infantry, plans to do what so many men of action have done before him—retire, at least temporarily, to the "little place" his sister owns at North Vernon, Ind.

"It's just a little place, but there will be something to do and, anyway, I have a lot of friends down in that part of Indiana I want to visit," Sergt. Hoover said.

Has His Memories.

"I got my medals and my memories of having served with Gen. John J. Pershing in France for 18 months. I have the memories of the Spanish-American war and the men I knew there as well as in the last war. It's hard to break away from the army, but that's just part of being a soldier.

"I was lucky. In the 32 years I was in action I never once was wounded. I haven't even got a mark on me to show for those years. Others were not so fortunate."

Sergt. Hoover has the gold medal of honor for service in the Spanish-American war. He also was given the Liberty medal as a result of his duties in the world war.

WIFE GRANTED DIVORCE AFTER 8 YEAR DISPUTE

After almost eight years of hearings before various judges and a master in chancery, Mrs. Eva P. Igney, 50 years old, 915 Windsor avenue, was granted a divorce yesterday by Superior Judge Oscar F. Nelson from Oscar C. Igney, 57 years old, owner of a burial dress manufacturing plant at 2600 North Western avenue. Mrs. Igney charged cruelty.

In granting the decree, Judge Nelson dismissed a cross bill brought by Igney charging his wife with desertion. The Igneys were married in 1903 and separated in 1929. They have no children.

Attorney Joseph A. Kolb, counsel for Mrs. Igney, explained that the long litigation was due to disputes over property settlement.

Under the decree granted yesterday, Mrs. Igney will receive $100 a month in alimony and $2,000 in a lump sum. Attorney B. F. Bartel, representing Igney, said he would appeal the ruling.

Ex-Policeman Arrested on Bogus Check Charge

Steve O'Neil, 47 years old, 1124 Wilson avenue, a former policeman, who was paroled from the Joliet penitentiary on Oct. 4, was arrested last night at 2516 West Monroe street when Lieut. Thomas O'Hare of the Warren avenue police was informed that he was attempting to pass worthless checks. He admitted he had passed several checks recently and that checks found in his possession were worthless. Arrested with him was William Kyle, 41, 620 North Clark street, who denied being implicated in the check operations.

LORD READING, ONCE VICEROY OF INDIA, DIES

Held Highest Posts in British Politics.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Dec. 30.—The marquess of Reading, Rufus Daniel Isaacs, lawyer, who rose to hold many of his nation's highest positions, died today at 75 years of age in his London home.

With him at death were his second wife, who was his secretary, Miss Stella Charnaud, 37, when he married her in 1931, and his son and heir, by his first marriage, Viscount Erleigh. A chill which the aging statesman contracted Dec. 20 led to his death, the immediate cause being given as heart failure.

Borrowed in America.

Reading's long public career carried him in 1921 into the highest appointive post in the British empire—viceroy of India. He served there until 1926. During the world war he headed the Anglo-French loan mission to America, where he succeeded in borrowing a half billion dollars for the allied cause. Later he returned to the United States as a special envoy and high commissioner and a special ambassador.

His public life accorded him tenure in other high positions. He entered politics in 1900 when he sought election to parliament as a Liberal from Reading. He was defeated, but four years later was elected, and held the seat until 1913, when he became lord chief justice, a post he held until 1921. In 1910 he was made solicitor general, and from 1910 to 1913 was British attorney general, being in H. H. Asquith's cabinet in 1912 and 1913. In 1917 he was a British representative on the supreme war council in Paris. From August to November, 1931, he was foreign secretary in the "interim" national government.

Held Honorary Post.

Of late the marquess had not been active in public life, having held since 1934 the post of constable of Dover castle and lord warden of the Cinque ports, Hastings, Romney, Hythe, Dover, and Sandwich, which allowed him to live in ancient Dover castle.

Honoring him his government conferred upon him many titles, baron in 1914, viscount in 1916, earl in 1917, and first marquess of Reading in 1926.

Characterizing Lord Reading, Harold Laski wrote: "He has probably not lost his temper for forty years. He is deliberately calm."

Reading was the son of a wealthy London merchant, but as a youth ran away, became a cabin boy for two years, and threatened to settle in America. Previously he had gained a good education. Returning, he tried the British Stock exchange, but decided to study law. His parents objected, urging a business career instead, but finally relented.

UNCLE JERRY COMBS.

Jenkins, Ky., Dec. 30.—[Special.]—Uncle Jerry Combs, entering his 107th year in his home at Troublesome Creek on the Knott county border, will celebrate New Year's Day in the old home by giving a big dinner to his many friends. Neighbor women have already started the work getting ready for the big occasion.

It will be one of the real big days for Troublesome Creek. Since Aug. 11 Uncle Jerry has been getting on toward his 107th year. The old family Bible is authority for this.

PARENTS AND 4 CHILDREN DIE OF BURNS IN HOME

Cuba City, Wis., Dec. 30. — (AP) — Caught behind a locked door when fire wrecked their farm home today, five persons were fatally burned.

Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Dent and four of their children, Donna Mae, 6; Morrill, 13; Robert, 3, and Betty Jane, 11, died late today. The fifth child, Dorrance, 8, was said to be near death in the Cunningham hospital at Platteville.

The blaze, starting this morning, quickly filled their home, near here, with smoke. In their excitement members of the family thought only of the locked front door as a means of escape. The bedroom from which they fled had scarcely been touched by the flames when the fire department arrived. No one in the family had thought of fleeing through the windows.

R. D. Eustice, head of the Cuba City fire department, said, however, the victims may have been overcome by smoke while trying to open the front door. When help arrived the clothing had been burned off every member of the family.

KIPLING MAKES NO EVENT OF 70TH BIRTHDAY

BURWASH, Sussex, England, Dec. 30.—(AP)—Rudyard Kipling, virtually a recluse, observed his 70th birthday today in this little village on the Sussex Downs.

He spent the day in his 18th century greystone house with his American born wife and their daughter. Only a few intimate friends were in, for the writer maintained his policy of rigorously avoiding publicity.

Kipling has produced little in the past 10 years. His latest poem was "The King and the Sea," published last July in celebration of King George's silver jubilee.

1,172,000 Field Museum Visitors Counted in Year

More than 1,172,000 persons visited the Field Museum of Natural History during 1935 it was announced yesterday by Stephen C. Simms, director of the museum. Of the total 73,700 visitors, or less than 5 per cent, paid the 25 cent admission fee charged on certain days Mr. Simms said.

SOMETHING OUGHT TO BE DONE ABOUT THIS

Called Result of Army and Navy Propaganda.

Second of a series of six dispatches on the status and purposes of Japan by an assistant Washington correspondent of The Tribune who, after visiting the Philippines, went to Tokio early this month to study conditions and ambitions there.

BY CHESLY MANLY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, Dec. 9.—[By Mail.]—Will there be a war between Japan and the United States?

This question is dismissed with scornful smiles by Tokio foreign office spokesmen and attachés of the American embassy, as if it were too ridiculous to warant an answer. Yet the great majority of the Japanese people, according to competent observers of public opinion believe that a war with the United States is inevitable.

The belief of the people is attributed to the militarists, who must have public support for their increasingly large army and navy appropriations and who obtain it by spreading propaganda that the United States will attack Japan. Before each military budget fight the Japanese language newspapers are filled with statements from admirals and generals ascribing aggressive policies in the Pacific and sinister motives to the United States.

Charts Show Naval Progress.

Department stores display large charts showing the progress of the Japanese naval construction program, reaching its treaty limit in 1937, and that of the United States, with a goal of 1942. At 1942 the Japanese curve drops far below to the 5-3 ratio and the implication is that Japan will not permit such a disparity in naval strength to come about.

Employing these methods, the militarists, after a bitter fight with Finance Minister Korekiyo Takahashi, have just succeeded in getting a national defense appropriation of 1 billion 60 million yen, the largest in Japanese history. This is 46.6 per cent of the total 1936-1937 fiscal year budget of 2 billion 272 million yen. [The yen is worth about 29 cents.]

The newspapers now are filled with details of the London naval armament conference, including radio-telephone interviews with the Japanese delegates, and there are daily diatribes on the perverseness of the United States and Great Britain in refusing to grant parity to Japan.

Claim U. S.-British Alliance.

The military leaders believe, or at least profess to, that the United States is in secret alliance with Great Britain to coöperate with their fleets in the Pacific and block Japan's expansion in the far east. They say the United States fleet was moved from the Atlantic to the Pacific after the shelling of Shanghai and the Stimson note in 1932, with the understanding that England would stand by the United States in the Atlantic.

Moreover, they say England would not have moved her Pacific fleet from the China coast to Singapore and Malta when Italy invaded Ethiopia without the assurance of United States coöperation in the event of an emergency. They note that Britain now has only two cruisers, six destroyers and six submarines at the Hongkong naval base, while the thirty warships of the United States Asiatic fleet are stationed near by, at Manila.

Japanese officials, in their protestations of good will toward the United States, assert that the Japanese people admire and imitate the Americans more than any other people. There are ample evidences of the truth of this assertion, but indications at the same time that fear and envy accompany the admiration and imitation. The music stores on Tokio's Ginza street entice large crowds with American jaz and popular songs and there are more American than Japanese style restaurants on the thoroughfare. American movie and baseball stars are heroes in Japan.

Copy U. S. Machines, Processes.

While these superficial manifestations of Americanism are being copied by the youths of the land, Japanese industrialists, encouraged and subsidized by the imperial government, are copying processes and machines and airplane engines with a fury of energy that signifies more than admiration for the United States. The Japanese mentality has never shown any particular genius for invention, but it can copy the most elaborate and intricate machines made in the United States, often doing a better job at turning them out and at far less cost.

The air force is the admitted weak spot in Japan's national defense, and probably would induce some caution in going to war at present with another great power. Most of her 1,850 planes—compared with Russia's estimated 3,500, America's 2,060—are obsolete. Moreover, her aviators are inferior to those of any other country, including China.

The Japanese mentality is not suited to flying and it requires so much effort to train a pilot to operate his plane that no attempt is made to instruct him in mechanics. The mechanic stays on the ground, and if something goes wrong with the motor that's the end of the pilot and plane. Army and navy plane crashes in Japan average about two a week and the fatalities are estimated at 150 a year, although no official figures are available.

Aside from all questions of her military strength and the boasts of her generals and admirals about being ready to fight any country that interferes with her "manifest destiny," it appears extremely doubtful that Japan would gratuitously attack the United States. She has her hands full at home and in Asia. Her treasury has been drained by enormous investments in Manchukuo and the national debt, accumulating at the rate of 800 million yen a year, has passed the 10 billion mark.

Japan has just begun to make Formosa pay, while the international balance with Corea is still adverse. The war supply industries are booming at home, with huge orders from the army and navy, and there are other evidences of increasing industrial prosperity, but there is widespread distress and increasing discontent in the farming communities. Japan has a serious agricultural problem and is considering the payment of subsidies to farmers, just as she has subsidized her industries.

The question then is whether Japan's activities in China will bring about a situation that will force a war with the United States, Great Britain, Russia, or other countries. Experts believe that the most likely possibility of such a development centers in the plans of Gen. Chiang Kai-shek, military and political dictator of the Nanking government, to resist further territorial encroachments in North China.

Expands Chinese Air Strength.

Gen. Chiang, it is known, has turned his mind to long range bombing planes, supposedly with an eye on the great Kobe-Osaka industrial district of Japan. Already he has 47 up to date American bombers, with a cruising range of 1,700 miles and carrying 1,100 pound bombs, made in China. He is now planning even longer range bombers, while an American factory at Hangchow is turning out a training plane a day and more than 100 fighting planes a year.

If the Chinese should drop their 1,100 pound bombs on Osaka, or even upon the Japanese barracks at Shanghai, the experts believe Japan would send her whole fleet into the Whangpoo river and demolish Shanghai. The shelling of the international settlement at Shanghai in 1932 precipitated the Stimson note, which the Japanese still remember and resent with the same bitterness that marks their resentment of the Japanese exclusion law. A repetition of the Shanghai incident on a larger scale, it is believed, might lead to far more serious consequences.

From a longer range viewpoint, the experts see the possibility of a new lineup of the powers, with Japan, Germany and Italy aligned against England, the United States, France and Russia. Japan, Germany and Italy are non-members of the league of nations, overpopulated and seeking territorial expansion. The league members have all the territory they want and seek to maintain the status quo.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, Dec. 31.—[Tuesday.]—A Japanese naval spokesman was quoted today as declaring that if the United States carries out the plan of Secretary of the Navy Claude A. Swanson for a naval air base at Point San Mateo, San Francisco, it will constitute a grave danger to Japan. He said the danger lies not so much in the threat of a trans-Pacific attack as in the gigantic development of a military air force on the Pacific coast.

[Last Saturday Mr. Swanson announced that a naval board appointed by the commander of the 12th district at San Francisco had surveyed the possibility of establishing a naval air base at Point San Mateo. The secretary of the navy said the development of an air base on San Francisco bay is urgent.]

While Mr. Swanson's disclosure was no secret to the Japanese navy and hitherto had been regarded as not likely to be a direct menace to Japan, Tokio has changed its mind since the successful flights of the trans-Pacific Clipper planes.

"Who can say," the naval spokesman said, "that some day war planes will not span the Pacific?"

SPANISH CABINET RESIGNS AFTER SERVING 16 DAYS

Expect Forced Call for New Elections.

MADRID, Dec. 30.—(AP)—The 16-day government of Manuel Portela Valladares resigned today almost in blows but tonight the premier succeeded in forming a left-center cabinet.

Political observers said the new group was completely lacking in parliamentary support. It is made up of close personal friends of the premier and President Zamora, and includes four members of the old cabinet.

Wrangle Over Election.

Differences over preparations for the coming congressional elections caused the collapse. Spain thus was unable to reply to Great Britain's question of whether this country would come to her defense if she is attacked in the Mediterranean by Italy.

The government, headed by Premier Manuel Portela Valladares, was the 15th to resign during the second republic. Belief grew in informed circles that the president still would sign a decree dissolving the cortes and that special elections would be called for March 1. The old cabinet approved a dissolution decree before resigning.

Attacks President.

It was learned the cabinet meeting became a stormy one when Joaquin Pablo Blanco, minister of agriculture, made a bitter personal attack upon President Alcala Zamora.

Premier Portela came to the defense of the president. One minister said afterward:

"Words seldom heard at a meeting of ministers were exchanged and it was with difficulty that we prevented the minister of agriculture and the premier from coming to blows."

HEAD OF ARMOUR INSTITUTE TELLS PROGRAM OF 1936

Armour Institute of Technology is now planning new and distinct types of study to equip its students for the modern era of airplanes, lightweight alloys, and streamlined trains, according to the annual report issued yesterday by President Willard E. Hotchkiss.

A school of aeronautics is one of the institute's 1936 ambitions, said Dr. Hotchkiss, who laid stress on the plans to build up courses and research in the fields of metallurgy, aeronautics, air conditioning and refrigeration, automotive engineering, sanitary engineering, and soil mechanics.

Some 34 years ago Armour institute was one of the trail blazers in chemical engineering, now a field of wide opportunity. "Armour has consistently maintained its leadership in this field since the department was established in 1901," says the president's report. "Because of this leadership and of the extraordinary development of chemical industries, enrollment in the department is higher than it ever has been.

"Armour was one of the first schools in America to offer advanced courses in aerodynamics and airplane design. In view of the interest which men of substance in Chicago have in this frontier field of transportation, it would be peculiarly appropriate to develop a well-rounded school of aeronautics at Armour. Such a school properly endowed should have every opportunity to become a center of aeronautical teaching and research.

Sound Box 1012

The story of the tragic Iroquois theater fire, which claimed 605 lives, was retold again yesterday in a special ceremony in the city council chambers commemorating the 32d anniversary of the disaster.

At 3:19 o'clock yesterday afternoon, box 1012, that of the old Iroquois theater on Randolph street, was sounded over a fire alarm system set up in the council chambers.

Assistant Corporation Counsel Quinn O'Brien, who represented Mayor Kelly at the ceremony, described the scene of the fire. He was in the offices of Fire Marshal William Musham when the alarm was sounded in 1903 and was one of the first to reach the fire, he said. He recounted the heroism of the firemen who rescued many of the 1,900 persons trapped in the theater.

Division Fire Marshal Patrick Egan, who was a fire lieutenant at the time of the diseaster, and Police Captain Joseph Johnson, a patrolman at the time, also spoke.

EARL W. MASDEN WINS CUSTODY OF SON WEEK-ENDS

Caroline Masden agreed yesterday to let her ex-husband, Earl W. Masden, 1400 Lake Shore drive, have custody of their son, Earl Jr., 14 years old, on week-ends. Therefore Superior Judge Joseph Sabash, on the motion of Attorney Norman Becker, counsel for Masden, dismissed a citation against Mrs. Masden for contempt of court for failing to allow the boy to spend Christmas with his father.

Masden has paid his former wife $22,600 in alimony since their divorce 13 years ago. Attorney Becker said yesterday he had heard that Mrs. Masden remarried shortly after the divorce, that her second husband died about 12 years ago and, if this were true, Mrs. Masden should return some of the alimony. Judge Sabath ordered a hearing on this new evidence next Friday.

FILIPINO FAMILY OF THREE KILLED; CALLED WITCHES

MANILA, Dec. 31.—(Tuesday.)—Suspected of practicing witchcraft, a father, mother, and a daughter were beaten to death in a northern Mindanao village recently, the Philippine constabulary learned today.

Victims of the triple slaying, which occurred Dec. 22 in the village of San Roque, were Santiago Vite, 50; his wife, and their daughter, Isabel, 12.

Hated by the villagers, who thought they were witches, the Vite family lived in isolation. A gang of men fired their house a week ago Sunday, but the family escaped. The men then set upon them with clubs. The constabulary reported leaders of the gang had been arrested. Others were being trailed through the mountains.

Reds Lift Bans on Middle Class Attending Schools

MOSCOW, Dec. 30.—(AP)—Regulations which have barred children of "nontoilers" and disfranchised persons from soviet high schools and colleges were lifted today by order of the government. Families of former Kulaks [well to do farmers], merchants, and members of the political opposition will chiefly benefit. The decree of the council of peoples commissars explained the restrictions are "no longer necessary."

EDITH M'CORMICK ESTATE'S ASSETS ARE TOLD IN FULL

BY SEYMOUR KORMAN.

A current accounting of the estate of the late Edith Rockefeller McCormick will be presented this morning to Oscar S. Caplan, assistant to Probate Judge John F. O'Connell. The accounting, prepared by the Chicago Title and Trust company, as executor of the estate, discloses the cash on hand to be $798,328 and lists other assets—personal property and real estate—which have not yet been liquidated.

Claims allowed against the estate since Mrs. McCormick's death on Aug. 25, 1932, total more than $2,700,000, but nearly all this amount remains unpaid. The executor cannot distribute funds at hand until liquidation has been completed and all claims have been finally adjudicated. A final accounting in the estate is not expected for two more years.

All of Assets Listed.

In addition to the $798,328 now held by the estate, the accounting lists the following assets:

1. Goods and chattels, including books, heirlooms, oriental rugs and tapestries. Appraised value, $272,224.

2. Beneficial shares, totaling 52,320, of the Edith Rockefeller McCormick real estate trust. Value unknown until reorganization and litigation is concluded.

3. Serial gold bonds in the principal amount of $409,000 on a first mortgage on the Sheridan-Aldine Building corporation, 3300 Lake Shore drive. Under a recent reorganization these bonds will be exchanged for $235,000 of new bonds, all of a new preferred stock issue and one-half of the common stock. Exact value unknown but believed to be approximately the amount of the original bonds.

$263,000 of Iowa Hotel Bonds.

4. First mortgage gold bonds in the principal amount of $263,000 of the First Avenue holding company, controling the Hotel Roosevelt in Cedar Rapids, Ia. Value unknown.

5. Claims for $145,547 against the Edith Rockefeller McCormick real estate trust. Indeterminate value till litigation is ended.

6. Equity in Mrs. McCormick's house at 1000 Lake Shore drive. There are two mortgages totaling $500,000 against the property and the value of the equity will depend on what the house brings if sold.

7. Equity in three story building at 118 East Oak street, west of the town house. There is a mortgage of $57,500 on the property and the value of the equity depends on sale price.

8. Villa Turicum, Mrs. McCormick's estate in Lake Forest. Free of encumbrances except Lake county taxes. Value depends on what can be realized in a sale.

The total amount of cash received by the executor since liquidation began was $1,053,823. Of this sum $255,495 was disbursed, leaving the $798,328 on hand. The principal item in the disbursement was $158,683 for administration expenses, including fees to the executor and the firm of Cutting, Moore & Sidley, attorneys for the estate.

Included in the cash realized was $600,000 from the sale of two of Mrs. McCormick's necklaces, one of emeralds and the other of pearls. The identity of the purchaser has been carefully guarded and does not appear in the Probate court records.

How Will Divides Estate.

In her will Mrs. McCormick bequeathed five-twelfths of her estate to her close associate, Edwin C. Krenn; four-twelfths to her daughter, Mrs. Muriel Hubbard; two-twelfths to her other daughter, Mrs. Max Oser; and one-twelfth to her son, Fowler McCormick.

The three children also share equally in a 10 million dollar trust fund set up for Mrs. McCormick by her father, John D. Rockefeller Sr. The Appellate division of the New York Supreme court upheld this distribution of the trust fund last Friday, denying the claim of Mrs. Hubbard for four-sevenths of the fund.

The Appellate branch also overruled the claims of assignees of Krenn for a large portion of the fund, holding that, according to the terms of the trust, only Mrs. McCormick's children or their direct descendants could share in it.

RADIO ENABLES POLICE TO MAKE 14,000 ARRESTS

During the first eleven and a half months of 1935, the Chicago and suburban police squad cars, equipped with the radios, made 14,325 arrests at or near the scenes of crimes, according to the annual report prepared yesterday by Capt. William Killeen, head of the radio and broadcast department.

The 188 city squad cars operating on the the police radio received 244,570 messages. A total of 34,140 were sent to those suburbs whose squads receive instructions via Chicago's radio.

Emmett Evans, chief identification inspector, announced yesterday that the bureau of identification established a record this year. The bureau identified as possessors of criminal records more than 47 per cent of the 42,184 persons who came under its examination. Even the national identification bureau at Washington, which has access to all records in the country, can average no more than 46 per cent, according to Mr. Evans.

Philippine Police Nab 11 Radicals to Halt Revolt

MANILA, P. I., Dec. 30.—(AP)—Secret police arrested 11 known radical leaders today in an attempt to head off a rumored uprising today or tomorrow of the extremist Sakdal party. Today was Rizal day, commemorating the execution of the Filipino patriot, José Rizal, by the Spaniards in 1896 for alleged conspiracy.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

QUEBEC, Que., Dec. 30.—Fifty fishermen and their families escaped drowning in the St. Lawrence river off Three Rivers yesterday when the icebreaker Lady Grey swept through ice fields and swamped 40 fishing cabins. The huts were built on the ice.

IL DUCE DEFENDS 'PAUSE' IN WAR; ITALY SHOCKED

Insists Mountains Have Checked His Army.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, Dec. 30.—Premier Mussolini, presiding over the last cabinet meeting of the year, today explained why Marshal Pietro Badoglio, Italian commander-in-chief in Ethiopia, has been unable to advance against the enemy.

A communique summarizing his statement said:

"All wars, particularly colonial wars, absolutely must have pauses especially in so difficult and mountainous a region as Tigre province."

The words dampened the hopes of all Italians. It was the first official admission that the war must drag on for months. The growing death toll of Italian soldiers also is a source of great anxiety. The public no longer believes the campaign will be a walkover for Italy. Those individuals who first prophesied a decisive victory by the new year, are beginning to wonder how far the troops will have to advance and at what cost in dead and wounded before the spring rains enforce a cessation of hostilities.

Prepare for "Future Advance."

In addition to explaining the "pause" in the Italian advance, Mussolini's communique to the nation said:

"On the northern front our troops are concentrating and consolidating their positions, which in some parts are 112 miles from the old frontier of Eritrea. The quick advance achieved in the first thirty days now demands complex and difficult preparation to guarantee the future advance of several hundred thousand men. The area held is one-seventh of that of all Italy and lies 250 miles from our base at Massaua.

"In the engagements which took place between Dec. 15 and Dec. 22, the most important since hostilities began, the Italian and Eritrean troops have given superb proof of their ardor and courage."

Italians Disappointed.

This is the first time the public has been informed of the extent of Italy's occupation of northern Ethiopia. The people had imagined from scanning the war maps which are on sale in kiosks that a vast territory already had been added to Italy's colonial empire.

Silence concerning activities on the southern front also was interpreted as a bad omen.

Mussolini's communique opened with the statement that Il Duce was not to blame for the failure of the Franco-British peace plan which, he said, "fell far short of satisfying Italy's minimum needs."

A Cheering Note.

The afternoon newspapers attempted to put a bright note into Mussolini's gloomy statement. They carried headlines stating that estimates for the ordinary budget for 1936 and 1937 show a surplus of nearly $1,670,000, but the cost of the Ethiopian war was not included in these figures. The reason given for omitting them was that "the extent of the expenditure could not be determined." The estimates originally allowed for a deficit of one billion, 635 million dollars.

The treasury heads the list of budgetary expenditures with nearly 810 million dollars. Interest on the ordinary state loans and on loans for prosecution of the war are its principal items. It is understood that increased revenue of about 250 million dollars is due to the prosperity of the war industries and a slight inflation.

The government explained that the deficit in the operation of the state railways, originally estimated at about 75 million dollars will be wiped out by cutting pensions of railway employes and establishing higher freight rates and increasing taxes on road transport.

Perfects Control of Business

ROME, Dec. 30.—(AP)—Premier Mussolini showed today he foresaw a long economic seige of Italy by taking new steps to perfect his industrial organization controlling all of the nation's business and labor. This control will be exercised through twenty-two corporations. An initial meeting of the corporations was called for Feb. 29.

Protests Use of Poison Gas.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ADDIS ABABA, Dec. 30.—Emperor Haile Selassie today sent a telegram to the league of nations, protesting against the burning of churches, the massacring of civilians and the use of poison gas by Italian troops.

Ethiopian troops regard the use of poison gas, the burning of churches and the pillaging of villages by Italians as signs that the retreating invaders are defeated. The Ethiopians argue poison gas would not be used if the Italians could fight them on even terms.

It was reported here that the Ethiopian offensive on the northern front is progressing. The Ethiopians appear to be determined to drive the Italians out of the region of Abbi Addi, capital of Tigre province. It was reported they already have captured Agula, northeast of Makale, which is occupied by the Italians.

Since the defeat of the Italians at Abbi Addi, native troops are reported to be deserting the invading armies in large numbers. Consequently, it is expected here that the Italian command will be compelled to bring up white troops.

French Leaders Bolt Party.

PARIS, Dec. 30.—(AP)—A political crisis over French foreign policy in the Italo-Ethiopian war led to the resignations from the Republican group in the chamber of deputies of two of its leaders, former Premier Andre Tardieu and Paul Reynaud.

Reynaud, an ardent devaluationist, was president of the party and Tardieu a former president. Reynaud said "opposition from political friends of the government's foreign policy" forced him to give up his post.

Tardieu charged Great Britain alone with responsibility for "the frightful confusion of the present situation." He said he quit the party because Reynaud voted against Premier Pierre Laval Saturday although Reynaud urged that France take Britain's side against Italy. Laval's foreign policy was supported by the chamber of deputies in a debate on that day.

ADDIS ABABA, Dec. 30.—(AP)—A war romance culminated today in the marriage of Harriet Skemp of Dubuque, Ia., to Sigurd Nystrom in the Sudan Interior mission at Akakal, a suburb of Addis Ababa.

Nystrom was born in Asmara, Eritrea, of Swedish missionary parents. The couple met while Nystrom was acting as medical adviser to Ras Kassa, one of the Ethiopian commanders on the northern front.

DAUGHTERS WILL NAME WARSHIPS FOR WAR HEROES

Bremerton, Wash., Dec. 30.—(AP)—Daughters of two civil war heroes will christen two destroyers tomorrow in the first double launching at the Puget Sound navy yard.

The destroyers will be named for the late Commodore George Hamilton Perkins and the late Commodore William B. Cushing.

Miss Katherine A. Cushing of Fredonia, N. Y., rested tonight, suffering a cold and under a doctor's care, but insistent she will feel fit for tomorrow's ceremony.

She will wear a twisted gold necklace with a pendent anchor, fashioned from her father's watch chain and charm. She will be escorted by her sister, Miss Marie Cushing, also of Fredonia, who stood sponsor to a previous Cushing namesake destroyer in 1915.

Mrs. Isabel Anderson, world war Red Cross nurse and heroine, arrived from Brookline, Mass., in a private railroad car to christen the other destroyer—honoring her father, Commodore Perkins. She christened a previous destroyer Perkins prior to the world war.

CLAIM AUSTRIAN CHIEF RETIRING TO MONASTERY

VIENNA, Dec. 30.—(AP)—Chancellor Kurt Schuschnigg, whose wife was killed in an automobile accident five months ago, was unofficially reported tonight to be considering retirement to a monastery.

Members of the Austrian federal diet said the chancellor is contemplating the move, but the official press bureau of the chancellory denied there was any basis for the report.

Members of the diet said Schuschnigg's reasons would be the tragic death of his wife and the fact that he himself was injured when their automobile struck a tree near Linz. Members of the cabinet, these informants said, are trying to persuade the chancellor to remain in office until the international situation is eased. Schuschnigg has been chancellor since the assassination of Engelbert Dollfuss 18 months ago.

VESSEL FOUND STRANDED WITH CREW MISSING

ST. JOHN'S, Newfoundland, Dec. 30.—(AP)—A mystery schooner, the Ada Maud Best, lay stranded today at Lears cove, near Cape St. Mary's.

Loaded with a cargo of fish and oil, she was found by settlers there Saturday but there was no sign of her crew.

Fears were expressed that the seamen had been forced to take to the boats in a blizzard Thursday night and that the vessel drifted ashore unmanned. No word has reached here of a crew being picked up at sea, however.

27 Fined $400,000 for Dealing in Italian Lire

TRIESTE, Italy, Dec. 30.—(AP)—The government fined 27 bankers a total of 5,000,000 lire [about $400,000] today after they were convicted of irregular exchange activities. Seven were sentenced to long terms in prison. One Albanian was expelled from Italy, and two private exchange banks were closed.

DASH OF BELGIAN KING TO LONDON LINKED TO ITALY

Paris Hears He Told of War Danger.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Dec. 30.—A dramatic but apparently authenticated account given THE TRIBUNE here tonight of the mysterious visit which King Leopold of the Belgians recently paid to King George of Great Britain definitly links it with the sanctions campaign against Italy, despite official denials from London.

It was a personal plea made by King Leopold to King George as a brother king at the beginning of December which was chiefly responsible for the ill-fated peace proposals. King Leopold's new gesture following the collapse of the proposals was much more urgent, it is understood.

Umberto Bares Secrets.

King Leopold, it was reported, made the trip to England to communicate to the British monarch certain information he had received from his brother-in-law, Crown Prince Umberto of Italy. This was so grave that he did not dare entrust it to regular diplomatic channels. There was strong reason to believe that Crown Prince Umberto, in communicating with his brother-in-law, acted without the knowledge or approval of the Fascist government and that the information communicated includes facts about Italy's desperate situation which Premier Mussolini does not want even Italy's friends to know about.

The nature of the message which Leopold brought to King George of course is not known. It is known that Leopold's earlier intervention—in the form of a confidential letter to the British ruler—simply called attention to the gravity of the internal situation in Italy. He implored King George to use his influence to end the war in Africa and call off sanctions so as to avoid a revolution which would sweep away not only the Fascist regime, but the Italian monarchy as well.

Visit of High Importance.

In view of the hopeless diplomatic deadlock now prevailing and the political impossibility of formulating new peace proposals resembling the Franco-British scheme, it is presumed King Leopold would not have wasted his time merely to repeat in stronger terms the appeal which he knows King George cannot answer.

Consequently, the two theories formulated here explain this extraordinary visit, though both frankly are nothing but speculation.

They are:

1. That King Leopold, through family channels, obtained concrete information on Mussolini's war plans and rushed to warn the British king.

2. That a movement is on foot in Italy to supplant Mussolini or at least force him to change his policies and the Italian royal house, through King Leopold, wants to know what support it can count on from Britain.

Germany Cuts Weight of Gold in Wedding Rings

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Dec. 30.—Brides and bridegrooms in Germany must exchange smaller and less costly wedding rings in the future. In order to economize on gold, the department of precious metals today issued a decree restricting the size of wedding rings and the amount of fine gold contained in them. Henceforth, the rings must only be made of eight carat gold. The ruling is part of a campaign to overcome the nation's shortage in raw materials.

Sees Breathing Spell

Senator and Mrs. William Gibbs McAdoo of California called on Mayor Kelly in his offices at the city hall yesterday as they stopped off in Chicago en route to Washington. "I think that Chicago has a fine and able executive in Mayor Kelly," the senator told interviewers. "I believe that there will be a breathing spell in congress without important legislation."

SENTENCED TO DIE FEB. 14 FOR STOOL PIGEON'S MURDER

Joseph Rappaport, 30 years old, 3430 Douglas boulevard, who was convicted of the murder of Max Dent, a government informer who was to have testified against Rappaport in a narcotics case, was denied a new trial yesterday by Judge Joseph Burke in the Criminal court and was sentenced to die in the electric chair on Feb. 14.

Attorney W. W. Smith, who came into the case for Rappaport after the guilty verdict had been returned, sought the new trial on the ground that the state had withheld witnesses. Judge Burke declared that the witnesses were not eyewitnesses and that therefore no necessary evidence was suppressed.

"I am satisfied," Judge Burke said, "the jury could do no other than bring in a guilty verdict."

Attorney Smith said he would appeal the case.

LAVA FLOW OPENS NEW DANGER OF FOREST FIRES

HILO, Hawaii, Dec. 30.—(AP)—Burning trees in its advance, Mauna Loa's river of flaming lava rolled steadily but with diminished force tonight toward Hilo's water reservoir, three miles away. The advance caused fear that unless rain fell soon large forest fires would result.

Dr. Thomas A. Jaggar, government volcanologist, said earlier there were indications an army air bombing attack Friday had overcome the threatening flow toward the reservoir. The movement slowed to about forty feet an hour. The red-hot slag traveled about 200 feet during the night toward Hilo, 14 miles distant at the seashore.

Fifty men under L. W. Bryan, assistant forester, patroled grass land and forest reserve areas to prevent serious fires. No new lava could be seen pouring from the volcano.

SOUTH GERMANY FEELS 2 SEVERE EARTH TREMORS

BERLIN, Dec. 30.—(AP)—About 25,000 square miles of Baden, Wuerttemberg, Hesse and parts of Bavaria experienced two sharp earth tremors, each of from two to three seconds duration, early today. Scientists said they were the most severe shocks in 24 years. The center of the movement apparently was in the Rhine valley in the vicinity of Rastatt. In Pirmasens walls were split, windows cracked, and the suburban population fled into the open fearing their homes would collapse. The tremors coincided with a sudden thaw in the mountains. No casualties were reported.

Nazis to Shelter Girls Without Homes.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Dec. 30.—German radios tonight urged all maids who will be compelled to leave Jewish households Jan. 1 under the provisions of the Nazi anti-Jewish laws and who have failed to find new jobs to report to night shelters for the homeless. Officials declared the shelters will assign quarters to unemployed girls.

Foreign Jews living in Germany also were forced to dismiss servants under 35 years of age, although some are still negotiating for exemptions. An American doctor, 60 years old and who has lived here more than 31 years, applied for exemption. He was told his servants could remain only until the end of January.

Schacht Fights New Measures.

A number of anti-Jewish measures will go into effect on New Year's day. Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, president of the Reichsbank and minister of economics, is attempting to induce the Nazis to drop the measures which he fears will harm German business.

Jewish traveling salesmen were warned their special licenses, allowing them to continue their activities, will not be renewed on Jan. 1. They total more than 25,000, of whom 10,000 have headquarters in Berlin alone.

Business men appealed to Schacht. They pointed out that business is bound to suffer as a result of the measure. Schacht replied that he is negotiating on behalf of the traveling salesmen with Wilhelm Frick, minister of interior.

A large number of Jewish widows of German soldiers killed in the world war—widows who had been granted cheaper municipal apartments by previous governments—received notice they must vacate their homes by April 1. They appealed to Gen. Werner von Blomberg, minister of war, and pointed out that Jewish veterans and widows of Jews killed in action were given to understand they would be treated differently than other Jews. In a number of cases the war office replied that "the matter is of no concern to this office."

Business Leaders to Leave.

After the Nazis confiscated the munitions manufacturing plant and part of the fortune of the Jewish family of Simson, on the pretext that it made too large a profit, most leading Jewish business men began to make final preparations for leaving the country.

Paul Hirsch, "iron king of Frankfurt," who controls 20 per cent of the iron tube industry in the reich, distributed a Christmas bonus among his employes. Then he informed them this was the last bonus they would receive from him. He told them he planned to leave Germany and would dissolve the firm in the new year.

The Frankfurter Zeitung, which still retains seven Jewish editors and contributors under a special license issued by the Nazi chamber of culture, will be compelled to dismiss them Jan. 1.

A number of Jewish business concerns which sought to renew their leases were informed that leases to Jews would not be renewed for 1937.

Prominent Frankfurt Jews, who financed and organized the Frankfurt Golf club, were told they will not be allowed to enter the club or play on the course. Their money was not refunded.

Ethiopian Officer, Taken Prisoner in War, Escapes

ATHENS, Greece, Dec. 30.—(AP)—Lieut. Zulmati Schlomo, believed to be the first Ethiopian officer to escape after capture by the Italians, reached here today en route back to his native land. Wounded and captured in the early days of the Ethiopian war, Lieut. Schlomo, a Falasha or Ethiopian Jew, was taken to a hospital at Trieste. Barely recovered, he made his escape and came to Athens by way of Belgrade.

DIES OF GUNSHOT WOUND.

ALABAMA SEEKS TO LURE 'YANK' TOURISTS SOUTH

Scenery, Historic Points Cited in Drive.

BY HAL FOUST.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Montgomery, Ala., Dec. 30.—[Special.]—The Stars and Stripes are flying from the dome of the Alabama capitol this afternoon where first was raised the stars and bars of the confederacy. Inside the old building, the birthplace of the rebellion, state officials this morning were conferring on how to lure more Yankee motorists to these parts.

Today there were visitors from the north reading the inscription on the capitol steps on a metal star that marks the place where Jefferson Davis was inaugurated president of the southern states on Feb. 18, 1861. But there aren't enough of these tourists to satisfy business interests of Alabama, who are beginning to appreciate the profits to be derived from recreational travelers.

Seek to Attract Tourists.

An Alabama tourist association has been organized and this year the highway department is also contributing funds to advertise for visitors from the north. The promotion effects are directed particularly toward diverting travel from Chicagoland en route to Florida or to gulf coast resorts by way of Alabama highways.

Alabama now has highways that warrant such promotion. The last detour has been removed from an all pavement route between Nashville and Florida by way of Birmingham and Montgomery. The markers are 5 BUSHELS SEEMS TO BE SO SMALL IN THESE TRYING DAYS FOR ALL.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 30.—[Special.]—A potato set as a solitaire in a ring, appropriately decked with holiday ribbon, is the Christmas gift of Representative Ralph Church, Republican, of Evanston, Ill., to various Washingtonians.

Mr. Church's accompanying letter, mimeographed in green ink and decorated with poinsettias, gibes at the potato act forced through the last session against the protests of the administration and refers to the potato as a "jewel of the empire." The letter closes with this jingle:

But don't omit to stamp it
If you want to live to be old.
So long potato strings
Enter new potato rings—
Five bushels only you may raise
During these bughouse "buggy" days.

U. S. 31 from Nashville to Montgomery and thence on U. S. 231 to Marianna, Fla.

The majority of Chicagoans drive south on U. S. 41 through Nashville, Chattanooga, and Atlanta to Florida. To Miami from Chicago over this route is 1,460 miles. By way of Birmingham and Montgomery the distance is 68 miles farther.

Scenic Beauty Cited.

"For this small additional mileage," said Perkin Prewitt, secretary of the tourists' association, "the traveler is invited to scenery and points of historical interest that are new to many northern motorists."

The Tribune roadster, having covered both the routes to Florida this month, is leaving here this afternoon for Mobile and other gulf coast cities. Because the neighboring state of Mississippi has been derelict in completing a north and south pavement, Alabama is able to make a strong bid for this travel from Chicagoland to these destinations.

AL SMITH DENIES HE'S OFTEN ASKED TO WHITE HOUSE

Accepted Only Bid Ever Received, He Asserts.

New York, Dec. 30.—(AP)—Alfred E. Smith bluntly leveled an accusation of falsity at a purported White House spokesman today, precipitating a tempest involving himself and Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt.

In a bristling birthday statement, the former New York governor characterized as "false" a purported assertion of an anonymous White House spokesman that he had been invited frequently to the presidential home, but that he always had declined.

His words came as an outgrowth of an invitation extended by Mrs. Roosevelt asking him to be the President's house guest when he came to Washington Jan. 25 to address the American Liberty league—an invitation Smith has turned down.

White House Takes Notice.

Reverberations from his statement were felt promptly. The White House took notice of his allegation in a brief formal statement attributing to Mrs. Roosevelt herself the only words ever spoken on the subject of White House hospitality relating to Smith.

Even as Smith was speaking in New York, Mrs. Roosevelt was explaining at her regular press conference in Washington that she had received a "nice note" from the former governor declining the invitation.

"I worked with Gov. Smith in every state campaign and when he ran for President," the first lady said, according to the White House statement quoting her from a stenographic transcript.

Ely Pledges Smith Support.

Former Gov. Joseph B. Ely of Massachusetts simultaneously declared he would support Smith for the Democratic presidential nomination in 1936 if Smith became a candidate.

Smith had no comment to offer on former Gov. Ely's pledge of presidential support.

Meeting interviewers in his office, Smith was immediately questioned concerning his refusal to spend a night at the White House in response to Mrs. Roosevelt's invitation.

"I notice by the public press," Smith replied, "that a spokesman for the President is responsible for the following statement:

"'This is not the first time that Mr. Smith has been invited to be an overnight guest of the White House. At least once a year Mr. Smith has been invited to pass either a night or a week-end there, but he never saw fit to accept even one of these invitations.'

Lone Invitation Accepted.

"Since the inauguration of President Roosevelt I received one invitation, through Secretary McIntyre, when it was known that I was to attend a meeting of the trustees of Catholic university at Washington.

"That invitation was to tea at 5 o'clock in the afternoon in the company of John J. Raskob and Dr. Sullivan, and that invitation I accepted.

"It is the only one I ever received up to the one that came last week from Mrs. Roosevelt, which was promptly acknowledged."

The Washington Dispatch, quoting a White House spokesman, which Smith said was false, was printed in some newspapers yesterday.

NEW YORK G. O. P. LAUNCHES DRIVE TO 'STOP BORAH'

New York, Dec. 30.—[Special.]—Republican leaders here took steps today to check the movement to elect delegates in this state favorable to the nomination of Senator William E. Borah of Idaho.

The Borah movement is sponsored by Representative Hamilton Fish Jr., W. Kingsland Macy, former state chairman, and William Ziegler Jr., chairman of the Progressive Republican state committee, and will be launched formally at a meeting in Kismet temple, Brooklyn, on Jan. 28. Senator Borah will make an address.

Supporters of Senator Borah estimated that they had a chance to elect a minimum of thirty congressional delegates at the spring primary election. Members of the regular Republican organization asserted that this was an absurd over-estimate and said that the sponsors of Senator Borah's candidacy would be doing well if they succeeded in electing six or eight delegates.

This opinion of the old guard leaders was confirmed by receipt of messages from upstate county chairmen who reported little or no Borah sentiment in their districts and repeated their willingness to go along with the plan for an uncommitted delegation, favored by State Chairman Melvin C. Eaton and National Committeeman Charles D. Hilles.

Buffalo, N. Y., Dec. 30.—(AP)—A 21 year old messenger today confessed authorship of letters demanding $250,000 from Frank E. Gannett, publisher, and Louis A. Wehle, Rochester brewer. United States Attorney George A. Grobe quoted him as saying he did it for a "thrill."

Seeking "the same thrill some boys get by turning in fire alarms," Roland E. Markell, Rochester messenger, signed a confession the United States attorney said, that he wrote the letters threatening the two men with death and their children with kidnaping unless his demands were met.

Markell will be given a mental examination, Grobe said, and will be held for trial on a charge of attempted extortion.

Markell was quoted as saying that "first of all I wanted to see how good the detectives were."

"I had no intention of harming any one," he added. "I just wanted to see what would happen."

Tracing of telephone calls, which the mild mannered youth said he made while drunk, led to his arrest Saturday night at his home after federal agents and Rochester police had worked on the case for months.

HADLEY ENTERS G. O. P. RACE FOR ATTY. GENERAL

Charles W. Hadley of Wheaton, former assistant attorney general of Illinois and former chairman of the state commerce commission, came out formally yesterday as a candidate for the Republican nomination for attorney general.

"At no time in the history of Illinois," he said in his announcement, "have the people been confronted with such fateful problems as those presented by the Roosevelt administration in its continued assaults on state sovereignty.

"The attorney general elected next fall will be the general in command of the legal forces in the battle to decide whether Illinois is to survive as a sovereign state or become a vassal province under the red rule of the Roosevelt party."

As a special assistant attorney general, Hadley had charge of the suit to compel Len Small to pay over to the state approximately $1,200,000, an action that brought about a settlement for $650,000.

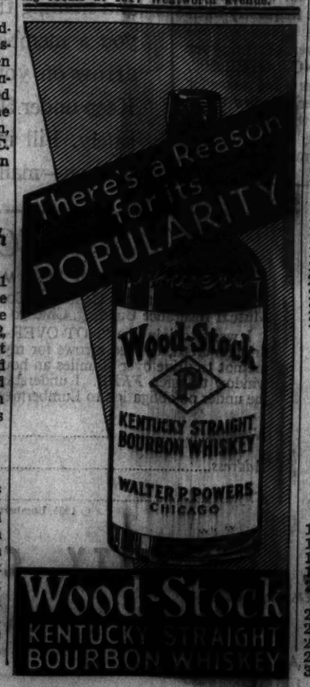
GRANDMOTHER TO KEEP CHILD HEIR UNTIL NEXT JUNE

William Crawford Barry III., 18 months old, whose custody his divorced parents are disputing, will remain with his maternal grandmother, Mrs. Dorothy Eckhart Williams, at 1323 Astor street at least until June 1, 1936, according to an order signed yesterday by Circuit Judge Michael Feinberg. The habeas corpus action filed a week ago by the boy's father, William C. Barry Jr., Hollywood film technician, was continued to June 1 under an agreement by attorneys for the parents on Sunday.

The boy's mother, Mrs. Katherine Williams Barry, is now recuperating downstate from an illness. The agreed order was presented by attorneys for the grandmother, Mrs. Williams, who is the daughter of the late B. A. Eckhart, Chicago capitalist. According to the order Mrs. Barry has until next summer to demonstrate her ability to care for the boy.

FOUND DEAD IN GARAGE.

Daniel Daley, 45 years old, was found dead yesterday in an unheated garage behind his home at 4947 South Wells street. An inquest will be held today in the undertaking rooms at 4517 Wentworth avenue.



SUITOR SLAYS DIVORCEE AND THEN HIMSELF

Mrs. Janet Scaturro, 31 years old, a divorcee who was the mother of two daughters, and Harry J. [Paddy] Keller, 40 years old, were found shot to death late yesterday in the rooming house at 3531 Monroe street where Keller lived. Keller is believed by Capt. John P. Ryan of the Fillmore police to have shot Mrs. Scaturro and then killed himself.

The bodies were found by Ole Nelson, caretaker of the rooming house, who told the police that Keller had represented Mrs. Scaturro as his wife.

WPA TO LET ITS MEN SHOVEL SNOW IF THEY CAN'T DO OWN WORK

A telegram from Harry L. Hopkins, national Works Progress administrator, yesterday authorized the use of WPA workers to shovel snow from streets and sidewalks "during involuntary absence from their regular WPA work." Previously this work had been ruled out by the WPA on the ground that it was maintenance work, the cost of which should be borne locally.

H. K. Seltzer, director of the Chicago WPA district, said that only about 4,000 of the 70,000 persons employed on outdoor projects would ever be available for snow shoveling under the Washington order. These would be workers on vacant lot projects who might be prevented from working on the project by a heavy snowfall.

SCHWELLENBACH, U. S. SENATOR, IS WED IN CHICAGO

A marriage license was issued here yesterday to United States Senator Lewis B. Schwellenbach [Dem., Wash.] and Miss Anne J. Duffy, both of Seattle. Senator Schwellenbach gave his age as 41 years, Miss Duffy as 38 years. A dispatch from Washington said that their marriage in Chicago was announced by the senator's office in Washington, D. C. The bride was the senator's confidential secretary and associate in his Seattle law office. They departed for the capital after the ceremony.

YESTERDAY'S PUZZLE SOLVED

for the nomination, was in Washington today with his campaign manager, Ed Hayes. Asked whether Mr. Knox would enter the Ohio primary in view of the Borah announcement, Mr. Hayes said that such a step will be considered. Mr. Knox, he explained, had agreed to stay out of Ohio on the understanding there was to be no contest in that state. With Senator Borah going in, however, the situation is changed.

Senators La Follette of Wisconsin, Norris of Nebraska, Johnson of California, and Couzens of Michigan had a political confab today in which it was indicated that though they class themselves as liberals none of them would support Borah for the nomination. Norris has already declared for Roosevelt for reelection. Johnson went over to Roosevelt in 1932, and La Follette has organized a party of his own.

Capper Boosts Landon.

"The candidate for President will come from the west," said Senator Capper, "and Landon is the best bet. He has a strong appeal to eastern as well as western voters. His record as governor shows he was a good administrator, level headed, and had plenty of common sense. He is sound on the currency."

Senator Capper said that Mr. Roosevelt's popularity is waning fast, that Kansas will go Republican, that the farmers are not wedded to the AAA, and that if the Republicans offer them a brand of farm relief equally satisfactory they will not hesitate to vote to Republican ticket.

PRESIDENT DUCKS REPLY TO QUERY ON BONUS STAND

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 30.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt today deftly dodged a query concerning his attitude on soldiers' bonus legislation at the coming session of congress. Congressional leaders meanwhile laid plans for early action on the bonus.

Asked if he had changed his viewpoint on a cash reward for veterans since he vetoed a measure passed at the last session, the President inquired if there was a new bill. If there was, he declared, he would have to examine its terms.

Employing one of his favorite terms for evading questions he does not wish to answer, Mr. Roosevelt said the query was an "if" question. Even if congress passes a bonus measure and it comes to him, it still would be an "if" question, he added, and let reporters interpret the remark as they wished.

Message Due This Week.

The President revealed that he would read his annual message to congress late this week, probably on Friday, the opening day. The chief executive thus will avoid the possibility of having his message overshadowed by Supreme court decisions on New Deal acts which might occur if he delayed reading the message until Monday, when the court reconvenes after a holiday recess.

On Monday, Mr. Roosevelt indicated, he will send his budget message to congress. After the press conference there were some jocose remarks to the effect that the President apparently didn't care if the budget message were put in the shade by Supreme court decisions.

Next Sunday afternoon, the President said, he will "explain" the budget to newspaper men at a conference in the White House. This advance "explanation" is an annual custom inaugurated by the President. He is assisted at these meetings by a number of his financial advisers.

See Dissension on Bill.

Some dissension on the method of passing a bonus bill as well as the form it should take was apparent among house leaders today.

Representative Wright Patman [Dem., Tex.] called a meeting of his bonus steering committee for quick action on a bonus bill. The committee consists of 21 congressmen and will discuss plans for pushing a measure speedily through the house.

Patman, who sponsored the 2 billion 200 million dollar greenback inflation measure to pay the bonus, said he might compromise on the "method" of paying the bonus, but that he would fight for an immediate cash payment. Veterans do not want any delayed payment plan, he declared, and predicted the house would not listen to any system other than one providing for putting cash immediately into the hands of world war soldiers.

The house is obligated to vote on the bonus on Jan. 13 because a petition to that effect was signed by 218 members, a majority, before the close of the last session.

Byrns Offers Plan.

Speaker Joseph W. Byrns [Dem., Tenn.], came forward with a plan which would result in the senate acting on the bonus first. He pointed out that the senate undoubtedly would revise any bill passed by the house and send it back to the lower body.

He hoped to avoid delay, he said, by getting the upper body to draft its measure and then dispatch it to the house for action.

Byrns proposes to postpone the Jan. 13 vote by having the house ways and means committee report out the Patman bill before that date. Under parliamentary procedure in congress this would nullify the effect of the petition, probably forcing the senate to act first. Byrns said he planned to confer with Patman on this plan but it was not expected that Patman and his inflation bloc would agree.

Proposes Payment from Gold.

Only one of the various schemes proposed by various congressmen was that advanced by Representative John E. Rankin [Dem., Miss.]. He said he advocated payment from the 10 billions in gold now in the federal treasury.

"We have more gold than we know what to do with," Rankin said. "Billions of dollars of it are lying idle while soldiers go unpaid and the country suffers for want of an adequate circulation medium. It would not be necessary to issue actual gold coin to pay the bonus. We could set aside 2 billion 200 million dollars' worth of surplus gold and issue gold certificates or United States currency against it and pay the soldiers with those gold certificates or with that currency."

Passage of some kind of bonus legislation by both houses and over a presidential veto, if necessary, has been predicted freely. The house passed the Patman bill over Mr. Roosevelt's veto last session, but the senate sustained the President by a narrow margin.

Landon Trims Greeting Cards to Reduce Postage

Topeka, Kas., Dec. 30.—(AP)—Gov. Alf M. Landon and family put 10,000 New Year's greeting cards into the mails today, but not until $50 had been trimmed from the postage bill. It was found that the original cards, because of their size, would require a cent and a half postage stamp each. They were returned to the printers and trimmed an eighth of an inch so that they might meet the one cent rate.

Replies to Charge It Was Only $1,500.

Attorney Joseph P. Savage told yesterday of his trip to New York in January, 1933, to visit his partner, Robert E. Crowe, who was ill and to whom he said he took $8,000 in cash and a check for $2,000. Savage was testifying before Master in Chancery Samuel B. Epstein in a suit brought against him by Crowe in the Circuit court for an accounting of the finances of the old law firm of Crowe, Gorman & Savage. He was replying to previous testimony by former State's Attorney Crowe that Savage had drawn $8,000 for him but gave him only $1,500 of it.

Around this $8,000 check centered the bitterness which has arisen between Crowe and Savage since the breakup of the partnership which they formed with the late George E. Gorman shortly after the end of Crowe's second term as Cook county prosecutor.

Attorney Savage took the witness stand in his own behalf yesterday and his attorney, Burrell Cramer, questioned him to bring out various incidents concerning and preceeding the $8,000 payment.

Argue Over Health Testimony.

Savage stressed his concern over Crowe's health on that January day, but objections halted this phase of the recital. Attorney Cramer insisted he was merely trying to show events that might help the master to weigh Savage's statement that he gave Crowe $8,000 against Crowe's assertion that he was given only $1,500. Cramer explained he sought to throw light on the credibility of the witness.

Savage then testified that before Crowe went to New York, Savage had discussed with Crowe the bill for $50,000 which the firm had presented to the receiver for the closed Garfield State bank. The receiver, J. E. Sullivan, said $50,000 was too high for the services rendered, according to Savage, who related that he subsequently reduced the bill to $40,000.

Then shortly after Crowe went to New York for hospital treatment $20,000 of the bank fee was paid and $50,000 or $60,000 additional money was received as other fees, Savage recalled. He said he and Gorman called in the bookkeeper and directed her to make out three checks for $8,000 each, one in the name of Savage, one in the name of Gorman, and one payable to cash.

Recounts Bookkeeping Practice.

Savage said he cashed the check payable to currency. Then when the additional money came in, he and Gorman again called in the bookkeeper and had her draw three more checks, one payable to Gorman for $2,000, one payable to Crowe for $2,000, and one payable to Savage for $5,375. Savage then said he directed her to charge Gorman's account with $3,000, Crowe's account with $3,000 and his own account with $3,375.

This was done, the witness explained, to balance the books to show that each partner received an equal amount. Attorney Walter Eckert, representing Crowe, asked how the making of false statements would balance the books, and Master Epstein said he could make his question the subject of argument later. The hearing then was continued until Thursday afternoon.

Sees Minnesota Victory for Borah, if Nominee

Coldwater, Mich., Dec. 30.—(AP)—Miss Barbara Newberry, musical comedy actress and former wife of Eddie Foy Jr., and Robert Foster, London representative of an American manufacturing company, were en route to New York today on a wedding trip. RELIEF OFFICIAL FINDS SECRETARY IS NOT A CITIZEN

Wilfred S. Reynolds, who will retire tonight as executive secretary of the Illinois Emergency Relief commission, was informed yesterday that his personal secretary, Miss Gertrude Hopper, is a British subject. It is contrary to the policy formulated by Reynolds to hire aliens on the relief staf.

Although Miss Hopper has been in his office since he took over the IERC leadership four years ago, Mr. Reynolds said he did not know she was not a United States citizen. Previously she had been his secretary at the Chicago Council of Social Agencies.

Miss Hopper, who was born in England and educated in Canada, came to this country ten years ago. She said her father was naturalized after she became of age.

Mr. Reynolds is to resume his old position as executive secretary of the Council of Social Agencies.

PROSECUTOR OF IOWA ATTORNEY GENERAL OUSTED

Expect Gambling Plot Trials to End.

Sioux City, Ia., Dec. 30.—[Special.]—H. M. Havner of Des Moines, special prosecutor in the gambling conspiracy trial of Attorney General Edward L. O'Connor of Iowa, which ended in a "hung" jury here yesterday, was discharged today by the Woodbury county board of supervisors.

The supervisors did not give any reason for the dismissal of Havner, who was hired last April to prosecute the forty-five persons indicted in connection with an alleged Iowa slot machine protection ring. It was believed, however, that mounting costs plus the inability of Havner to obtain a conviction had discouraged the supervisors from attempting to prosecute the others.

Estimates place the money already spent in the grand jury investigations and the seven week trial of O'Connor at $50,000.

See Dropping of Case.

The supervisors today made the following announcement: "Whereas, it has come to the attention of the board that the jury in case of the state against E. L. O'Connor has been discharged because of disagreement; it is resolved that the employment of H. M. Havner as special prosecutor for Woodbury county be and is hereby terminated."

Probability that the case against O'Connor may be dropped appeared as the board conferred for several hours today with County Attorney M. E. Rawlings.

Meanwhile at Dubuque Chief Justice J. W. Kintzinger of the Iowa Supreme court ordered the immediate release of Max E. Duckworth of Sioux City, former Woodbury county attorney who was jailed for contempt because he refused to testify in the O'Connor trial. Duckworth has been in jail since Nov. 19. The basis of the plea made by his attorney was that the imprisoned man had been jailed for failure to testify and that it was no longer possible for him to do so.

Effect on Politics.

Decision of the Woodbury county supervisors as to whether or not they will continue the "graft" trials is expected to affect the political campaign in Iowa in 1936. Democrats have charged that they were being persecuted through the Woodbury county inquiries and have openly questioned the motives of the investigators.

Republicans, on the other hand, have asserted that evidence has been given pointing to curruption of high officials of the state.

By Frank Ridgway

Hybrid Corn Good

December 30, 1935.

FALL corn cribs are heaped high with golden ears at THE TRIBUNE'S Yorkville experimental farm where every variety grown last summer is being studied, graded, and tested in the feed bunks. The information is being used to guide men at the farm in selecting seed corn and deciding what varieties of corn to plant next spring.

There are about 4,000 bushels of various grain hybrids now in the cribs waiting to be fed to the steers. These strains include hybrids Nos. 614, 616, 214, and 208 that ranked high in 1934 plot tests and were planted on the acreage basis last summer. All this hybrid corn has been gathered and is considered good corn, practically all of it grading No. 4. [Corn is graded No. 1, No. 2, No. 3, No. 4, No. 5, and sample grade.] These hybrids graded much higher than so-called "100 day" corn produced on the farm last summer.

The yields of these hybrids by actual weight was: Hybrid No. 214, 61.5 bushels to the acre; hybrid No. 614, 54.8 bushels; hybrid No. 616, 53.5 bushels, and hybrid No. 208, 45.5 bushels. The "100 day corn" yield, according to rough estimates, was more than hybrids Nos. 614, 616, and 208, and perhaps a little more than hybrid No. 214, but it is classed two grades lower and therefore is not so valuable a feed as the hybrids.

Fifty acres of Krug, an old northern Illinois standby, ranks high as a grain corn on the farm this year. This corn matured in about 115 days. It was the first corn planted at the farm, but all the corn was planted in plenty of time to reach maturity last fall before the first killing frost. The fifty acres averaged about 59 bushels to the acre, according to rough estimates. The Krug corn from twenty acres was weighed at the time it was gathered and averaged 58 bushels to the acre on the basis of 80 pounds per bushel.

Most of the fifty acres of Krug corn grades No. 5, some of it falling in the No. 4 class.

This corn, like the hybrids, is relished by the cattle, while they are reluctant about eating the "100 day" corn. Some of the Krug corn is being held in the cribs to be fed in giving the steers the "final touches" before they are sent to market. Clarence Thurow, farm manager, says that the grade of Krug increases as the season advances. Twenty bushels of seed were saved from the Krug corn as it was being gathered.

About 100 acres of Will County Favorite, another Illinois standby, were raised at the Yorkville place last summer. Mr. Thurow estimates that this variety averaged in the neighborhood of fifty bushels to the acre. By actual weight, twenty acres of Will County Favorite yielded an average of forty-nine bushels to the acre. This variety falls below the hybrids or the Krug corn in grade. The farm manager classes most of it as sample grade.

Western Plowman produced an average yield of about forty-three to forty-four bushels to the acre. The crop was fairly uniform, grading straight through about No. 5. The grade and quality were not quite so high as Krug or Queen of the Field. Twenty acres of Western Plowman, weighed as picked, averaged 43.3 bushels per acre.

Golden Beauty lodged worse than any of the silage corn strains or varieties grown last summer at the farm. The ears were husked by hand and fed to hogs early in December. The stalks were so badly tangled by a wind and rain storm that the crop could not be cut for silage and a mechanical picker could not be used. Golden Beauty not only fell down but was caught by frost. The corn was of a low grade.

Mr. Thurow said he did not expect good ears from Golden Beauty because it is known to be a late silage corn. It is one of the most promising chinch bug resistant varieties of corn.

Hybrid No. 13, the silage corn that made a fine showing in the 1934 test plots, was grown on a field basis at the Yorkville place last summer. It failed to withstand the wind and rain storm that blew down Golden Beauty. Hybrid No. 13 was so badly tangled it was necessary to cut it by hand. It yielded at least ten and one-half tons of silage per acre. Since it is a late corn the ears would not have had time to mature before killing frost.

Hybrid No. 172, which took second place in the 1934 test plots, made a good showing last summer. It was grown in a field between hybrid No. 13 and Golden Beauty, and while these two were blown almost flat, hybrid No. 172 withstood the storm. It also produced ten and one-half tons of silage per acre and would have yielded a good crop of ears if it had been left to mature.

CALLS TWO CAPTAINS ON THE CARPET TODAY ON DIAGONAL PARKING

Capt. John Prendergast, chief of the uniformed police, said yesterday that he would request an explanation today from Capt. John Ryan of the Fillmore station and Capt. Willard Malone of Austin of why they have permitted diagonal parking on Madison street between Pulaski road and Austin boulevard.

This method of parking is a violation of the city ordinance, is prohibited by state law on state highways, and is condemned by safety organizations. City trafic engineers say the danger of angle parking is that the driver of an automobile parked in that manner with other cars cannot see oncoming trafic as he backs away from the curb. Moreover, it impedes trafic.

Capt. Prendergast said the police would enforce the ordinance along with all other vehicle laws.

The will of Mrs. Margaret Bassford Rogerson leaving an estate estimated at $160,000 to a daughter, Mrs. Mary H. Knowles, 328 East 8th street, Hinsdale, was admitted to probate yesterday by Oscar S. Caplan, assistant to the probate judge. Mrs. Rogerson, widow of Edward Rogerson, insurance broker, died on Dec. 22 at the Hinsdale sanitarium. She was 65 years old. Mrs. Rogerson resided in La Grange.

DELAY TRACTOR SUIT AGAIN TO PERFECT APPEAL

Investors in Litigation to Supply Cash.

Peoria, Ill., Dec. 30.—[Special.]—Once more there is harmony among investors in the suit of Charles Pardidy, Belleville, over a means of endless track locomotion he claims to have invented years ago. With ascurance of more cash and an extension of time, counsel for the one-time inventor has renewed efforts to keep the case alive by-an appeal of an adverse decision of District court to the United States Supreme court in favor of defendant Caterpillar Tractor company.

Apologetic for delays, Attorney Leroy Miller, Belleville, told Judge J. Earl Mayor when he obtained the sixteenth delay that during the last three months there had been a "serious rupture" among financial backers resulting in certain factions impeding his efforts to raise funds for costs.

Judge Major granted a 120 day extension for preparation of the narrative statement and extended for thirty days the return date of the appeal.

"The Newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and lead public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."—Chicago Tribune.

THE PROCONSULS ARE COMING.

Mr. Ickes as chairman of the national resources committee recommends in a report to the President that the country be divided into nine or ten federal administrative districts primarily for the study of resources but experimentally for the better carrying on of federal business. The Washington elephant is floundering around in haywire, piano strings, Christmas tree trimmings, broken glass, and unwashed dishes. His case seems hopeless, as it should be. It only remains for him to break into the conservatory and lie down on the geraniums and potted plants.

Something could be said, and has been, for the dispersion of federal departments to get some of them closer to the scene of their original uses and services and further from concentrated influences which do them no good. Mr. Ickes might bring his department of the interior to Chicago. Mr. Wallace might take his offices home to Iowa and plow most of them under. Better still, the whole federal works might be removed to Grand Haven with the understanding that most of them were to be shoved into Lake Michigan.

There would be too much of the common good in a scatterment of Washington for the above mentioned purposes and so other intentions must be sought. Experience would suggest that the federal government seeks a tighter hold on the various sections of the country and is turning to the proconsul system, each proconsul, naturally, with his attendant procurator to put on the squeeze for the taxes.

Many of the New Deal masterpieces of legislation will require something more active than a hay-wired elephant bogged down in the broken glass and pottery of the conservatory if they are to avoid a high percentage of delinquency and contumacy. The hot potato act, to take an illustration, will need a lot of intimate proconsuling and procurating. What Washington presently will need will include the left eye of the buffalo on the five cent piece and the feathers out of the Indian on the other side. How do we know it's the left eye? Santy dropped a nickel down the chimney.

COMMON SENSE AND STANDARD TIME.

As New Year's day approaches THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE wishes to remind its readers that within two months eastern time, one hour faster than our present central time, will be Chicago's standard. From March 1 on there will be no further confusion between daylight saving time and standard time. We will have daylight saving time for the entire year.

To the householder this means a future saving in electric light bills estimated at a million dollars per year for the entire community. He will also be riding to and from his place of business in daylight.

To the housewife and to children it will mean an extra hour of daylight will be added to the afternoon when it can be used to the best advantage instead of occurring at the beginning of the day when it is of little or no value.

To labor—to our tradesmen and artisans—will be brought light during their standard hours. A substantial reduction in eye straining work under artificial light or in darkened buildings in the later hours of the day will result.

To the motorist will come a better coördination of daylight hours with periods of congested streets. Struggling homeward in the face of heavy trafic plus glaring headlights will be reduced to a minimum.

Efforts to establish eastern standard time at Chicago to correlate sunlight with our waking hours have had a somewhat battered history. In 1910 it was advocated by the Chicago Association of Commerce, but people just naturally object to a change and little progress was made until congress forced daylight saving time on the entire country as a war measure to conserve natural resources. Having enjoyed the resulting benefits for a period, Chicago has since twice voted to adopt eastern standard time during the summer months, but it was not until very recently that public sentiment became favorably disposed toward an extension of the period to include those months during which sunshine is scarcer.

Ald. Cronson (4th) introduced the necessary resolution into the city council and it was almost unanimously adopted. During the hearings a surprising number of societies voiced their approval, parent-teachers' associations sent representatives to show conclusively that eastern time would provide an extra hour of daylight for school children. Physicians testified that afternoon daylight produced a tendency toward outdoor recreation as a health measure.

Judge Gutknecht of the Traffic court and the Chicago Motor club were able to demonstrate that eastern time would assist them in their problem of reducing motor accidents. Union labor, presumed in some circles to be opposed to the change, showed that in many trades eastern time would produce benefits.

Transportation was one of the strongest advocates because under the present system east and west bound schedules offer unequal services. As an instance, the New York Central and Pennsylvania in offering overnight service between New York and Chicago will be obliged to operate their trains two hours faster eastbound than westbound. All of these roads have testified before the interstate commerce commission, not once but several times, that a change of time at a terminal was most desirable. The air lines allied themselves 100 per cent behind the eastern time proposal.

Finally, to the newspapers, however, it is a headache because it shortens the time for composing afternoon and evening issues, but THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, for one, is willing to assume the added expense to support a program that has as its objective public wealth, health, and happiness.

THE RACKET.

Extortion as a professional career is as distinctive a characteristic of American crime as banditry was in Corsica and head hunting among the Dyaks. It has added a word to the American vocabulary, racket. The racketeer is as well recognized a character as the old buccaneer. A way of life and a type of enterprise are indicated by the term. Success in extortion is the aim of criminal ambition.

Until the American republic built some warships the American merchant marine on Mediterranean routes paid a subsidy to Barbary coast pirates. Protection was bought or the ships were seized and the crews sold into slavery. America then had to pay or fight. It chose to fight.

The Barbary coast has moved over to nearly every American city. Trade and industry must pay or fight, and to date the choice, forced or voluntary, has been to pay. Crime thus is supported as an industry with political affiliations and protections. It is made profitable. It invites young fellows to serve an apprenticeship in gangland and hoodlumism and work their way into the service of the boss extortionists.

Extortion is well advertised, well organized, and well recognized. It is the brain center of all American crime, apparently protected and immune. It has the support of men who regard themselves as orderly citizens. It is easier to pay than to have trouble. It is even true that the wage scale can be determined by the pay-off to the racketeer, compensation for the employer who has laid his money on the table.

Rackets cannot be secretive. Too many persons are involved to permit furtiveness. Proof of criminal operations is discoverable everywhere. Police, prosecutors, industrialists, traders, workers, and the man in the street know about the criminals and their work. A directory could be made of the persons involved. Their practices are wide open to the light.

So long as this criminal system is allowed to work and to spread there will be no headway against crime in the United States. America will remain a lawless country. If it stands for the cause it must stand the reproach.

KIPLING AT SEVENTY.

Mr. Kipling at seventy living in gruff solitude on his hedged and walled country place on the Sussex Downs has the life of his choice, although it seems that he is neither getting nor giving what might have been within the expectations of ripened genius. That genius, it would appear, expended itself with the fire of youth. It was a genius of action and not of reflection. Thackeray and Dickens, to select two notables, were glowing in accomplishment at death, taking a full measure and returning it to the last.

What England owes her men of letters cannot be weighed or fully priced. Shakespeare began the glorification of English kings and swept through the world and the ages with the exaltation of marching heroes. Neither the Stuarts nor the Georges could destroy the spell cast upon the imagination by Shakespeare's belted monarchs. They forever dimmed the light of other crowns.

In the succession of panegyrists Rudyard Kipling took his place, ascending to it from India, the heart of glamorous empire, to put the red coated colonel, subaltern and the marching private upon the rolls of honor. The cult of superiority was imposed upon the world by the fascinating poetry and prose of the Homers who sang for Britain.

The grief of a war so different from the gallant legends of this mythology, carrying with it deep personal sorrow, may have impelled Kipling to take refuge in the frosty indifference with which an Englishman is supposed to hold the world from him, arising above it by not being of it. At seventy Kipling is the supreme Englishman of all the stories, acquiring excellence simply by existing, by being, not by doing, to be contemplated, not to be criticized.

MISS BORI'S DECISION.

(Columbus Dispatch.)

Lucrezia Bori, "darling of the opera," has said that the current season at the Metropolitan will be her last and that she will make good a long ago announced determination on her part to retire when she had reached 45. Still in the full power of her voice, with physical attributes unimpaired, it takes courage for a prima donna of the operatic stage to forsake voluntarily the glamor of the boards she has graced so many years.

In explanation of her decision, she says, "The time for a singer to retire is when she is still in full voice." Few will question the soundness of that philosophy. But just as few would abide by it if the decision were to be made by them.

The name of Lucrezia Bori has long been familiar to the music loving people of America. She, with John McCormack, were the first singers of high reputation to use the radio. This was as long ago as 1925 when programs of such nature were hailed as epochal events. Her courage in this connection might be termed another fine contribution to the cultural side of America. Undoubtedly her appearance speeded the time when the great artists of all classifications gave their boon of entertainment over the networks.

Fortunately Miss Bori's retirement affects her operatic work alone. She expects to appear from time to time on the concert platform. Miss Bori has earned all the satisfaction and long denied tranquility which relief from the exacting work of an operatic star demands.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

JOHNNIE AND BILL and George and Jim and all the rest of the boys will probably drop in for a New Year's call. And they'll be bitterly disappointed if they don't meet with the friends of bygone years, dear old Tom and Jerry.

REMEMBER, the Water Wagon starts tonight at midnight from the Water Tower at the corner of the Mich Boul and Chicago Avenue. Those taking passage will absolutely be forbidden to carry bottles containing gin, highballs, Scotch, or any other kind of liquor. We have been very much surprised and pained at discovering that many of our prospective excursionists expected to carry a full line of alcoholic likker in their pockets. NO! absolutely NO! The possession of hip likker reveals at once that the person who carries it has no business on the Water Wagon. They are only taking the trip so that people will see them and say how nice it is that they've got on the Water Wagon at last. Such hypocrites will be thrown out as the wagon crosses South Water street. No one will be permitted to sail on the Water Wagon tonight unless they are resolved to start the New Year right by swearing off on cocktails, Scotch, and all such for a year. Get on the Water Wagon! It starts tonight!

(Villanelle from "The Deserted House.")

Of some one who lived long ago.
Now he is nowhere near at all.

There may be many will recall
How he once looked, and do not know
There is a picture on the wall.

There are a few who saw him fall
Who might refrain to censure so
Now he is nowhere near at all.

He is not dead, though night winds brawl,
For while the long years ebb and flow
There is a picture on the wall.

He once was dark-eyed, straight and tall.
His mother smiled to see him grow—
Now he is nowhere near at all.

He sighed to think his face would pall,
Until somebody whispered low—
There is a picture on the wall!
Now he is nowhere near at all.

"NEXT CAMPAIGN to be Battle Royal Between Liberals and Conservatives."—Headline. Well, which are you, Liberal or Conservative? "Under which king, Bezonian? Speak or die."

AND THE NEXT question, of course, would be what is a liberal and what is a conservative? Everybody has got to figure that out for himself. Darned if I know just what the distinction is, but I would say offhand that a liberal is one who likes to spend other people's money, and a conservative is one who doesn't like to have his money spent by somebody else. Or roll your own.

AND IF Mr. Tennyson wrote it now he would have to make it read:

Ring out, wild radio, on the stroke,
Cease toothpaste ads and jazz band blight,
The year is dying in the night,

RUDYARD KIPLING is 70 years old today. And if you tell that fact with proper reverence and emphasis to almost any of our younger generation today they will ask: "But what is a kipling, and how does it kiple?" I ask you, what's the use?

AND NOW COMES the Travelers' Insurance company of New York, a recognized authority in these matters, to say that the number of automobile deaths this year will be around 36,000, about the same as last year. More than that, the rate of death per accident has increased 7 per cent. I'm commencing to believe that grim warning booklet "And Sudden Death," which was calculated to scare all careless and demon drivers as well as the cocktail boys and girls into conniption fits, wasn't read by anybody but the author, the printer, and me. And we're the three people in America who drove carefully even before the book was published.

EXERCISE DURING THE WINTER.

We have come a long way from our primitive forbears, who obtained a livelihood through hunting, fishing, and gathering the natural fruits of the earth. They were compelled to exercise or they did not eat. But brain has been in constant conflict with brawn, and with each century the victory of brain has advanced apace, not always to the advantage of health. From a cave dweller man has become a hothouse inhabitant.

The changes in the physical contour of man are infinitesimal with the passing of generations. Nevertheless, unless we use our muscles, variations will appear.

Even now, during the winter season, we may fail to heed one of the most valuable prescriptions that can be given, namely, regular and moderate exercise. We may believe that we have stored up such a tremendous amount of vitality during the summer months that we can curl up in a comfortable chair and maintain body resistance and vigor until spring—à la Mr. Bruin. Muscles are made to be used, and we have learned that in order to rid the body of waste products we must exercise. This means deep breathing, with the needed absorption of oxygen and the relaxing and contracting of muscles.

First we must relax. Many persons who belong to the so-called high strung or nervous group maintain their muscles in a more or less constant state of contraction. This is not exercise. In a sense the muscles may be said to be in a state of spasm, and this merely increases fatigue. In order to contract a muscle it must first be flaccid, loose, and limp, and quite a bit of drilling may be required before we learn just how to flap the hand at the wrist. This procedure calls for complete relaxation of the muscles of the hand, as the wrists are used merely as hinges.

Try lying in bed with every portion of the body at absolute rest. This is the first principle of exercise. Then, when standing, begin a series of movements bringing about relaxation, such as wrist flapping or swinging the arms from the shoulder to and fro with all the muscles completely loosened except those of the shoulder, thus making the arm a pendulum. There is a trick to this, but it can be learned. The legs may be swung in the same way.

After the relaxing process has been mastered active muscle contractions may be begun. All exercises are best performed before a mirror, and at the outset a correct standing posture is of the greatest importance, and either a double mirror arrangement or turning the body is preferred. The heels should touch and the toes point outward at a little less than half of a right angle [40 degrees]. The knees are braced lightly, the abdomen is drawn in through the use of the abdominal muscles, and the chest thrust forward, aided by the backward position of the shoulders.

Proper balance of the body on the feet must be acquired. This, of course, cannot be achieved if weakness is present in the arches and correction in this respect is highly desirable. The position should be entirely without strain or an attempt to exaggerate the protruding chest. With practice an erect posture will be easy and natural.

The length of time exercises are indulged in should depend upon the age and the general physical condition. Without question many persons take their gymnastics too hurriedly and too vigorously. During the allotted period fresh air is essential, and the best time is before breakfast, with the bedroom windows wide open.

Walking must not be forgotten, and in many respects this is the ideal activity for both men and women past middle life. Take a natural stride, assume a good posture, and walk short of fatigue. This is particularly valuable for the person who has a tendency toward overweight, and fat persons can pant and puff themselves back to health through walking, if reasonable attention is paid to the diet.

SEE A SPECIALIST.

Mrs. J. K. writes: Some years ago I was struck in the eye with a twig of a tree. After the inflammation left there was a red scar. Now the eye is very sore and any pressure on the eyeball causes pain. The vision is also bad. There is no eye specialist in my part of the country. What would you suggest?

REPLY.

Only a specialist in diseases of the eye can help you. It would be worth your while to go to a city where you can consult a skilled ophthalmologist. Do not allow the condition to progress.

MAY BE HARMFUL.

REPLY.

Tablets advertised to keep one awake while driving may be dangerous if used routinely or to excess. Most of these preparations contain caffeine citrate. A cup of coffee or a "dish" of tea will do the trick better.

STRAWS.

Chicago, Dec. 27.—While the traveling men are having their innings may I repeat what a gentleman from Tennessee told me while I was on the road in Egypt, Ill., in November, 1933? I will try to record it in his own words as nearly as I can recall.

"My family has lived in Tennessee as long as I can remember. During the civil war the Yankee cavalry rode through our section driving us out of our home and burning it over our heads. We have never voted anything but the Democratic ticket in our family. My father has been dead for many years now and I cannot see where I can do him or myself any good by voting that ticket any more, particularly in view of what the present administration is doing. You mark my words, young fellow; the next presidential election will see a bigger landslide back to the Republican party than ever went to the Democrats."

Roosevelt had been in office only nine months then. I wonder what the gentleman from Tennessee thinks now. Since then I have traveled Iowa and find that the tide has turned there decidedly against the Raw Deal. I am reminded of the story of the old Tennessee mountaineer who had seven sons, one of whom voted the Republican ticket. When asked for an explanation the old man said, "I have tried to raise my boys in the fear of the Lord and make them good Democrats to the bone, but John, the ornery cuss, he got to readin'." W. EMPY.

WE CAN SEE BEYOND TODAY.

Chicago, Dec. 27.—I bought a TRIBUNE last night for the first time in about six months just to see if you were still hanging crêpe, knocking the administration at Washington and trying in various ways to fool the public by misrepresentation. Sure enough the front section of your publication was filled with gloom and disparaging remarks concerning our administration, while in your financial section, where it is not so convenient to print anything other than the facts, I noticed that business conditions seemed to be quite more favorable.

I wonder if you think you are putting it over your own readers? You are not weakening the President's chances of re-election by such actions. In fact, you are causing many good sane thinking people, who voted against him in 1932, to vote for him in 1936. ROLAND GREEN.

THEY DON'T CONFIDE IN US.

Chicago, Dec. 28.—Why do some people persist in shaking out their rugs and dust mops from the second story porch, especially when their own children are playing in the yard below breathing in all the germ-laden dust? Don't they realize what a health hazard this practice is? The city ordinance pronouncing it unlawful ought to be brought to the attention of these people and make them realize the danger of this seemingly harmless performance. BERNICE KUELLMER.

THE LINDBERGH TRAIL.

Chicago, Dec. 27.—When all of us pack up our other suit and children and hop a boat for dear old England there will be two groups left, crooks and politicians. The crooks will steal from the politicians and then those dear boys will tax the poor crooks silly. T. F. JUDGE.

RAKE'S PROGRESS.

Chicago, Dec. 26.—Our President says business is picking up. It should. It's not necessary to give productive hours of labor in exchange for dollars to create business. If the same amount of money now being wasted for political purposes by our government was thrown from a window of a loop hotel it would create business when it hit the pavement.

Nevertheless, the temporary spurt in business resulting from such action does not mean the depression is over. The other side of the ledger shows millions out of work, peak charity costs, and our government spending annually 4 billion dollars more than income.

A few months from now business will be even better. By early spring, when our President starts to spread the sugar, there will be so much work available and so much money in circulation that even the most skeptical will believe that the depression is over.

It may be several years, but eventually time will prove that the same economic law which spells bankruptcy for the individual who spends more than income also applies to government. JOHN J. MANGAN.

NOT ENOUGH CHRISTMAS.

Frankfort, Ill., Dec. 27.—We are crying for peace, peace, peace. But how can there be any peace? For days, yes, even weeks, you run around like a cat chasing his tail trying to do a thousand and one things. And then, if you finally get whole skinned through the mad rush, you have to crowd the whole category into one wild orgy and rush headlong back to work again the next day, still staggering from the spell of the ordeal.

Christmas! What's Christmas? Christmas is nothing but a mockery. And how can it be otherwise? How can any one celebrate Christmas in one day and still have peace?

I suggest that THE TRIBUNE initiate a crusade for a two day holiday at Christmas and restore it to what it used to be in days of old and what it still is in every country that celebrates Christmas except the U. S. A.

If we are going to have peace, let us have peace. BJORN ANDREASSEN.

MAYBE NEXT YEAR.

Chicago, Ill., Dec. 20.—Dear Santa Claus: Will you please be so kind as to give my alderman [J. J. Duffy], Nineteenth ward, a few electric lights and posts. Maybe then he would put a few of them along 103d street from Kedzie avenue to Crawford avenue.

P. T. LENTZ.

HAY AND SNOW.

Chicago, Dec. 26.—"Dick Tracy" must be created by a cartoonist who never spent a winter day on a farm. Will he tell us why the farmer is using a wagon to haul hay when the snow is nearly hub deep and still falling? I spent over 10 years on a farm and never saw a wagon load of hay and snow on the ground at the same time. CHARLES LARSON.

SLEEP DISTURBERS.

Chicago, Dec. 26.—[Friend of the People.]—We, the undersigned, desire to make complaint about the noise made by two police dogs kept in the yard at the rear of the tavern next to our property. These dogs bark almost incessantly from midnight until 2 and 3 o'clock in the morning and again from about 5 in the morning until 9 at night, at which time the owner locks the dogs up because he can't stand the noise. Complaint has been made to the Humane society, but they maintain it is not within their jurisdiction, as the owner is not mistreating the dogs. Thanking you for any steps taken to relieve the situation. J. E. C.

The complaint has been investigated and the following report rendered: "The owner has promised he would keep the dogs quiet and take them out the front for their airing. He was notified he will be subject to arrest if he does not comply with the order."

JAMES P. ALLMAN,
Commissioner of Police.

INHERITANCE TAX.

Chicago, Dec. 28.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—A woman of 80, a widow, desires to give to each of her three children a warranty deed to eighty acres of Illinois farm land, worth $100 to $125 an acre, retaining full control during her lifetime. If made and recorded before December of this year, would the children have to [1] pay inheritance or [2] gift taxes on it? If so [3], when would they declare it or be taxed? 4. How much? M. E. W.

1. If she lived two years after the gift it would be presumed that it was not made in contemplation of death and hence was not subject to the Illinois inheritance tax.
2. No.
3. If it is subject to the Illinois inheritance tax the tax would be payable at the time of the death.
4. The exemption to a child is $20,000 worth. Hence it seems probable that there would be no tax.

LONDON.—The $200,000,000 five year plan for developing London's transport will require another 120,000,000 passengers to support it, Frank Pick, vice chairman of the London passenger transport board, said in an address to the Royal Society of Arts. This would require an additional population of 750,000 persons.

"Even allowing for immigration," Pick declared, "it will be a hard matter to create any such increase. However, one may have confidence that the facilities will create some trafic. In this expectation the London passenger transport board must go forward."

Passengers, he said, seemed to have arrived out of nowhere. New interchange stations at Holborn and the monument have been opened. At Holborn there previously was an exchange of 1,460,000 passengers yearly. In two years it increased to 9,800,000, Pick pointed out. At the monument, where there formerly was no exchange, 5,900,000 passengers are exchanged annually. The gains were due to "suppressed trafic," Pick said.

Turning to the problem of trafic congestion, Pick said private cars are a menace to public transport. There were now about 415,000 cars licensed in London and the five home counties, or one to every twenty-seven people living in these areas. All but a few of these cars must operate in and about London. It is questionable whether London can economically support them, when road widenings might cost up to $5,000,000 per mile, Pick asserted.

Transport has created development, but there has been no coördination with public services, he added, and as a consequence vast sums of money, more than would ever have been wanted under a planned expansion, must be sunk in scarcely remunerative enlargements of transport facilities.

Pick declared it would be necessary before long to organize the water, gas, electricity, sewage, and other utilities for the whole of the London metropolitan area on the lines of the transport board.

Happy in his new found interest, radio, Samuel Insull presided yesterday over a conference at which thirty officials from 18 smaller stations in this region discussed with the former utilities magnate the feasibility of launching a central western broadcasting chain.

The organizing session was held amid a hubbub in quarters adjacent to WENR's studios, soon to be vacated by NBC, on the 42d floor of the Chicago Civic Opera house, the scene of Insull's former triumphs. Plasterers and window washers were at work refurbishing quarters which apparently are to become soon headquarters of the new Insull enterprise.

Affable but Uncommunicative.

Obviously enjoying his new rôle as a radio impresario, Mr. Insull emerged from time to time from the conference room to welcome late comers and to inform reporters that there was positively nothing to be said about the new venture.

"I can't discuss the matter at all," he explained, removing his cigar. "We don't know whether anything will come of this. It's altogether in the embryonic state."

Mr. Insull's voice was firm, his step sure. He cautioned Ota Gygi, the musician, who conceived the plan, against revealing any details of the scheme to reporters.

Reported Taking No Chances.

Mr. Insull is proceeding cautiously, Mr. Thompson explained. Representatives of eighteen stations were invited to explore the plan for a network. Representatives from all stations asked, including some from Rock Island, Joliet, Janesville, Green Bay, Elkhart, and other cities in Illinois, Wisconsin, and Indiana, turned out to explore the project with Insull and Gygi.

All seemed to be in sympathy with the plan, according to Mr. Thompson. There were reports that several stations already had negotiated contracts to become affiliates in the new net. These rumors Mr. Gygi denied.

Though spokesmen for the national chains have stated that a network of 50 and 100 watt stations is bound to fail, representatives of the smaller stations are reported to see appreciable possibilities in the proposal.

Opera Leader Asks Court to Dismiss Singer's Suit

Paul Longone, general director of the Chicago City opera, filed a motion in the Superior court yesterday for dismissal of the $10,000 suit brought against him and the opera company by Mrs. Daisy Maud Underwood, a singer of Kansas City, Mo. Mrs. Underwood, also known as the Princess Kakanli, charged that Longone failed to carry out a contract and told her she would not be allowed to sing until she guaranteed $5,000. Longone's motion, drawn by Attorney Lloyd A. Faxon, asserts that Mrs. Underwood's charges are untrue and that she had no contract with the opera.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Indianapolis, Ind., Dec. 30.—[Special.]—Nearly 300 accredited leaders of 25,000,000 Protestants of nearly all denominations of the country opened sessions here today to hear a Japanese introduced as the "most distinguished product of Protestant foreign missions."

This Japanese, Dr. Toyohiko Kagawa, discussed consumers' coöperatives, held by the visitor to be the base of "a Christian economic order" which he asserts must replace "capitalistic materialism" as well as stanch the seepage of "materialistic communism and socialism" into various nations of the world.

Dr. Kagawa recently was admitted to America by immigration authorities on the request of President Roosevelt after those authorities had held up admission due to an eye disease. His three day meeting here is sponsored by the Federal Council of Churches.

Termed "Christian Method."

The meeting with Kagawa hardly had gotten into the discussion period when the question of "where the church and the coöperatives hitch in together" was asked from the floor. This was answered by Dr. Arthur E. Holt of the Chicago Theological seminary, chairman of the meeting. He said the coöperatives provide a "more Christian way of doing business." Kagawa answered the question by saying that coöperatives "apply the love principle to industry."

What is known in the history of religion as the "mythical seven," one of the "whole" numbers of mystery faiths, loomed large in Kagawa's address this morning on "Religious Idealism and the Coöperative Movement." He first graded human experience into seven levels of value, with physical life and its preservation at the bottom and purpose at the top.

Interlocks Another Seven.

The Japanese then set forth a seven rung ladder of religion, with each rung related to a corresponding level of value. The lowest, he said, is the religion of early mankind, which was interested in the simple matters of life and its preservation, with the highest being Christianity.

Then the third of the mystical sevens was introduced and these are the coöperatives, which relate to the seven levels of value and the seven rungs of the religious ladder.

Murray Lincoln of Columbus, O., executive of the Ohio Farm Bureau Coöperative association, in an address following Kagawa declared that this meeting "will go down in history with one in Rochdale, England, on Dec. 21, 1844, when the three basic principles of consumers' coöperatives were formulated and the world began to become consumer conscious."

THREE GET JAIL SENTENCES FOR ELECTION FRAUD

Three election officials of the Fifty-sixth precinct of the Twenty-seventh ward in the April 10 primary were sentenced to county jail terms yesterday by Judge John C. Lewe in the Criminal court. They are Robert Burns, 55 years olds, 15 North Des Plaines street, Democratic judge, and Joseph O. Murray, 38, of 608 Madison street, Democratic clerk, each given three months, and George Briggs, 69, address unknown, Republican judge, given one month.

The men were charged with making erasurses and otherwise tampering with ballots. Burns and Murray have served sixth months under a County court sentence.

In passing sentence Judge Lewe said: "These men were willing tools."

INQUIRY BACKS SLAIN EDITOR'S LIQUOR CHARGES

Grand Jury Calls for List of Convictions.

Minneapolis, Minn., Dec. 30.—[Special.]—While a county grand jury called for a list of all Minneapolis liquor convictions since 1932, charges made by Walter W. Liggett, slain weekly newspaper publisher, were partly substantiated today by independent investigators.

The grand jury asked for the lists, it was reported, in an effort to check on reports that men once convicted of crimes have obtained liquor licenses contrary to law and that a small group controls a large portion of the wholesale and retail liquor business in Minneapolis.

These were charges that had been made weekly by Liggett for months before his slaying Dec. 9. They also are considered the cause of his death. One of the men whom he named most often in connection with the charges, Isadore [Kid Cann] Blumenfeld, now is in jail awaiting trial for his slaying.

Paper Scores Abuses.

The partial substantiation resulted from an inquiry made by a Minneapolis newspaper, which announced that "an investigation into the Minneapolis liquor situation and into circumstances surrounding the issuance of the nearly 300 hard liquor licenses now in force revealed numerous abuses which supported widespread reports that the legal liquor business in the city is in need of a cleanup."

The newspaper said inquiry showed that:

"The city council, the health and hospital committee, the state liquor commission, and perhaps the aldermen as individuals have not exercized, to the extent they should, the discretionary power granted them under the law.

"Ex-bootleggers are the actual owners of many places, although licenses were taken out in other names.

Link Termed Obvious.

"The connection of former bootleggers—some with criminal records—with certain licenses is so obvious that it seemed impossible the connection could have escaped official notice.

"As the investigation proceeded it appeared clear that the responsibility for the conditions lay with the various licensing authorities who are specifically granted both in the state law and the city ordinance the discretionary power to deny a license to persons who appear unfit.

"The alleged conditions have been a frequent subject of conversation at the city hall whenever liquor licenses have been discussed, and since the Liggett murder the talk concerning them has become commoner than ever."

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 30.—[Special.]—Barbara Stanwyck, Titian-haired screen actress, won a divorce from Frank Fay, actor and writer, today on charges of mental cruelty. The divorce was granted quickly and quietly when Miss Stanwyck slipped into court and was allowed a special setting of her case.

She complained that Fay often kept her awake at night to argue trivial and inconsequential matters.

"There were times my husband would argue some unimportant matter throughout the entire night, making it impossible for me to sleep," she testified.

Miss Stanwyck said she desired no alimony. Besides an interlocutory decree Miss Stanwyck was awarded custody of her son, Dion Anthony Fay, aged 3. The couple married Aug. 26, 1928, in St. Louis.

LUTHER CONANT, TRAVELER AND PIONEER, IS DEAD

Descendant of Pilgrims Dies in Oak Park.

Luther Conant, descendant of Pilgrims, world traveler, and a pioneer settler in Chicagoland, died yesterday at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Judson E. Earll, 116 South East avenue, Oak Park. He was 91 years old.

Mr. Conant was a descendant of Roger Conant, who landed in this country in 1626. This ancestor was governor of the first colony at Salem, Mass.

Born in Vermont.

Mr. Conant was born at Brandon, Vt. At the age of 7 his father, William Conant, brought the young man to Geneva. In 1879 the family moved to Oak Park, where they lived since then.

Mr. Conant often recalled the stirring scene in the Old Wigwam when Lincoln was nominated for President. He was graduated from the University of Michigan in 1886, and years later organized the Emeritus club of graduates, 80 years old or more.

For many years he was connected with the Subscription News company with offices in Chicago, New York, and London. As a young man he worked for the Minneapolis Tribune, but his later years were spent in the real estate business in Oak Park.

Travels After Retirement.

Mr. Conant traveled extensively until his retirement from business sixteen years ago. Upon returning home he always maintained that Chicago offered more than any other city of the world in culture, good living conditions, and opportunities for advancement.

His wife, the former Emily Cole, a leader in club work and one time president of the Chicago Commons Woman's club, died in 1927. Surviving are two daughters, Mrs. Earll and Mrs. William H. Nicholls of Winnetka. Funeral services will be held Thursday afternoon, with burial at the family plot in Geneva.

6 UNIVERSITIES FACE CLOSING IN OHIO; NO FUNDS

Columbus, O., Dec. 30.—(AP)—A tangle in the state government's budget problem precipitated a crisis tonight in the operation of six state supported universities.

J. L. Morrill, vice president of Ohio State university, said the university trustees would have to meet immediately to determine whether school would open Jan. 7 after the holiday vacation. There is enough coal to last only until next Monday, he said.

Heeding an opinion of Attorney General John W. Bricker, the state control board refused today to provide emergency funds for coal and other operating purposes for 1936.

Ohio university has sought from the control board a transfer of $10,000 for coal, books, and plant equipment. Bowling Green State university, Kent Normal, Miami university, and Wilberforce university have been forced to curtail some of their activities because of the budget vetoes. Kent has coal to last until Jan. 5.

FUNERAL TODAY IN EVANSTON FOR MRS. EMMA COY

Funeral services for Mrs. Emma Coy of the North Shore hotel, 1611 Chicago avenue, Evanston, who died early yesterday, will be held at 11 a. m. today in the chapel at 1460 Sherman avenue, Evanston. Mrs. Coy, who was 76 years old, had been confined to her apartment because of illness for a number of years. She lived in the vicinity of State and 16th streets at the time of the Chicago fire in 1871. Three daughters and a son survive.

Absolom Clark, Pioneer of Lake County, Is Dead

Absolom Clark, 87 years old, a retired farmer and a Lake county resident since 1851, died at his home in Wadsworth yesterday. He was born in England. Surviving him are his widow, Helen; a daughter, Mrs. Maude Ollerenershaw of Wadsworth; two sons, Edward of Gurnee, and Frank of Wadsworth; ten grandchildren, and five great-grandchildren. Funeral services will be held at the home Thursday at 2 p. m.

Mother of N. Y. Times' Chicago Writer Is Dead

New York, Dec. 30.—[Special.]—Mrs. Marcella Horne, 71, a pioneer resident of the Bronx, died this morning of heart disease. Mrs. Horne was the widow of Louther S. Horne, who died in 1926. She is survived by two sons, Louther S. Horne Jr., Chicago correspondent of the New York Times; Henry P. Horne of Scarsdale, and a daughter, Miss Marjorie Horne.

Henry Schafer Dies at 55 Following Injury in Fall

News of the Radio Stations

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Due to the enlivened interest in matters of national political importance, W-G-N henceforth will accept a limited amount of paid in advance politically sponsored programs from the recognized committees of the national political parties, the management of the Tribune's station announced yesterday.

So far as state and local contests are concerned the previous rules of the station will apply. When candidacies are of sufficient public interest condidates will be given an opportunity to speak on the station and no charges will be made for time so allotted.

New Year's celebrations the world around will occupy the radio spotlight today and tonight. If you want an excuse to start celebrating early, tune in at 11 this morning when the new year will be ushered in at Bangkok, Siam, by way of radio. Bangkok's bells will be sounded over WMAQ-NBC at that hour. At later periods bells will ring from Moscow, Helsingfors, Berlin, Ireland, Buenos Aires and Caracas, Venezuela.

Dancing parties, starting on the east coast and progressing westward, will be featured on W-G-N and Mutual. CBS and NBC. W-G-N's six hour festivity starts at 9:45 with Halifax. Nova Scotia, first on the list. CBS turns to rhythm at 10:15 and NBC at 11. Several of the broadcasts will culminate in Hawaii which is the last country to usher in the new year.

Maj. Bowes' touring amateurs—more than 200 of them—will eat New Year's dinners tomorrow wherever they may be as guests of the major. The ace of amateur program makers will settle for checks from Chicago, Milwaukee, New Orleans, Schenectady, Dayton, Saginaw, Mich.; Elizabethton, Tenn.; Ottawa, Ill.; and Bradford, Pa. They all got special gifts at Christmas, too.

A wire from Chappell & Co., music publishers, states that contrary to reports printed in the east, it has renewed its agreement with ASCAP and thus its music is not barred from radio after Jan. 1, as is that of the Warner Brothers' interests. Thus Rudy Vallee's theme, "My Time Is Your Time," and Amos 'n' Andy's "Perfect Song" are not on the verboten list. The company also has fifty or more numbers very popular on radio which will not be restricted.

Highlights of stage shows are to be brought listeners in a new WJJD series, "The Parade of Stars," to be inaugurated at 2:45 today when "The Foursome" from "Anything Goes" is to be heard. Other stage notables to be heard later this week are William Gaxton, Benay Venuta, Victor Moore and Irene Delroy.

Little Jack Little, one of the pioneer entertainers of radio, will bring his orchestra to the Terrace room of the Morrison and NBC on Jan. 13, supplanting Enric Madriguera's crew. Little got his start as a one man entertainer more than a dozen years ago out in Iowa. For the last three years he has been conducting an orchestra in the east. He also has had a sponsored show on which he was the featured singer.

The Burlington [Wis.] Liars club will tell the whopper of the year over WMAQ-NBC at 11:15 a. m. tomorrow. The champion liar will get a diamond studded medal. So says O. C. Hulett, president of the club. You can take his statement for what it may be worth.

MORRISON WILL IS UPHELD BY APPEALS COURT

Denies Foukes' Claim on Tar's $2,000,000.

The Illinois Appellate court upheld yesterday a Circuit court ruling denying the claim of the late William E. Foulkes to the $2,000,000 estate of Edward W. Morrison, retired sea captain, who died at an age of 93 in 1929. Foulkes, who was 73 years old and lived at 4216 Langley avenue, died a year ago while his appeal was pending, and his daughter, Harriet, inherited his interest in the proceedings.

Foulkes, who was not mentioned in Morrison's will, asserted that he was the son and only heir of the captain.

Authorized Disposition of Estate.

The captain's will divided $100,000 among a number of distant relatives, gave $40,000 to servants, $5,000 each to two adopted daughters and directed that the remainder of the estate be used to build a home for the aged in Chicago. As no further appeal is indicated, this distribution will now be made, according to attorneys for the estate.

Foulkes claim was denied in the Probate court in 1931. He then carried it to the Circuit court where it was heard by Judge Thomas Taylor Jr., now retired. Foulkes asserted that he was the son of Morrison and Mary Prange, a domestic in the Morrison household seventy-five years ago. In support of his contentions, he pointed out his physical resemblance to the captain.

Lack Marriage Record.

Judge Taylor overruled the claim, declaring it had been contradicted by a mass of evidence. The Appellate court, in sustaining Judge Taylor, said there was no record of marriage or divorce between Morrison and Mary Prange.

Capt. Morrison had a long and picturesque sea career. He owned the land on which the Morrison hotel now stands.

Mrs. Truda De Vries, 84 years old, died yesterday in her home at 8617 South Bishop street, after a long illness. Funeral services will be held at 12:45 p. m. Thursday from the home to the First Christian Reformed church in Cicero. Mrs. De Vries was born in Hellum, the Netherlands, and came to the United States in 1892, shortly after her marriage to Capt. Johannes De Vries of the Dutch army. She is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Peter Dykstra, and three sons, Nicholas, Edward, and John, all of Chicago. Seventeen grandchildren and eighteen great-grandchildren also survive.

South Bend, Ind., Dec. 30.—[Special.]—Returning to his home here today from Chicago, Joseph Lockets, sales manager for an electrical firm, found his wife, Doris, and 10 year old daughter, Marion, dead in their gas-filled home. A note stated: "This is no place for a nervous person. I want Marion with me. I want no one to feel bad." It was signed, "Doris." Police believed Mrs. Lockets ended her life and that of her daughter Saturday.

William Taylor, Former Vaudeville Actor, Dead

New York, Dec. 30.—(AP)—William Banfield Taylor, 58, former vaudeville headliner, died today at Harlem hospital of a cerebral hemorrhage. Taylor was divorced in 1922 from the late Stella Mayhew, musical comedy star, with whom he appeared as "Mayhew and Taylor" in vaudeville houses throughout the country.

Joseph Wolf, North Side Florist, Is Found Dead

Joseph Wolf, 70 years old, for more than twenty years a florist on the north side, was found dead, apparently of a heart attack, yesterday in the rear of his shop in the Congress theater building, 2135 Milwaukee avenue. He lived at 2135 North Rockwell street. The body was found by his son Walter.

Fred L. Bohrer Funeral at Princeton,, Ill., Today

Kewanee, Ill., Dec. 30.—[Special.]—Funeral services will be held tomorrow at Princeton for Fred L. Bohrer, 59, building contractor, who died at a Peoria hospital Saturday following four months' illness. He built a number of schools in this vicinity and the $2,000,000 sanitary plant at Abingdon.

Jere A. Downs, Boston Stock Broker, Is Dead

ETHAN ALLEN, DIRECT DESCENDANT OF WAR HERO, DIES IN MINN.

Minneapolis, Minn., Dec. 30.—(AP)—Ethan Allen, 57, direct descendant of the famous leader of the Green mountain boys in the revolutionary war of the same name and pioneer leader of a coöperative community in the deep woods in northern Minnesota, died here today of pneumonia. He was a native of Kansas.

In failing health for the last year, Allen was forced to leave his community in the northern part of the state and receive treatment in Minneapolis hospitals. His death came just as his little community in Itasca county was getting on its feet as a self-supporting organization.

Allen hitch-hiked to Washington in 1933 and obtained a federal grant of $27,000 to found his Northern Welfare association. With families picked from the relief lines he went north to Itasca county and there founded the colony which has several hundred acres under cultivation.

KATE MACKEY, 103, OLDEST OTTAWA RESIDENT, DEAD

Ottawa, Ill., Dec. 30.—[Special.]—Miss Kate Mackey, 103, died yesterday at her home in this city. She was Ottawa's oldest resident, and was one of the half dozen persons living here who attended the first Lincoln-Douglas debate and shook hands with Abraham Lincoln and Stephen A. Douglas later.

She was conscious and laughed and talked until a few minutes before her death. She made all the arrangements for her funeral, even telling what kind of a coffin she desired. At her request her body was taken to an Ottawa funeral home, that for many years was the house in which she resided, to remain there until her funeral.

Miss Mackey was born in Ireland, Nov. 12, 1832, coming here when a girl of 15. She resided here continuously for 88 years.

PHYSICS TEACHER AT HIGH SCHOOL DIES SUDDENLY

Walter Leslie Fisher, 3850 North Lowell avenue, an instructor of physics at the Carl Schurz High school for the last 26 years, died yesterday at Irving Park boulevard and Keeler avenue as he was on his way to the loop. He was 52 years old.

Mr. Fisher was stricken as he waited for a street car. He was taken into a nearby drug store, where he was pronounced dead by Dr. Charles H. Eye, 4175 Irving Park boulevard. Death was attributed to heart disease. Mr. Fisher is survived by his widow, Mrs. Gera Boice Fisher.

T. C. Ashcroft, Memphis Ex-Mayor, Financier, Dies

Memphis, Tenn., Dec. 30.—(AP)—Thomas Calvin Ashcroft, 70, who climbed from a job as a telegraph operator in a little Mississippi town to the position of a leading mid-south financier, died at his home here tonight after a long illness. He was president of the American Building and Loan association of Memphis, a former director of the Home Loan bank board at Cincinnati, former mayor of Memphis, and a former state senator.

W. K. Hale, General's Son, Is Dead at Denver, Colo.

Denver, Colo., Dec. 30.—(AP)—William King Hale, 46, son of the late General Irving Hale, died today of pneumonia. He was born at West Point, N. Y., near the U. S. Military academy, where his father set a scholastic record that army officers said still stands.

L. B. Sackett, Illinois Vet, Dies in Philippines

MANILA, P. I., Dec. 30.—(AP)—L. B. Sackett, 64, retired business man, died here. A veteran of the Spanish-American war, he was a native of Chatsworth, Ill., and formerly lived at Cheyenne, Wyo.

It is evaporated from the celebrated Carlsbad Spring, and it gives you the same 19 health-giving minerals that have brought blessed relief to suffering millions. It's so easy to take; so inexpensive; so wonderfully effective. When nothing else brings relief—try Carlsbad. Your money back if you are not joyfully pleased with the results. Ask your druggist.

FRANK GARDNER FUNERAL TO BE THIS AFTERNOON

Funeral services for Frank Gleason Gardner, treasurer of the Chicago Title and Trust company, who died early yesterday in his home at 287 East Central avenue, Highland Park, will be held at 3 p. m. today at the Trinity church in Highland Park. Burial will be in Rosehill cemetery.

Mr. Gardner, who was 68 years old, had been ill of heart disease since Dec. 2. At his bedside were his widow, Mrs. Esther Bogue Gardner, and two children, Dorothy and John Hoyt Gardner.

Mr. Gardner had worked continuously for the Chicago Title and Trust company since Sept. 1, 1893, except for the time he served in the Spanish-American war as a sergeant in troop F, First Illinois cavalry. He was a member of the Chicago Bar association, the Society of Colonial Wars, the University club, Exmoor and Highland Park Country clubs and the Cornell club of Chicago.

Mrs. Lyla Shafer, Geneva, Dies After Long Illness

Funeral services for Mrs. Lyla Brundage Shafer, 37 years old, wife of Pierre Shafer, Aurora druggist, will be held at 2 p. m. Thursday in the Skoglund chapel, Geneva. Mrs. Shafer died Sunday in the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Brundage, 18 Richards street, Geneva, after an illness of five years. She was a graduate of the University of Wisconsin.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

Eyes that smart in cold weather demand a mascara that is waterproof. A new mascara not only withstands tears, voluntary or otherwise, but has a cream base that is kind to the lashes.

Next to a nose that turns a fire engine red the top in cold weather aggravations might well be eyes that water. It's all very well to know your sob psychology, we suppose—but there's a time and a type and a place for swimming eyes and tears that take your mascara drooling down with them are never a bargain.

There's not much you can do if your eyes will water when you're out in the cold—but you can and should do something about the mascara. Use one that will bear the trafic, that's waterproof. And one that doesn't sacrifice its other virtues to its ability to stay on unsmudged through laughter or tears or just plain eyes that stream when it's cold. Some of the waterproof ones will make the lashes brittle.

There is one we've just tried out that we like immensely. It won't make the lashes brittle, since it's rather creamy as well as waterproof. Neither, once you get the knack of brushing it on smartly, will it go on in sticky beads that make every lash an indictment of your sense of good taste. In other words, it won't look artificial, nor damage the lashes, and it will keep said lashes deftly darkened if you do happen to shed a few tears, voluntarily or otherwise.

This mascara isn't extremely new; but it is the latest mascara offering of one of our beauty specialists, brought out after a lot of experimentation. If you get a bit in your eyes it won't smart and it really doesn't smudge even though you indulge in the bad habit of rubbing your eyes.

It comes in the usual black and brown, plus a soft Persian blue that is immensely flattering, and a blue-green that is a knockout in the evening for the gray or the blue eye. Look it up if you've had trouble with runny mascara lately.

Enjoying Life May Indicate Unstableness

BY HUGO WESTERBERG.

A balanced personality is, of course, something to strive for, although what it means exactly is not very clear. The individuals who give the impression of having that quality do not always look happy, somehow. Happiness, one would think, should be the outcome of efforts toward that end.

MADGE EVANS.

The capacity for a complete enjoyment of existence probably is possessed by few and the person I knew who had it to the highest degree was lacking in mental equilibrium. His features were harmoniously developed with the exception of forehead and chin in side view. The forehead was excessively backward sloping and the chin too receding. This means that he jumped to conclusions and rushed into action without considering results. With the same ease he changed his mind and quit a job before it was finished. Comparing him to other persons with similar facial features and tendencies, but who did not conduct themselves in that manner, would disclose the underlying cause to be a difference in mouth construction.

It seems that a strong mouth, which denotes a desire for personal gain, is a guarantee of well planned, orderly behavior. At the same time it prevents yielding to other desires which bring quicker and more intense feelings of satisfaction.

Madge Evans, the screen actress, is somewhat more highly developed mentally, judging by her features, than is usually found with popularly acclaimed womanly charms. Her nose tip hangs down over the upper lip, denoting a conservative attitude intent on guarding against mistakes. The chin is broad in front view and protruding in side view, signifying a strength of purpose and perserverance in action. The forehead is high and wide, indicative of capacity for retention of numerous facts and for sustained thinking. The light eyebrows give an idea of vivid imagination, but a retiring disposition in contact with people.

Warner Bros. Seeks to Sell Music to Individual Stations

New York, Dec. 20.—(AP)—Warner Brothers Pictures, Inc., announced tonight that its music publishing houses were negotiating with individual radio stations for the continued broadcasting of Warner-controlled music.

The company announced last week that effective Jan. 1 all its music would be withdrawn from the air as a result of a dispute over royalties.

The company said the large networks "have shown no tendency to negotiate with us, and therefore this music will not be available for their use.

"It is a fact unknown to the public that heretofore networks as networks have paid nothing for the use of music."

The revised contract calls for the payment of a flat monthly fee equal to four times the quarter hour rate charged by the station.

"Helping Dad" Should Be Fun for Children

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

In regard to that Sunday article "For Fathers Only"—there was something else I wanted to say about giving the children a new deal in fathers for the New Year. But before I "get on" with it—I wonder if you've ever noticed that there's usually a boomerang quality about things you do for the children? If you send out a friendliness or an interest, I mean, it comes back to you like one of those curious weapons of the Australian bushmen—provided, of course, as with the boomerang, you throw it in the right way.

Or, if you're practical minded, I might recommend the expenditure of what it takes to give the children a new deal as a good investment.

Now to get on with the finishing up of that Sunday reminder.

Men, in the nature of things, haven't the patience that women have. The restult is that many a boy has a dread of doing any kind of work with father [like a carpentry job]—or of learning anything if father has to be the teacher—like having help with arithmetic homework.

"No! No-No! Not that tool. What's the matter with you, anyhow—not the monkey-wrench—the Stilson wrench!" isn't calculated to make a boy look forward to "helping dad."

"Here—give it to me—you go along—I'd rather do it alone; it takes less time," isn't likely to send a boy off to play with any sense of pride or companionableness.

Yet many fathers, without realizing it, with scolding and impatience of young, unskillful muscles, turn what might be a pleasant time for both of them into an experience that leaves one irritable and the other disappointed and let down. This is particularly true when a man is naturally mechanical and his son isn't.

This may not be the particular rock upon which you and your son or daughter split. But whatever it may be—and it often is a little thing made too much of—see if you can't change yourself into a father that the children like to do things with.

Club Parties Will Welcome the New Year

Junior Assembly to Be Held at Casino.

BY JUDITH CASS.

NEW YEAR'S EVE, traditionally the gayest night of each year, is here again, and like the rest of the world society is planning to say good-by to the old year and to welcome the new one with merriment and gayety. The hotels and restaurants anticipate record crowds tonight, but how the dancing rooms could be any more crowded than they have been every night during the last week I do not know. Society will have its watch parties mainly in clubs and homes, although as usual some of the younger and gayer members will "circulate" in the early morning hours and visit as many places as possible.

The debutantes are out of the limelight tonight, for no one big party is being given for them and they will make merry here, there, and everywhere, mingling with their elders.

The debs, doubtless, will wish they had been invited to the Junior Assembly at the Casino, but automatically when a girl "comes out" she is taken off the invitation list for the Assembly, just as a young man is when he graduates from college. No girl who will not be 15 by April 15 nor a boy who will not be 16 by that date is invited to the dance, either, for the women of the committee in charge have to be very careful not to have the list too long.

As it is there will be about 350 at the Assembly tonight with a number of dinner parties at the Casino preceding it. Tomato juice cocktails and peanut butter and bacon sandwiches are the favorite before dinner drink and hors d'oeuvres of the subdeb crowd, so the waiters at the Casino will be kept busy serving them tonight instead of the usual Martinis or Manhattans and more elaborate appetizers.

Dinner Parties for School Girls.

The Joseph T. Ryersons—she is chairman of the Assembly committee—and the I. Newton Perrys are giving a dinner at the Casino for their daughters, Mary Ryerson, at home from St. Timothy's, and Sally Perry, a student at Dobbs Ferry. This will be Mary's and Sally's first Assembly and needless to say, they are two of the most excited young ladies in town today. The Lester Armours and the Robert A. Gardners will have a party at the club, too, for their daughters, Betty Armour, who goes to Miss Walker's at Simsbury, Conn., and Mary Gardner, who is a student at Rosemary Hall in Greenwich.

The John C. Pitchers will have a dinner at the Casino, also, their guests being friends of their nephew, Arthur A. Burrows Jr. The George B. Harringtons are entertaining for their daughter, Ann, in their East Walton place residence before the Assembly.

Dutch Treat Party at Racquet Club.

A party that is certain to be jolly is a Dutch treat one that the young Potter Palmers and the Thomas Taylors have gotten up. With about 70 of their friends they will meet at the Racquet club for dinner and dancing, all in costume. Preceding dinner the Taylors are entertaining at a cocktail party at the Astor street residence of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gustavus F. Swift.

Another party that is sure to be a merry one is a late supper party that Miss Narcissa Swift is giving at the Lake Shore drive residence of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alden B. Swift. Mr. and Mrs. Swift left last Saturday for a trip to Australia and New Zealand to be away until April. The former Lydia Swift and her husband, Paul Rowan, just back from their wedding trip, will be with Miss Narcissa until their parents return.

Winter Sports Party. for Debutante Group.

Some of the debutante crowd will ring in the new year at a party that is rather unusual—a winter sports party—but as the hostesses, Mrs. Edwin E. Tullis, Mrs. Calvin Fentress Jr., and Mrs. James R. Addington, agree that the debutantes are tired of "sitting around tables" the party should be all the more fun for its originality.

Mrs. Tullis, Mrs. Fentress, and Mrs. Addington are entertaining for their debutante sister, Miss Mary Wood. They have invited about 50 of the debutante crowd to toboggan and skate at the Exmoor Country club at Highland Park, and after a couple of hours of sports the group will go to the Tullis home for a midnight supper and music.

An older group will see the new year in at the Oswald Locketts in Winnetka, where their son, John Lockett, is entertaining a group of post-debs and young marrieds.

Others in this same age group will celebrate the arrival of 1936 in the home of Mrs. W. Irving Osborne in Evanston at a dancing and supper party her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Frank G. Osborne, are giving. Mr. and Mrs. Osborne are entertaining for her brother, Gilbert H. Robinson, and his fiancée, Miss Alice May Dickinson, who are to be married on Feb. 8.

Chauncey B. Borland, Frank Hibbard, James C. Hutchins and F. Hampden Winston have organized a dancing party at which they will be hosts at the House on the Roof at the Hotel Sherman.

A SOCIAL worker formerly with the Cook county bureau of public welfare now labors in the vineyard of the Iowa Emergency Relief commission. She was in Chicago for a few days recently and when a movie was suggested as diversion during a free hour or two, she said she thought she would like to see "Mutiny on the Bounty." It was, she thought, concerned with the problems of a family on relief, and might be a useful picture for her to see.

SHREVE BADGER, back from a short visit in London, insists that he sent a cable to this department the night of the general election in London. He attended a party at the home of Mr. Selfridge, where everybody was sending off telegrams of congratulation and condolence to political candidates, all at the expense of the host. Both Henry Channon, formerly of Chicago, and Bartie Bull, Rosemary Bauer's husband, were elected to parliament, you will remember. Mr. Badger says he wired us that Chicago was leading in the British general election, having two successful candidates, whereas every other constituency had only one.

A CANADIAN visitor in Chicago was asked the other day about Canada's new governor general, Author and Historian John Buchan, recently raised to the peerage as Baron Tweedsmuir by King George of England, whose person he represents in the Dominion of Canada. Among other things he told a tale of a call paid on the new governor general by Prime Minister William Lyon MacKenzie King. To the surprise of the ald waiting outside the door, the governor general came out with Mr. King at the end of the visit, escorted him down the corridor, helped him on with his coat and accompanied him to the door, chatting in friendly fashion meanwhile. Probably aware that this was a little informal for Rideau hall and the representative of the person of the king, he turned to his aid as the door closed after his caller and asked, with a quizzical look:

"Well, Redfern, how am I doing?"

JEANETTE HERSEY, the small daughter of the Edward S. Herseys, who played the part of the mermaid in "The Pearl Diver," the Junior league's children's play, to be repeated next Saturday afternoon at the Chicago Historical society, was loathe to get out of her costume last Saturday when the play was over. Mrs. Philip Maher's undersea set was being taken down to make way for Mary Tilt Bartlett's sets for "The Witch of Salem" and Mrs. Maher suggested that Jeannette dress.

"O, but I'm sure my friends will come back stage to see me," answered 8 year old Jeanette, who had been applauded vociferously.

Logan Sisters Have Ball in Silver Forest

The several hundred guests who danced and supped at the Blackstone hotel last night at a ball Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Logan gave for their debutante daughters, Miss Shirley and Miss Loraine Logan, entered the Crystal ballroom to find it transformed into a room of shining silver—a silver forest.

The cream and gold of the ballroom walls was hidden completely by soft folds of silver cloth, and the same cloth hung from the balconies and was used to divide the balconies into boxes where guests could sit to watch the spectacle of youthful dancers whirling below.

Garlands of silvered oak leaves hung from the ceiling, and silver bay trees hung with garlands of silvered laurel flanked the two orchestra platforms. Mr. and Mrs. Logan, their daughters, and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Granger Logan, the debutantes' grandparents, received before a silver screen. A Grecian atmosphere was given to the setting by four slender silver columns topped by silver bowls which were filled with white roses.

The striking decorations were designed by Walter Frazier and Mrs. Stuart Logan. The only color in the silver scheme was furnished by lights reflecting on the décor.

Supper was served downstairs in the main dining room and in the room across the way from the dining room. A bar was opened in the Art room above the ballroom, and one of the private dining rooms upstairs was reserved for supper for the Misses Logan and their especial friends and escorts.

Miss Shirley and Miss Loraine never looked prettier than they did in their new ball gowns, Shirley's of pure white crêpe made on simple but sophisticated lines, and Loraine's of hyacinth blue taffeta made off the shoulder and studded with crystals. Miss Shirley wore a corsage of white orchids, and Miss Loraine carried a round bouquet of white camellias which were in keeping with her more demure gown.

Mrs. Stuart Logan also chose white, an elaborate gown of chiffon studded with brilliants, and her flowers were white orchids. The debtuantes' grandmother wore a gown of silver brocade under a crystal and silver cape and carried an unusual bouquet of white cyclamen. Her jewels were pearls, diamonds, and emeralds.

Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Logan dined before the ball at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Chadwick, who entertained for them. Mr. and Mrs. Frank Logan dined at home with Mr. and Mrs. Waldo Logan, who were entertaining for some of their friends before going down to the Blackstone, and Shirley and Loraine dined at the Casino, where Mr. and Mrs. Montgomery Orr [Louise McCormick of Baltimore] were giving a dinner-dance for his debutante sister, Miss Alice Orr, daughter of Mrs. Arthur Orr of St. Charles.

Mr. and Mrs. Orr limited invitations to their party to the debutantes, their beaux, and a few young married people.

Mrs. Montgomery Orr, Mrs. Arthur Orr, and the debutante received together. Miss Orr wore a gown of white made with a full skirt and trimmed with an orchid sash which matched the orchids pinned to one shoulder. The youthful hostess also wore white in a heavy silk material, and white orchids, and the debutante's mother wore a dress of silver-gray plaited chiffon.

New Patent Lether Handbags Brighten Winter Ensembles

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Practically every one in town is clutching a shining patent lether handbag under the arm or is getting ready to do so. Bright spots of color to accent or contrast your dark clothes! In vivid red, in still brighter greens, in a fascinating new color that looks like dusty apricot, in swanky black and in smart navy blue they are tremendously effective as pickups for otherwise dull ensembles.

The best buys are large—the larger the better—thin envelopes with or without handles, some of them lined with contrasting color, some of them with thin twin straps to slip over the coat cuff, others with a ring at the end, some square and others oblong. For all the neat new suits that are getting about under the warmth of a fur coat, for slim distinctive looking, one piece wool dresses, these are the bag buys! Patent lether belts matching exactly the bags are plentiful. With these wool dresses, this duet of bag and belt to match can't be beaten for striking color contrast.

And every one knows the trick of wearing patent lether when the weather drips and the streets are filled with slush. Patent lether pumps that can be restored to their original shine with a flip of a cleaning rag, matched to a patent lether bag that defies rain or fog or snow to dim its cheery appearance are get togethers that have acquired a reputation for transforming rainy day outfits into ensembles of unusual distinction, costume accents and accessories that are equally effective rain or shine, bright or dull shopping weather.

Ruth Draper Returns with Monodramas

First Appearance in City in Six Years.

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

Ruth Draper, who was regarded as the Sarah Bernhardt and Eleanora Duse of "monodrama" [one woman character sketches, self written] until Cornelia Otis Skinner came up to divide the empire, returned to the Chicago stage last night for a two weeks' engagement at the Selwyn theater.

Six years have passed since her last appearance here, according to a report which has been handed to me by my statistical department. A staggering length of time, covering the entire period of the economic depression—actually a historical epoch. Nevertheless the Draperites have not forgotten their favorite monologist; they attended the première in force, full of affection and eager to applaud.

These six years must have changed me sadly, for I found myself no longer regarding Miss Draper as a nonpareil in the art of platform character study. She is still an excellent entertainer, of course, graceful, ingenious and skillful; a clever, highbred lady with a charm all her own.

But it struck me that her sketches are too overburdened with detail for their slightness of subject; and that her method is somewhat "fussy" in its pantomimic aspects. For example, in the second episode of "Three Women and Mr. Clifford," dealing with a conversation on a motor car ride, she wriggled and jounced about on a sofa for ten restless minutes, to suggest the effect of an automobile in motion.

The program consisted of familiar material, as follows: "Opening A Bazaar," depicting a sweetly fluttering Milady of the British aristocracy attending to her duties amid the yeomanry; "Three Generations in A Court of Domestic Relations," dealing with minor family troubles among the Jewish folk of Manhattan Island; the above mentioned "Mr. Clifford" sequence; and "In A Church in Italy." Miss Draper's study of Mr. Clifford's three women—worshipping secretary, bored wife, and romantic mistress—used to be considered a masterpiece, but after six years of more serious problems it struck me as a fairly unimportant passage in a worn-out vein of the comedy of manners.

The bill be changed for every performance during Miss Draper's stay. She offers a repertory that includes twenty sketches.

Dr. Abt Is Made Honorary Member of Zeta Beta Tau

Dr. Isaac Arthur Abt, Chicago child specialist, last night became an honorary member of the Zeta Beta Tau national college fraternity. The initiation was held at the Standard club, 320 Plymouth court. The ceremony was attended by Herbert Steiner of New York, national president of the fraternity who is here attending the annual convention of the organization.

Good Morning!

I didn't care for the story, and the only acting that made a hit with me was that of Edmund Gwenn and a blonde named Dennie Moore. [You saw her in "Three Men on a Horse." Remember?] I thought Miss Hepburn and the Messrs. Grant and Aherne pitifully miscast, and the manner in which the plot was worked out queer without being intriguing.

In other words, deponent was bored. But she hopes that you won't be.

Sylvia is the daughter of an amiable, lovable and not at all clever rogue. [Mr. Gwenn.] She helps her father escape from authorities who want him for misappropriation of funds, and, dressed as a boy, accompanies him through a series of outlandish adventures in which they are joined by a handsome and unscrupulous soldier of fortune [Mr. Grant] and a maid servant with yernings to become a singer. "The Four Pink Pierrots"—that's what they call themselves—go on a tour which brings into their lives an artist [Mr. Aherne] and a sensation loving Russian lady known as Lily.

One look at Michael and Sylvia knows she's met her man. And now arises the problem of revealing herself to him as a girl. This is finally accomplished. . . . Tragedy comes to Papa Scarlett through his love for the unworthy Maudie—and for a long time it is button button who gets Michael, Sylvia or Lily—and if all of this sounds complicated, I assure you that it is. . . . The finale I hope will please you.

Miss Hepburn is a graceful creature and there are spots where her genius and her elfin humor flash through and brighten the skies a bit. But she seldom seems in the least a real person, and I may say the same for Carey Grant and Brian Aherne.

People who are familiar with the works of Compton Mackenzie—from whose novel this film was adapted—tell me he has a difficult style. Certainly his yarn has produced a picture that's so difficult for me to criticize that I'm going to give up—and let George do it.

Meaning you.

WEDDINGS

A note from Mrs. William H. Colvin, who with Mr. Colvin is aboard their yacht Micawber in Florida waters, brings the announcement of the marriage of Miss Willie Lee Morris of Dunnellon, Fla., daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Waters, to John Roberts Colvin, the William Colvins' son. The wedding took place on Dec. 23.

Mrs. John Cordner West of Winnetka announces the marriage of her daughter, Jessica, to John Stapleton Kenny of Baltimore, on Dec. 24, in New York. Miss West and Mr. Kenny met in Paris, France, three years ago, when he was studying to be a portrait painter and she was associated with the MacJannet school in St. Cloud. The bride is a graduate of the University of Illinois.

The Briar Pipe

By Stuart Palmer

SYNOPSIS.

Violet Feverel is killed, apparently by having been thrown from her horse, Siwash. She was taking an early morning ride in New York's Central park. Miss Hildegarde Withers, teacher and student of criminology, helps her friend, Inspector Piper, investigate. They suspect murder. Miss Withers finds a briar pipe on the spot where the dead girl had lain. Mrs. Maude Thwaite and her husband, Rufus, are owners of the stable where Siwash is kept, and Latigo Wells manager. Maude Thwaite desired to own Siwash. At Violet Feverel's apartment Miss Withers and Piper overtake Violet's half-sister, Barbara Foley, about to elope with Eddie Fry, Violet's boy friend and a race track gambler. Violet was divorced from Don Gregg, and had had him put in alimony jail. Thomas, who with his wife, Mattie, are old retainers of Don's father, Pat Gregg, comes in search of Violet. Old Mr. Gregg thinks he is going to die. Thomas hints at foul play. Don Gregg had been released from alimony jail on a fake writ before his wife's death, though he has an alibi and is not held. The autopsy of Dr. Bloom, medical examiner, reveals Violet Feverel was killed by a BB bullet which hit her throat. An expert tells Miss Withers that the "murder" pipe's owner had false teeth. She buys apples with which she hopes to find who among the suspects has false teeth. Piper and Miss Withers call at the Gregg home. Pat Gregg hints there may be a second murder after the big race on Saturday at Beaulah Park. Abe Thomas admits it was he who got Don out of jail. Latigo Wells is fired from Thwaites. The day of the race arrives. Miss Withers and Piper and all the suspects attend. Miss Withers wins on Wallaby, a long shot. She knew he had been Violet Feverel's selection. After the race Miss Withers and Piper head for the Gregg home, driven there by Capt. Tinker of the local police. Pat Gregg had died—of a stroke, the local doctor insists. Abe Thomas had attended the race. Miss Withers thinks the stroke might have been artificially induced. She and Piper return late that night to the Gregg place, and as they near it notice a blaze. They catch Don Gregg setting fire to it and preparing to kill Abe Thomas with an ax as he comes out. Miss Withers accuses Thomas of the murders. She knows Don is only trying to avenge the murder of his father.

INSTALMENT XLIV.

THE MURDERER'S MOTIVE.

Piper said that he was sorry about the delay. "We were deciding who'd have him," he explained. "Abe Thomas, I mean. I finally convinced the captain that our murder came first, so we decided that he could keep the prisoner for a couple of days and have his chance at the publicity, and then we'll extradite the rat and try him in New York for the Feverel job."

The inspector leaned into the roadster, then moved as if to look into the rumble seat. "Hildegarde, I must be getting absent-minded! I could swear that I left another prisoner in your charge."

"I let young Gregg go home," Miss Withers cut him off. "He told me what he knew. All of a sudden he realized why he had been left behind at the track—and he guessed the significance of his boyhood air gun being planted where he hadn't seen it in years! He went mad—but he's sane now. And there are chickens and live stock on that place of his, including the mare and the red colt. Somebody has to feed them this morning."

Piper shrugged. "All right, you win. Regarding Mrs. Thomas you win, too—because we're all satisfied that she didn't know what was going on. So she's being sent to some relatives upstate. But never mind them, Hildegarde. What about Thomas? The reporters will be swarming up on the first train, and it wouldn't look well for me to stall when they ask me how I did it."

Miss Withers climbed wearily out of the car. "Come along, let's stroll in the park where the reporters won't be able to find you until you know all. . . ."

The inspector, like most city dwellers inclined to avoid walking as the plague, found a park bench beneath a spreading elm, and lit his last cigar. Well, Hildegarde?"

"It was a murder among murders," she said thoughtfully after a moment. "Getting at the killer was like peeling an onion—there was always another layer. Yet it was Thomas, Oscar, who killed Violet Feverel!"

Piper nodded impatiently. "I know that—the guy even brags about it now. But how did you figure it out? He didn't even have a ghost of a motive. Family servants don't kill because somebody did a bad turn to the old master or his son. . . ."

"He had a motive," Miss Withers said. "But let's go back for a moment. We know Thomas came from Australia twenty years ago, got a job with Gregg when he was a wealthy breeder of race horses, and stayed. He watched over the son of the household, watched him ride his bicycle and shoot his airgun. He attended horses; while his employer was away at the tracks he ran the place. And he saved his money.

"But life holds more than working and saving, Oscar. Even for a dried up, dingy little man. There was a cook in the Gregg household, the fair, fat Mattie. Proximity will work wonders—but it took twenty years for Mattie to win Abe Thomas. They were married last year—and it would be my own guess that Mr. Thomas at once decided that he had, er—come a cropper is the term, I believe. That large and sentimental woman would make any man desire to throw it all away and go back to his native homeland. Without the wife of his bosom, naturally—yet he couldn't go back without his 'pile.' So——

"Meanwhile Don Gregg left home and married a professional model about the time the two old family servants underwent matrimony. Nor did that marriage turn out too well. The young couple were divorced, but the bride kept her wedding present from her father-in-law, that big red race horse. She kept him out of vanity, and perhaps out of spite. She also managed to get the court to award her a big alimony from Don Gregg, who couldn't pay it. Neither could his father, for the old man had been guessing more wrongly on the races than he liked to admit.

"And then, Oscar, Abe Thomas saw his great chance. In an announcement of the season's big race at Beaulah Park, only a mile from home, he saw that one of the horses—a nag so dubious that bookmakers were even then offering almost 30 to 1 on him—was entered under the name of 'Wallaby'!"

"So what?" demanded Piper.

"Wallabies come from Australia," Miss Withers explained. I noticed today that almost every bettor risked his money because of some hunch, some sentimental association connected with the name. Wouldn't it seem reasonable that when Abe Thomas finally broke his lifelong rule against gambling on the races he would plunge on the horse which symbolized the continent 'down under' which he longed to revisit?

"Remember the notations made by Pat Gregg on the back of the race track announcement? I found out through Eddie Fry that the old man had been sounding out bookmakers on where to get the best odds for a large sum of money on a long shot in this race— and we know now that Pat Gregg didn't have a large sum of money of his own! He was placing the money as a favor to his old employé, Oscar." She sniffed. "Only—he didn't place it."

The inspector was waking up. "You mean—he gave it to Violet Feverel to bail his boy out of jail?"

She nodded. "He wanted the money desperately—and he was positive that there wasn't one chance in a million of Wallaby winning. If Wallaby lost, Thomas would never know. Pat Gregg went down to the city and called on the beautiful estranged wife of his son—he paid her the $900 which wasn't his own, and took a receipt——"

"How do you know he went down there? Maybe she came up to the farm?"

"Nonsense! He wouldn't want Thomas to get wind of it. Besides, that blue notepaper on which the receipt was written could have come from a desk in Violet's apartment, but never from the Gregg home. Anyway, don't blame the old man too much. The boy was in jail without ever having broken any law, and Violet Feverel had played with him like a cat with a mouse. As a climax she had the boy rearrested because he hadn't paid alimony while in alimony jail—with the $900 safe in her bank!"

"Why was she murdered?" Piper pressed. "Was Thomas sore because she got his dough?"

"Thomas had to kill Violet Feverel—in order to kill the old man!" She held up her hand. "Why did he want to kill the old man? Because he knew he was being double-crossed! Gregg collapsed on the stair when he heard that his son was back in jail. He was put to bed, unconscious, by his faithful servant—who, if I am not mistaken, calmly went through his master's pockets!

"There was proof enough in the billfold—the receipt. He had no chance to get his money back, no chance of legal redress. He knew that it was impossible that the old man could have got hold of $900 anywhere else, so Thomas took a tremendous plunge. He went to see Violet!"

Saturday to Be Set Aside for Juvenile Chefs

Miss Meade to Instruct Children in Cooking.

"Hostessing with Sunday Suppers," a booklet of menus and recipes for light evening lunches, is on sale at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street, and Tribune Tower, for 3 cents. By mail, 5 cents, stamps or coin. Address mail requests to Mary Meade, Chicago Tribune.

BY MARY MEADE.

Every Saturday we'd like to outline one, or maybe two, easy-to-make, fun-to-make cookables, just for young beginners in the culinary arts. No discussion of the problems of feeding the school child, understand; no complicated recipes that require mother's translation and help—just the sort of interesting, simplified cookery that can be done, enthusiastically and independently, without cluttering up the whole kitchen or disarranging your own Saturday schedule of work. How does it sound?

If your young hopefuls already like to dabble in the kitchen, we're pretty sure you'll welcome this cookster column, because we're suggesting it just as much in hope of abetting you in their first cooking lessons as of offering a new and constructive hobby for the beginners. We promise to try to make each outline so clear and explicit that your part of the bargain will be no more than giving them the morning paper and a free hand in the kitchen for an hour or so.

Now to put it up to the members of the Saturday cookster club themselves. We hope you already know that it's fun to cook, and that you really can make good things to eat without any grownup pestering at all. Or, if you've never tried any cooking before, how'd you like to be able to make fudge for the gang on Saturday afternoon, or muffins for dad's Sunday breakfast, or "twist" for the next Scout hike? [Yep, we mean boys as well as girls. We hate to hurt young womanly pride, but boys really are much better cooks than girls if they put their minds to it. More of that "do or die" spirit.]

Hon. , now, won't you write me what you think of the idea? I may be all wrong about how interested you will be. Or, if I'm right, and you do approve, how about a little encouragement, both from mothers and prospective members of the cookster club?

have invited 100 of their friends for dancing and supper in their Winnetka home. The Augustus A. Carpenters will entertain similarly in their Lake Forest home. Friends of their son and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Keith Carpenter, and of their daughter and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Otis, also have been invited to the Carpenter party.

Barrett Scudders Will Give Supper.

The Barrett Scudders are having a crowd of friends in for a late buffet supper in their Lake Forest home. The Clifford Templetons and her father, Dr. Louis E. Schmidt, will entertain several score of their friends in Dr. Schmidt's house on Bellevue place at an all night buffet supper party. Mr. and Mrs. John W. Root are giving a dinner in their East Walton place apartment.

About 175 of the Onwentsia club's members will welcome the new year in the familiar setting of the club's dancing and lounging rooms, transformed for the evening with Christmas trees, colored lights, and balloons. Among those who will dine and dance and later eat breakfast at this party are the Kimball Sallsburys, the Kent S. Clows, the Leslie Wheelers, the Howard Linns, Prince Cantacuzene, and a Dutch treat party which has been arranged by Miss Frances Jeffery, Miss Louise Forgan, Miss Peggy Hixon, and Miss Betty Brooks. Dinner will be served at 9 o'clock and breakfast at 2 o'clock.

The same number of guests is expected at the Saddle and Cycle club's "watch" party, where the decorations will be smilax and lighted celluloid balls. Among those who have made reservations are the junior Edward F. Swifts, the Henry Babsons, Henry G. Miller, the Charles Y. Freemans, Paget K. Cady, whose table will be a Dutch treat one; Nelson L. Barnes, Col. Ralph H. James, Bernard F. Rogers, Hopewell L. Rogers, Melvin Brorby, Fletcher Durbin, Dr. Frank W. Blatchford, Ayres Boal, Robert Stevenson, and Secor Cunningham Jr.

Tavern Club to Have Party.

Nearly 200 Tavern club members will attend what surely will be the "highest" New Year's eve party, for the club is atop the 333 North Michigan avenue building. Among those who will have guests at the Tavern are the William C. Boydens and the Alfred Ettlingers.

A round hundred will greet the new year at the Cliff Dwellers' club, where a gay dinner-dance is planned, with breakfast later. Murry Nelson, Chalkley Jay Hambleton, William H. Barnes, Hubert Burnham, Malcolm Franklin, and Lawrence B. Perkins are among those who will be at this party.

The Officers' club of Fort Sheridan is holding a New Year's eve dinner-dance tonight at the clubhouse, where a number of officers and ladies of Fort Sheridan and their guests from off the post will make it a gay occasion. The clubroom is being specially decorated for the party.

Lake Geneva, which is filled with Chicagoans during the warm weather months, will be the scene of many house parties this week, proving what the year 'round residents of the vacant little Wisconsin town claim, that it is a winter as well as a summer resort. The lake is frozen in Geneva bay far enough for good ice boating and skating and every one who is at the lake is enjoying excellent winter sports.

Lake Geneva business men and clubwomen coöperated to decorate their city for Christmas and every one who has seen the decorations agrees with the bus driver who remarked over a cup of coffee in a lunchroom in Lake Geneva, "This certainly is the prettiest town between Chicago and Minneapolis."

Mrs. Bartholomay Osborne went to Lake Geneva Saturday to open Black Point, the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Bartholomay. Mrs. Osborne is having a houseful of guests, including her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Simeon B. Chapin Jr., who with their children came from their home in Greenwich, Conn., to spend the holidays with her relatives.

The Wrigley clan gathered before Christmas at Lake Geneva and so did the family of Frederick L. Maytag, who owns Ceylon Court, the former residence of the late John J. Mitchells.

The Daniel Peterkins and Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Gartz are among others who are spending this week at their Lake Geneva homes. The junior Gartzes and their children, Gloria, Frederick, and Gail, are there and the Augustus K. Maxwells and their boy, "Sonny," hope to go up for New Year's day.

Mrs. Philip T. Starck had planned to go to Lake Geneva for the whole week, but now it is only the younger members of her family, and not all of them, who are there, for young Philip was operated on for appendicitis Thursday at the Passavant hospital and his mother has stayed at home so she can see him every day.

Gay Winter Party at Stocks' Home.

A gay party set out Sunday morning by automobile to greet the new year in the Frederick Stocks' country place at Ephraim, Wis. In the party were the Stocks' son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred M. Wolfe, Prince and Princess Rostislav, the Henry N. Rowleys of Lake Forest, and the Frederick Blossoms of Peoria. Ice boating, skating, and skiing will fill the days until the party returns on Sunday.

The Wisconsin wilds drew a number of winter sports enthusiasts up to Eagle River Saturday for a prolonged week-end that will end on Thursday. The Cyrus M. Adlers helped organize a party of ten, Mr. and Mrs. Wilmarth Ickes of Winnetka were in another group, and Mr. and Mrs. George A. Mason Jr. were in another party of Winnetkans.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Linn will be taking the train for New York tomorrow, for she is sailing Friday on the Manhattan for England. Hunting in that country and in Ireland will occupy most of her time while she is away. She plans to return home about the middle of March.

Among Mrs. Linn's Irish hosts will be Viscount Adare and his wife, the former Nancy Yuille of New York. The viscountess is a sister of Mrs. Wolcott Blair.

Luncheon Today for Miss Harris.

With all the activities involving her own daughters, Miss Nancy and Miss Emmy Lou Freund, who are here for the holidays, Mrs. Ernest Freund has found time to give a luncheon today at her Woodlawn avenue home for Miss Valeria Harris, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hayden B. Harris, and thirty of her sister debutantes. Miss Nancy Freund returns Sunday to Sarah Lawrence, and the following day her younger sister goes back to Dobbs Ferry.

Four young north shore girls are entertaining at a tea-dance this afternoon at the Indian Hill club for three debutantes, Miss Frances Price, Miss Katherine Armstrong and Miss Dorelle Moulton. Miss Marianne and Miss Jane Hoover, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Ray P. Hoover of Evanston, and Miss Ruth and Miss Prudence Johnson, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Homer H. Johnson of Kenilworth, will be the hostesses.

Country Club Parties Tonight.

The Knollwood, Barrington Hills, Exmoor, and Geneva clubs have planned parties for tonight. The Knollwood party is a supper-dance with hours from 11 until 5 o'clock, and the Barrington Hills party will be dinner, dancing, and breakfast. The Exmoor party will be a buffet supper with dancing.

There is no regular party at the Indian Hill club, but a group of families who have been meeting regularly at the club for several years on New Year's eve again will celebrate at a small informal party in the German village. These families, mostly members of the board at the club, will gather for supper and dancing. The Robert S. Lairds, the Warren Shoemakers, Mr. and Mrs. Harry C. Edmonds, and the Peirce C. Wards are in this group.

The Skokie Country club will have a dinner-dance to celebrate the advent of the new year tonight, and tomorrow there will be open house with music and dancing after 4 o'clock. On Friday night there will be a dance for the "teens" of members and their friends.

Members of the Kenilworth club will welcome the new year with a dance this evening to culminate in a breakfast at 3 o'clock tomorrow morning. Tomorrow afternoon there will be open house and dancing.

A FRIEND IN NEED

Needs Overcoat for Job.

Dear Miss Brown: Have you an overcoat size 44 or 46? One year ago last August, I was seriously injured and subsequently lost one arm at the elbow, which has more or less incapacitated me in my trade of painting and decorating. However, I have a good prospect of a job early in the new year, but need a warm coat for working outside.

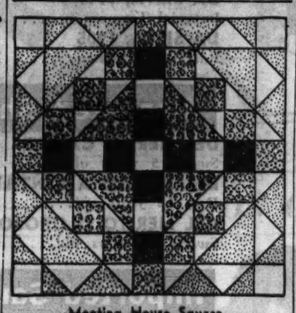
Quaint Quilt Is Old Fashioned in Spirit and Fabric



Meeting House Square.

Patterns of this design are 5 cents, stamps or coin. Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices: One South Dearborn street or Tribune Tower.

BY NANCY CABOT.

"Meeting House Square" is an old-fashioned quilt pattern and made from old-fashioned prints. The original quilt was made from two shades of blue printed material, red, white, and plain blue. The patch arrangement formed deep blue diamonds alternating with red blocks of a lighter shade. The coverlet is made entirely of pieced blocks, each measuring 13½ inches square. A present day quiltmaker may have a wide selection of color arrangements rather than the conventional red and blue.

According to CULBERTSON

Tuesday is Experts' day in Ely Culbertson's column. Write your bridge comments, suggestions, and interesting hands to him, care of this paper. For questions, remember to inclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

PARTNER OR OPPONENT?

Paradoxically, perhaps, the expert often appears at his worst in a game with three dubs. Actually, there is sound basis for this: Expert contract is so essentially a partnership affair that a player accustomed to close coöperation must feel lost when deprived of it. The dubs, on the other hand, never having known the meaning of coöperation, merely continue on their blithe, lone wolf course with sublime [and too often justified] faith in the blind goddess.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 N. T.	Pass	2 N. T.	Pass
3 N. T. [final bid]

West opened his fourth best spade and his partner put on the queen with something of a flourish. Declarer won the king, and led the king, queen, and jack of hearts, West holding off until the third round, waiting for a directing signal from East. East was obliging. He discarded the nine of diamonds. West, like a trusting lamb, obediently led his diamond queen. Declarer let out a prodigious sigh of relief and spread his cards for eleven tricks.

West, noting that his partner, not declarer, held the vital jack of spades, sat in stunned silence. Not so East, however.

"Good heavens, man!" he bellowed, "why didn't you run your spade suit?"

"I was under the delusion," returned West icily, "that since you played the queen to the first trick you couldn't have the jack. Also, I was fool enough to believe your diamond signal!"

"That's the trouble with you experts!" East sneered, "always playing by the book. I was false-carding, and you fell for it!"

TODAY'S QUESTION.

Question: My partner, vulnerable, opened the bidding with one spade. The next hand, not vulnerable, overcalled two clubs. What should I do, holding: ♠ K 10 8 4, ♥ A Q J 6, ♦ A K 9, ♣ K 2?

Answer: You should make the strongest bid possible—namely: three clubs. It is true that this bid implies what is not actually true [that you hold a first-round club control], but the power of your hand amply compensates for the misstatement. A small slam seems assured. Your only problem is to investigate grand slam possibilities.

Cold Cream Is Gracie Allen's Way to Beauty

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Gracie Allen, well known radio comedienne, is a petite person, dainty, feminine, dark haired, and blue eyed, with loads of what it takes to win folks over. Until the nursery for her two adopted children, Sandra, 17 months old and Ronnie, 6 months, was established on the third floor up, Gracie weighed 103. But as the youngsters' weight goes up Gracie's goes down, racing up and down two flights to see if any new teeth are sprouting or if Ronnie's reported three ounce gain can be true.

On that fine skin of her's, Gracie Allen reports a cold cream cleansing routine, supplemented tri-monthly by steaming and ice astringent daily. As for dress, she'd rather look like one of the crowd than to be known as one of the ten best dressed, or the twenty. But give Gracie furs. Swathe her in furs, grand, luxurious furs. Bury her in furs when she dies. Ermine with black tipped tails will be all right. Sables will do, or a silver fox shroud might be compromised on. She's not too particular, just so that it's fur. It's her weakness, or was until Sandra and Ronnie barged in and precipitated a riot at de luxe sachet counters. Their clothes are tucked away midst scents that are idyllic.

Perfumes are another passion. But a fickle fancy here. One scent is given a rush. A new one is adopted with the last one being requested never to be heard from again. BUT . . .

Jews and Christians Will Sponsor Seminar in City

A seminar to discuss contributions to citizenship made by Jews, Catholics and Protestants will be held here the week of March 16 at one of the universities, it was decided yesterday at a meeting of the executive committee of the Chicago Round Table of Jews and Christians in the Morrison hotel. The organization will sponsor the seminar. Judge John P. McGoorty, vice president, presided in the absence of Charles G. Dawes, president.

Chic for Household Hours

WOMAN'S HOUSE DRESS.

Attractive attire is most important to the woman who spends many of her hours in the domestic rôle. This house frock, pattern No. 2704, is designed with a greater degree of chic than is customarily found in dresses of this type. Contrasting fabrics give an illusion of slenderness through the bustline. The skirt and lower portion of the bodice are of print with a white background and the vestee and ragian shoulders carry out, in solid color, the predominant shade of the print. The collar, lapels, and roomy patch pocket are trimmed with the print and the cuffs also are fashioned of it.

Violet and white is a suggested color scheme, lovely in cottons for the heavier tasks of keeping house, and attractive in washable silks for the leisure of the afternoon.

IT'S ROSE BOWL TIME, SO RAIN HITS CALIFORNIA

Stanford May Play S. M. U. in Mud.

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Pasadena, Cal., Dec. 30.—Good, old fashioned rain, of the sort similarly unwelcome in Palo Alto and Dallas, today threw its moist and threatening gloom over the camps of both contenders in Wednesday's Rose bowl football game between Stanford and Southern Methodist. Slight drizzles began at night. Heavier rain, the forecaster said, probably will fall tomorrow or Wednesday, or both.

With the purchasers of the 86,400 seats broaching out their hip boots for the purpose of wading the morass which in wet weather separates the Rose bowl parking area from the concrete bowl itself, practice was wound up by both squads, except for a limbering up on the field of play itself which is scheduled for tomorrow.

Stanford Takes It Easy.

While the clouds lowered, Coach Matty Bell sneaked in one last good preliminary practice for his rampant Mustangs this morning on Occidental college field. Stanford players lolled around their hotel until 2 o'clock when Coach Tiny Thornhill took them to Brookside park for a two hour drill that did not have the scrimmage elements present in Southern Methodist's drill.

Stanford hopes, which sagged yesterday, when Full Back Bobby Grayson stayed in bed all day with a bad cold, rose again today. Grayson joined his teammates for the afternoon formation rehersal, by permission of Dr. Fritz Roth. Bobby has been treated for a sore throat. Dr. Roth said he kept the big boy in bed yesterday more as a precautionary measure than anything else.

Moscrip Patched Up.

Monk Moscrip, Stanford's other ailing ace, will enter the game wearing a special helmet to support his recently fractured jaw, but in stronger physical shape than seemed possible for him to attain one week ago. Moscrip's weight fell off considerably while he was having the broken jawbone treated. As for Monk's injured left knee, that is something neither the surgeons nor anybody else can forecast about. He is wearing a brace. Maybe he will be able to stick out all sixty minutes as he did in Stanford's other two recent Rose bowl games against Columbia and Alabama.

Stanford, with a line averaging about 198, ought to benefit on a muddy field. The coast team has always figured to have whatever edge there may be in the line, Southern Methodist averages about 190 in the line. But Stanford's record as a team of mudders has not been impressive.

Lose Two in Mud.

The Palo Altans have lost four games in the last three seasons, two of them on heavy fields. Columbia turned the trick in the Rose bowl just two years ago, 7 to 0, and the Lions were outweighed far more than the Dallas team will be Wednesday.

Southern Methodist played Texas A. & M. in the rain. The Mustangs won that game with a clear margin. But of course the Texas Aggie line is not the Stanford wall of Moscrip and Topping at ends, Reynolds and Beadle tackles, Adams and Rouble guards, and Muller at center. Unquestionably Southern Methodist's fiery wide open attack will be dampened by rain. Everybody knows it is more difficult to flip a slippery ball and to hold it after you catch it.

Indians' Beef Should Help.

All in all, if the weather man makes good on his promise of rain—and he has every reason from Hawaii to Seattle to back up his belief the present coast storm will spill something in Pasadena tomorrow or next day—the teams should take the field with Stanford figured on having an edge defensively. With Hamilton, Paulman, and Rouble throwing about 550 pounds of burly interference before Grayson and Half Back Coffis, Stanford's camp here also figures it will have a little the best of it in the running attack.

Berwanger to Get Tribune's Silver Football Monday

Athletic Director Nelson T. Metcalf of the University of Chicago has set Monday night as the time for presentation of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE'S twelfth annual silver football to Jay Berwanger, Maroon gridiron ace.

Presentation will be made on the Midway floor between halves of the Chicago-Wisconsin basketball game when the Badgers, 1935 co-champions with Purdue and Illinois, open the 1936 local conference season.

In addition to the silver football Berwanger will receive a white gold football, watch fob size, as token of his prowess. These white gold footballs are awarded to each of the ten players chosen by their teammates as most valuable to their respective elevens.

REWARD FOR ATHLETICS.

PUBLISHED in The Wake last week was a letter from a former high school football star stating that he was working in a hotel and saving his money toward a college course in civil engineering. He asked names of colleges which award scholarships or offer jobs to football players. Here are excerpts from letters of advice to him from Helpers:

Harvey: Tell that young fellow to jump at the chance of going to a teachers' college with all expenses paid and to forget all about civil engineering, which today is the most demoralized of all professions or trades which a man may follow.

If he goes into pedagogy and gets into the school system of any of our large cities he is assured steady work with plenty of leisure, good salary, and a pension in old age. In engineering he will have low pay, heavy responsibility, long hours without extra compensation, unsteady work, and a hopeless old age.

Plumb Bob.

HTW: If I were that young fellow I'd try for appointment to either of the service schools, Annapolis or West Point. Failing that, a recognized technical school in a large city, such as Armour here in Chicago or M. I. T. in Boston, where chances of working his way would be greater.

I attended the University of Chicago, but am not a graduate. I wanted West Point or Annapolis, but could not make the grade physically.

C. J. S.

Wake: If this lad wants to play football and work part time to defray expenses he better choose some course other than civil engineering. Any engineering schedule is too exacting to allow much extracurricular activities. . . . True, what this lad purposes has been accomplished, but on the average it can't be done. . . . Because of the hornet's nest stirred up recently regarding collegiate athletics, scouts and enthusiastic alumni have taken to cover and are not coming out until the buzzing stops. It looks as if this lad had opened on a pair of jacks right under the gun.

J. H. R., Notre Dame, '10.

I am flying away into limitless space
To the land of the years that are past;
My life I have spent to its fullest extent
And I'm going to leave you at last.
In the dead of the night I shall hurry away,
On my back I shall carry a pack
To drop in the bag of the great Yesterday
The things I can never give back.
I have taken my choice of the men you have loved,
Will Rogers and Post and the rest.
I shall drop from my load the laws and the code
I am leaving for you a number of things,
The problems I have not worked out,
You'll find them a burden, no doubt.
Now, I'm flying away for my time is but short,
My brother shall soon come alive,
So, Good Fortune, fix in the new Thirty-six
What you passed up in old Thirty-five.

PREP QUINTETS REACH U. OF C. SEMI-FINALS

Farragut, Foreman, Crane and Bowen Win.

Tourney Facts

YESTERDAY'S RESULTS.
Farragut, 39; Austin, 20.
Foreman, 38; Lake View, 33.
Crane, 41; Tilden, 29.
Bowen, 39; Tuley, 28.

TODAY'S GAMES.
7 p. m.—Farragut vs. Foreman.
8 p. m.—Crane vs. Bowen.

Farragut, Foreman, Crane, and Bowen High schools are the semi-finalists in the University of Chicago's sixth annual holiday basketball tournament. Pouring an average of 39 points each through the hoops at the Midway fieldhouse these four yesterday shot their way to victory. Austin, Lake View, Tilden, and Tuley in that order were defeated.

The winners will celebrate New Year's eve tonight when Farragut meets Foreman at 7 o'clock and Crane faces Bowen at 8 o'clock for the right to enter the final round tomorrow night. Regardless of which two lose, all four teams will be early abed, for there is a third place to be settled as well as a championship.

Losers Average 27 Points.

Yesterday's matches were contests of offense, as testified by the fact that 267 points were scored in the four games, despite the shortened quarters used in tournament play. The losers averaged 27 points, and only Farragut, standout defensive team of the meet, held its opponent, Austin, below 28 points. Farragut and Foreman are surprises as semi-finalists as is Bowen. Crane was an advance favorite.

Dutch Gladstone of Bowen led the individual scorers with 17 points yesterday. In the tourney to date the leaders are Harry Krotish of Crane, with 42 points; Marshall Seaborg of Lake View, whose team is now eliminated, with 40, and Quinto Valentino of Crane, with 37. The west section still has two teams in the meet, Crane and Foreman, while the central and south sections have one survivor each in Farragut and Bowen.

Score Tied Four Times.

Four times in the closely contested first half of the Farragut-Austin match the score was tied. Farragut unlimbered its clever short passing game late in the half to make ten consecutive points before Austin scored again. George Pelic, spearhead of the Farragut attack, who had made 16 points in his team's first round game, led the assault with 12 points.

On three baskets, Harry Anderson, Austin's star guard, put the west side quintet into an early 6 to 3 lead. Pelic and Bill Biros gave Farragut

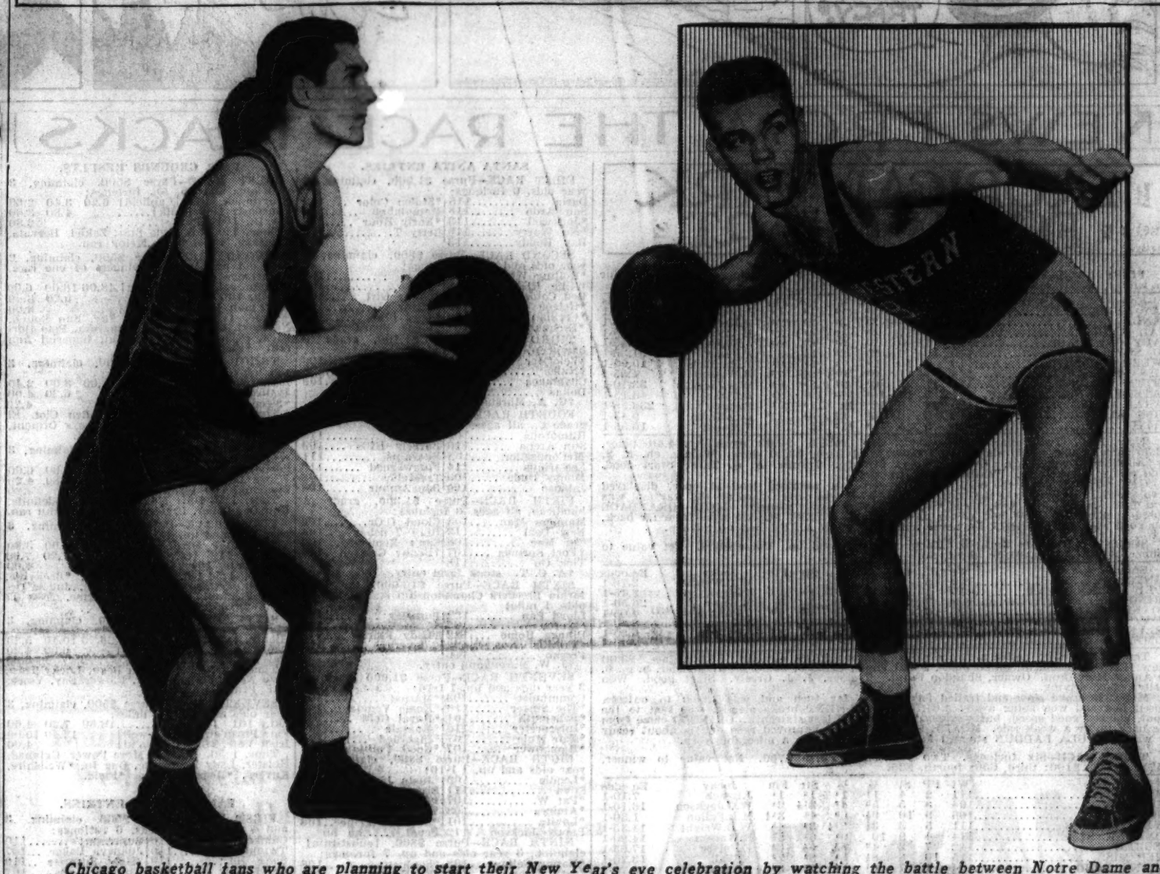
ON GUARD IN NEW YEAR'S EVE BATTLE



Chicago basketball fans who are planning to start their New Year's eve celebration by watching the battle between Notre Dame and Northwestern at Patten gymnasium tonight will see these young men taking care of a couple of the guard positions. George Ireland (left) will be in the Notre Dame lineup and Hi Bender will play for the Wildcats. (Story on page 19.)

Silver Skates Attract Out of Town Entrants

More than 1,000 entries now have been received for the Silver Skates derbies which will be held at Garfield park Jan. 11 and 12. The great percentage of these have come from individuals, so it is easy to see that the total entry list should be four times the present number when all team entries from parks, playgrounds and clubs have been received. The deadline for entries is midnight next Sunday.

The large number of entries, however, should not discourage any boy or girl from entering the meet. There are seven age classes, and in the boys' midget [under 12 years]; boys' juvenile [12 and 13 years of age], and boys' junior class [14 and 15 years], the competition will be most keen. Few, if any, have had experience in previous races, so it is impossible to tell who will have the best chance to win a pair of silver skates.

Moreover, for those who do not believe they can win one of the five major prizes offered in each class, there is the incentive of the gold medal which will be awarded to each winner of a preliminary race. This award accounts for the present number of individual entries.

Many entries are received from towns and cities in Chicagoland. One of last year's winners, Robert Dennis, Silver Skates champion in the boys' intermediate division, came from Iowa. It is reasonable to believe that one or more of this year's champions will be from out of Chicago.

Among entries received yesterday was that of Marie Miller, of Champaign, who will race in the girls' senior class. This class will compete in preliminaries and finals on Sunday, Jan. 12. The preliminaries will be decided over a half mile course and the championship at one mile.

Illinois Wesleyan Five Beats Centenary, 40 to 18

Bloomington, Ill., Dec. 30.—[Special.]—Illinois Wesleyan won its fourth straight game tonight, routing Centenary college, 40 to 18. Four Centenary regulars, Serra, Snyder, Benion and Hooper, were forced from the game on personal fouls.

Talking It Over

[Copyright: 1935: By The Chicago Tribune.]

ELLSWORTH VINES in a recent talk at Pasadena, Cal., said: "Professional tennis as compared with amateur is like comparing major league baseball to the bush leagues. Professional players for the most part are seasoned amateur stars who tired of the sham of the simon pures and work for their pay instead of sipping tea for it. We do not dwell in the social whirl clouds and can keep our heads up when we aren't on the court instead of being called tennis bums." . . . There seems to be a little heresy developing in Notre Dame football. . . . Clipper Smith, coach at Santa Clara, remarked in a radio broadcast some time ago that Bobby Grayson of Stanford is the only player he has seen who compares with George Gipp, Notre Dame's all-time ranking left half back. . . . Immediately after Smith had concluded his talk Slip Madigan, coach at neighboring St. Mary's college, called him up demanding to know how he could possibly compare Grayson with Gipp. . . . Both Smith and Madigan were teammates of the Notre Dame star. . . . Maj. Lenox Lohr, newly elected head of the National Broadcasting company, has two hobbies, his farm on the Fox river below McHenry, Ill., and springer spaniels. . . . He bought a field trial winning springer last fall. . . .

George Arnold, professional at Kildeer Country club, will be located at Punta Gorda, Fla., this winter. . . . G. A. Richards, Detroit radio magnate who owns the world's champion Lions football club, is accompanying the team to California and Hawaii, but he is letting his coach, Potsy Clark, handle all details of the post-season games. . . . Frank Moran, who fought Jess Willard for the heavyweight championship, is playing a sailor character rôle in a Hollywood film. . . . Feg Murray, former Stanford and Olympic hurdler, who now draws cartoons for a syndicate, is the table tennis champion of the Hollywood movie colony. . . . To give you an idea of the state of Hollywood table tennis we inform you that this department cleaned up Mr. Murray seven straight games in a recent intersectional match. . . . Fred Corley, State street store executive, spends his spare time with a shotgun on hunting trips. . . .

Frank Calder, president of the National Hocky league, used to be sports editor of a Montreal newspaper. . . . Previous to that he was a school teacher. . . . Bob Zuppke, who is wintering in Arizona and California, will be back the latter part of January to address a national engineers' convention in Chicago. . . . Spring football practice will begin at Illinois about Feb. 1. . . . Mushy Callahan, once junior welterweight champion, now a property man at Warner Brothers studio, was given $50 the other day by Al Jolson to start a bank account for his infant son. . . . Recent announcement of the marriage of Wayne Millner, Notre Dame's all-American end, was not news to school officials, whom Millner informed of the event at the time it occurred. . . . There is no rule at Notre Dame prohibiting students from marrying. . . .

There is a strong likelihood that Henry Shuford, full back, will come out of the Rose Bowl tomorrow as star of the Southern Methodist eleven. . . . Bobby Wilson, the Mustangs' slippery runner and accurate forward passer, will be a marked man. . . . So will Bobby Grayson of Stanford, but he has been a marked man in every game. . . . Nobody, however, succeeded in stopping him. . . .

Ten Years Ago Today—Charley Robertson, who once pitched a perfect game for the White Sox, went to the St. Louis Browns for the waiver price of $4,000. . . . Alabama and Washington were ready for the Rose Bowl game. . . . Purdue's basketball team defeated Missouri, 27 to 26.

De Paul Five Wins, 48 to 17, Over Gophers

De Paul, 48; Minnesota, 17. That was the score last night at the 132d regiment armory when the Blue Demons won their third victory over Big Ten opposition in five such engagements, and when you've read this score you know just about all there is to know.

The Gophers registered the first field goal on a play from the center tip and it was the only time they were ahead. After much fiddling around, Capt. Ray Adams, who won De Paul's battle with Drake Saturday night in the last half minute, scored the tying points, was fouled as he shot, and made the penalty shot to start his mates on the victory path.

After ten minutes Minnesota trailed by three points at 12 to 9, but the Gophers stuck while De Paul went on to finish at the intermission with a 21 to 9 advantage. Minnesota only registered three field goals in 19 shots in the first half and eventually added three more field goals against De Paul's reserves in the second half.

Gophers Poor Shots.

Minnesota's shooting was consistent in its ineffectiveness, and scoring opportunities were infrequent because of inability to handle the ball or dribble without miscuing. On defense the Gophers were as loose as

BOILERMAKERS TRAIL TEMPLE THROUGH GAME

Kessler Shines in Attempted Rally.

Philadelphia, Pa., Dec. 30.—[Special.]—Temple's basketball team defeated the Boilermakers of Purdue, 54 to 39, tonight at the Arena before 5,500.

Both teams played a sparkling offensive game. Purdue, noted for being a great comeback team, could not put on one of its hair-raising finishes against the Owls. Every time the Boilermakers started to hit the rim and got a couple of baskets in a row the Templars put on the pressure to increase their lead.

Temple Keeps Early Lead.

Temple was out in front all the way after the first few seconds of play. A free throw by Eddie Elliott broke the ice, but then the Owls went ahead to stay.

Midway in the first half, Capt. Bob Kessler was sent into the game and with this inspiration the Boilermakers came from behind a 12-4 count to trail by one point at 12-11. Elliott was the scoring factor in this surge with three baskets. However, Bloom and Shields came to the aid of the Temple cause and some spectacular shots by these men enabled the home team to pull away and lead at half time, 30-21.

Kessler Starts New Rally.

The Boilermakers staged another uprising with about five minutes gone in the second half. This time Capt. Kessler not only made some valuable assists but sank two baskets and a free throw. This rally cut the Temple margin to four points, 36-32. But again Bloom and Shields alternated with some brilliant shooting under and near the basket and the Owls' lead widened.

ILLINOIS WINS, 42-17

Champaign, Ill., Dec. 30.—[Special.]—Illinois won its sixth straight basketball game tonight when it defeated California, 42 to 17.

Illinois' superiority was manifest from the start when the Big Ten co-champions took the lead, which they maintained throughout.

They led the Golden Bears, 23 to 12, at the half. In the second half the Illini kept up their gait while California was held to two baskets and a free throw.

Jim Vopicka and Harry Combes, juniors, led Illinois, but all the Illini regulars figured in the scoring. Capt. Raymond Olson, with three baskets, accounted for half California's field goals.

The Illinois guards, Combes and Henry, covered the big Californians expertly, holding them to six field goals. Illinois made eight out of ten free throw attempts.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Milwaukee, Wis., Dec. 30.—A last half attack carried Iowa's Big Ten basketball team to a 31 to 27 victory over Marquette in the Auditorium here tonight. Little Sid Rosenthal and Capt. Johnny Barko paced the Hawkeyes in their victory drive, the former with 13 points and the latter with nine. Rosenthal's ball handling was the best seen here in years.

The score was tied six times, with Marquette ahead only once in the last half.

Tied 15 to 15, at the end of the first half, Iowa staged a second period assault on the Marquette basket. At the height of the drive, the Hawkeyes were in front, 29 to 22. Then they relaxed, and the Hilltoppers crawled within two points of a deadlock.

Sokody Leads Hilltoppers.

Marquette's chief fault was lack of accuracy on basket attempts. Paul Sokody, was an exception, however, collecting three field goals and a pair of free throws to lead the Hilltop scorers.

Tonight's game was the first in six years between the teams and the victory was Iowa's sixth in eight games with the Milwaukee school.

10 HEAVYWEIGHT BOUTS LISTED ON STADIUM CARD

Six Contests Booked for Six Rounds.

Ten bouts, six at six rounds and four at four rounds, will comprise the second round of the heavyweight elimination tournament at Chicago Stadium Thursday, it was announced yesterday. Fifteen of the twenty candidates will see action for the first time. The other five won their first round contests by knockouts at the Coliseum.

Win First Round Battles.

The tournament, being presented in an effort to discover suitable opposition for Joe Louis, former Chicago Golden Gloves champion, has been divided into three classes—classes A, B and C. The latter two classes will be represented Thursday.

Bath and Davis will meet in a class B engagement at six rounds. So will Treest and Maggard, Eddie Simms and Mitchell, Thomas and Frank Simms, Stillman and Johnson, and Connelly and Beaupre. Class C matches at four rounds involve Erjavec and Fuller, Androff and Elliott, Schultz and Zack, and Minikel and Ketchell. The card:

CLASS B.

It was indicated last night that Laddie Tonelli, Marseilles, will meet Billy Miller, Milwaukee, and Frank Sagillo, Cicero, will clash with Scotty McLean, Peoria, in two matches at ten rounds at Cicero stadium Jan. 11.

Matches involving Hank Bath and Red Burman, protégé of Jack Dempsey; George Brescia and Frank Connelly, Steve Dudas and Bob Pastor are being sought for presentation in a heavyweight elimination tournament at Madison Square garden Jan. 10. . . . Al McCoy, New England fighter, may be a principal in the main event. . . . Tony Canzoneri is reported willing to defend his lightweight championship at New York Jan. 17 or Jan. 24. . . . The search for a heavyweight capable of beating Joe Louis is becoming international in scope. . . . Curt Reiss of Paris, France, and Georges Carpentier, the old light heavyweight king, are said to be making arrangements to conduct a series of elimination bouts throughout Europe. . . . Wendell White has been matched to box Benny Miller and Bob Wiley is paired with Sam Le Monti in two of eight amateur contests to be held at 1154 East 63d street Monday night.

Bill Bolton, state athletic commission inspector, and Donald Stewart McLeod, stadium superintendent, are recovering from accidental injuries sustained recently. . . . The next amateur boxing show at the Silver Dragon arena will be held Jan. 8. . . . Joe Pennine, reported to be one of the best welterweights in the east, is in quest of a bout here against Billy Celebron of Rockford. . . . Joseph L. Schmith has been given a license to promote a fight card at the state armory in Peoria Jan. 21.

GAY BUBBLE much the best. She broke on top, assumed lead at once, displayed keen speed and easily held the race safe. FANLE was driven hard all the way and was next best. MAD DASH lacked early speed, but finished gamely. LADY GRANDACE closed gamely. GO NOW had plenty of early foot. SWEET SUSAN came from far back, ran good race. MISS PHILURA never a factor. MISS ALINE had no mishap.

MINTON broke slow and trailed field to the far turn and was taken to outside, closed fast and won going away. LORD TOURNAMENT broke alertly, was sent to the front, showed good speed, but weakened suddenly in last sixteenth. ORINOCO came from far back under a weak ride. MOANE KEALA ran an improved race and is about ready to win. REGULA BADDUN stopped fast. POMPEIUS ran a miserable race.

THIRD RACE—Six furlongs. Two year olds. Purse $700. Net value to winner, $525; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25.

FAIRISK got away flying, was sent to the front, raced all opposition into defeat and held on gamely. EDRI was slow to break, went up very fast and was running strong at finish. INFLAME was away poorly, closed a big gap. He might have won with a better start. OVER YONDER, well up all the way, had no excuse. SOMEONE ELSE ran good race. LOTOFUS quit badly.

KAWAGOE, on his good behavior, broke well in motion, raced LADY PAL and SCREEN into defeat in the first half and then drew away easily. TIGHT WAD, away slowly, worked his way up and finished with a rush. FLOWERY LADY trailed far back to stretch, closed gamely, but likes a longer route. LADY PAL got away fast, showed speed, but tired badly at end. SCREEN was hard ridden all the way. DIVERTING never a factor.

RED ROAMER was hustled along in early part and then drew away and won nicely in hand. ILCHESTER was allowed to drop back a bit in early part, came wide entering stretch and just lasted to save the place. WHIPPER CRACKER broke slow, came with a rush, and might have won with better racing luck. IDLE ALONG was sent to the front going into the first turn and stopped badly after showing good speed for six furlongs. DEAN SWIFT had no excuse. OLD JUDGE was outrun.

5 RECORDS FALL IN SUGAR BOWL TRACK EVENTS

Cunningham Runs Mile in 4:16; Lash 2d.

New Orleans, La., Dec. 30.—(AP)—Athletes competing in the first Sugar Bowl track and field meet today in near freezing temperatures set five new southern records before 3,500 fans.

Remarkable performances were turned in the mile, two mile, 880 yard run, 120 yard hurdles, and the shot put, with the exhibition of Glenn Cunningham, former Kansas university star miler, climaxing the program.

Cunningham ran the mile in 4 minutes and 16 seconds to smash the southern record by more than eight seconds. He broke the tape a good 100 yards ahead of Don Lash, Indiana university runner, who made a great stretch drive to pass Glen Dawson of Tulsa.

Torrance Sets Shot Put Mark.

Closely approaching Cunningham's effort was that of Jack Torrance, former Louisiana State weight star, who tossed the 16 pound shot 54 feet 1¼ inches for a new southern mark. Torrance's distance was three feet short of his world's record of 57 feet 1 inch, made at Oslo, Norway, in 1934.

The 440 yard run funished one of the two form upsets of the afternoon. George Arnold, former Ohio State star, appearing under the colors of the Milrose A. A., ran Glen Hardin of L. S. U. into defeat in a stretch duel, winning the event in 50.8 seconds, more than a second slower than the southern record set by Dana Jenkins in 1916.

Lash Wins Two Mile Run.

The two mile run was won by Lash over a strong field in 9.19.5, more than one minute and 10 seconds under the old southern mark. Harold Manning of Wichita university was second.

Forest Towns of Georgia university accounted for another record when he ran the 120 yard high hurdles in 14.8 seconds, winning over a fast field and clipping four-tenths of a second off the former southern mark. Another feature event was turned in by Bill Brown in the hop, step, and jump. The Baker, La., High school boy won with a distance of 48 feet 4¾ inches, defeating such stars as Sol Furth, New York; Roland Romero of Welsh, La., holder of the southern record, and Nathan Blair of Louisiana State.

Hornbostel Takes 880 Yard Run.

Charlie Hornbostel, former Indiana distance star and presently a student at Harvard university, had little trouble winning the 880 yard run with a new southern record of 1 minute 54.6 seconds. The old record was 1.55.6, held by Don Scott of Mississippi State college.

Eddie Daigle of Loyola university of New Orleans won the 75 yard dash in 7.6 seconds, beating out Whitley Cox of Oklahoma university and Dalmer Brown of North Texas Teachers college.

MULLINS LOSES TO RIGHTMIRE IN 12 ROUNDS

Everett Rightmire of Sioux City, Ia., last night became the first officially recognized featherweight champion of Illinois. He won the honor by beating Winfrid Mullins of Vincennes, Ind., in twelve rounds at Marigold Gardens before a capacity crowd of 1,500.

Frank Androff, Minneapolis heavyweight, and Edwin Waling, Detroit featherweight, won by knockouts. Androff knocked out Joe Ranier of Chicago and Waling stopped Walter Matthys, St. Charles, each bout ending in the first round. Ossie Jefferson beat Oscar Liebman and Nick Peters defeated Sammy Verse at four rounds.

TWO PLAYERS RESIGN OLYMPIC HOCKY POSITIONS

New York, Dec. 30.—[Special.]—Ding Palmer and Ike Baldwin will not play on the American Olympic Hocky team in the fourth winter Olympic games at Garmisch-Partenkirchen in February, it was announced by Frederick W. Rubien, secretary of the American Olympic committee today.

The two St. Nicholas Hocky club star wingmen have resigned their places on the hocky squad which will represent the United States and which will sail aboard the Manhattan Friday for Europe because of business reasons.

Rubien named two other amateur skaters to fill the berths, both of whom have splendid records as hocky players, formerly in the college ranks and more recently on leading club teams. Malcolm McAlpin, former Princeton and St. Nicholas star, will replace Palmer while Phil W. Labatte of the University of Minnesota and the Baltimore Orioles will fill Baldwin's assignment.

Fight Decisions

At Quincy, Ill.—Alabama Kid beat Allen Matthews [10]; Scotty McLean knocked out Kenneth Manes [3]; Mercle Thompson beat Joey Lapelle [8]; Ray Cliff stopped Bob Smith [3].

MARIBEL VINSON, LEE KEEP TITLES

New York, Dec. 30.—(AP)—National figure skating champions marched on to new laurels tonight as Maribel Y. Vinson of Boston, and 16 year old Robin Lee of Minneapolis, successfully defended their titles and gained places on the United States Olympic team.

Completing four days of competition, Miss Vinson and Lee were crowned tonight as the country's Olympic representatives paraded before a crowd of 8,000 in Madison Square Garden.

For Miss Vinson, it was her eighth title since 1928, the only break in her string coming two years ago when she did not defend her often won crown. Lee's performance carried the youngster to the top of the men's list for the second straight year.

Retains Pairs' Title.

Miss Vinson completed her dominance of the sport when she teamed with George E. D. Hill of Boston, to win the pairs' championship for the third consecutive year. Their performance also earned the down easterners the No. 1 position on the Olympic team, which will compete at Garmisch-Partenkirchen, Germany, in February.

The men's competition was turned into an all-Minneapolis affair when Erle Ritter, 19 year old junior champion, placed second to Lee. He matched the young champion in the more intricate free skating, but failed to keep pace with him in the school figures, which counted 60 per cent in the final standing.

Louise Weigel of Buffalo regained the place she won in 1934 when she finished second to Miss Vinson. Third went to 18 year old Audrey Peppe of New York.

Eight Singles Chosen.

Although he failed to gain high ranking in the men's division, Roger Turner of Boston paired with Polly Blodgett of Boston to take runner-up honors in the pairs.

With the figure skating committee, headed by Richard L. Hapgood of Cambridge, Mass., deciding to send eight singles and two pairs combinations to the Olympic games, the Weigel sisters, Louise and Estelle, and Miss Peppe also were placed on the Olympic team.

Chosen with Lee on the men's team were Ritter, Hill, and James Lester Madden of Boston. Madden did not compete due to an injured ankle, but applied for consideration on the basis of his former record, which included runner-up honors in 1930 to 1933 and third in the last meet.

On the same basis Madden and his sister, Grace Madden, were chosen as the second team in the pairs competition. They won the national title in 1934 and were runner-ups in the 1935 title event, skated early this year.

MICHIGAN STATE WINS, 25-24, OVER WEST VIRGINIA

East Lansing, Mich., Dec. 30.—[Special.]—Michigan State snapped out of its four game losing streak and handed West Virginia a 25 to 24 defeat in an overtime game tonight.

West Virginia gained an early lead and had a five point advantage at half time. Michigan State came back at the start of the second half and outplayed the visitors. With seconds left to play Joe Smith, Michigan State guard, dropped in a free throw to tie the score at 20 to 20.

KIEFER BREAKS TWO AMERICAN SWIM RECORDS

Erna Kompa of New York's Women Swimming association shaved 2.3 seconds from her own 300 meter backstroke record, established last August at Manhattan Beach, N. Y., for a new time of 4:31.4, long course. Albert Vande Weghe, Newark, N. J., swam the 100 yard backstroke in 1:41.8, smashing Warren Kealoha's record of 1:49 set at Honolulu in 1921.

The officials clocked Adolph Kiefer, Chicago, in two new national times, 2:29.6 for 200 meters and 2:30.4 for 220 yards. Kiefer took both marks from George Kojac, whose time for both distances was 2:35.4 at Long Beach, Cal., in July, 1930.

So Red Wings Plan to Stall, Eh? Hawks Ready for 'Em

BY EDWARD BURNS.

The Blackhawks, all perked up by spectacular emergence from their recent slump, are scheming all manner of stratagems through which they expect to thwart the Detroit Red Wings at the Stadium tomorrow night. If everything works out as planned in a long blackboard drill yesterday Jack Adams, manager of the Red Wings, will return to Detroit late tomorrow night with even a sorer head than has been giving him miseries these last few weeks.

Mr. Adams, as you may have read, was very full of wrath after the Hawks had trounced his able fellows Christmas night, 2 to 0. In a yelping gem, devoid of all logic in view of the Hawks' two goals, Mr. Adams allowed that the Hawks, New York Americans, Boston Bruins, and the two Montreal teams have displeased the Detroit customers by stalling.

Aims at Gate Receipts.

No one thought much about the stalling charge from a whipped skipper, until Mr. Adams added that he would stage reprisals on the home rinks of the accused teams by "putting six men in front of the cage" and refusing to open up the Red Wing road games to any extent whatsoever.

Promising to stall, of course, is a great way to strike at the most beloved and sacred adjunct of all sports, the gate. The nabobs of hocky found it especially distressing coming from Mr. Adams, whose team, for some reason, is one of the poorest drawing cards in the league, whereas it should be one of the best. To give you some idea, the Red Wings, leading the league, played to 7,000 at the Stadium on Dec. 12. Sunday night the Rangers, in a tie with the Red Wings in the standing, but only 24 hours away from a 9 to 3 spanking at the hands of the Maple Leafs, broke the season's National league attendance record with 15,461 paid.

But He Can't Do It.

The joker in the whole of Mr. Adams' sad plaint is that he cannot station six men in front of his cage. Rule 10 is very clear on that point. It says: "Not more than three players, including the goalkeeper, of the defending side may stand in their defending zone before the attacking side carries the puck into that zone. Should a team violate this rule it shall incur a minor penalty for each infraction, the penalty to be imposed on the fourth player entering the defending zone."

Referees have been a bit lax in enforcing the anti-defense rule, but since Mr. Adams has been screaming and threatening it is probable that the officials will be bearing down tomorrow night, the first occasion Adams has had to carry out his threat.

Loughlin Guarantees Action.

Manager Clem Loughlin of the Hawks said yesterday that the Hawks would try to play the same dashing game they staged in beating the Rangers Sunday night. He says it will be impossible for Adams to spoil the attraction for the Hawk customers under the plan of action he has outlined for the match.

Aside from satisfaction over breaking up their slump with victories over the Red Wings and the Rangers, with whom they now are tied for first place in the American division [although the Rangers have a chance to take the lead tonight], the Hawks are gratified at some of the individual accomplishments on the team.

Morenz Gets Going.

Many cheers are being given Howie Morenz and Mike Karakas especially. Howie recently has been skating and shooting like he did in his great years with the Canadiens. He added four points to his personal record last week and now has eleven. Paul Thompson, however, continues to lead the American division on personal points with 15, although he failed to fatten up last week. Paul now is topped by two players in the Canadian division, Charley Conacher and Thoms of the Maple Leafs being tied with 16 points each.

N. U. Battles Notre Dame Five Tonight

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Tonight may be your night to stand and cheer while a new year comes in. The Northwestern basketball boys also may have their own plans for heralding 1936, but by 10 o'clock tonight they hope that they will have furnished Northwestern fans a New Year present. In short, Northwestern hopes it will defeat Notre Dame tonight at Patten gymnasium.

Notre Dame is the only quintet to beat the Wildcats this year in the preliminary Big Ten campaign that has seen them humble Pittsburgh, Michigan State, California, and Carleton. And what a licking Northwestern took at Notre Dame! Before the Wildcats realized just how serious Notre Dame intended to be [perhaps thinking of the whipping by Northwestern's football team], the score was Notre Dame, 18; Northwestern, 4. And while the Wildcats finally came to life, the issue never was in doubt and the Irish breezed home, 40 to 29.

Figures Mean Little.

Basketball being the kind of game that it is, this victory, even by such a decisive margin, does not guarantee another conquest for Notre Dame tonight. Notwithstanding Notre Dame's splendid record this season and superiority over Northwestern, the Irish quintet came a cropper at Purdue and lost, 54 to 40. This is quoted merely to demonstrate that Notre Dame can be whipped. Whether Northwestern can do it remains to be seen.

Both universities are represented by the best teams they have had in recent years. Both starting fives have sophomore forwards and centers. For Notre Dame, the best combination has been Meyer and Moir, forwards; Nowak, center; Ireland, and Wade, guards. It is likely that Northwestern will start the same team which whipped California Saturday night, 34 to 19. This means McMichaels and Trenkle will pair at forwards; Nagode will be at center, and Bender and Mercer will play the guard positions.

Irish are Fast.

Coach George Keogan of Notre Dame and Coach Dutch Lonborg of Northwestern teach the same general type of offense and defense. Neither team "quick breaks" as frequently as Purdue, which is tops this year in this type of play because of the exceptional speed of its players. Consequently, the ball is advanced by the guards to the three front men in set formations. Cross court passing, with blocks and quick breaks to meet the passes of the guards, are used to furnish opportunity for shots.

Defensively, both teams undoubtedly will rely on a man to man defense, shifting assignments to cover up on

Benny Leonard Weds Secretary New Year's Day

New York, Dec. 30.—[Special.]—Benny Leonard, former world's lightweight champion, and Jacqueline Stern, his secretary, will be married New Year's day afternoon. Leonard, who retired undefeated in 1924, is 39, and Miss Stern 28.

Benny won the lightweight title on May 28, 1917, with a technical knockout over Freddie Welsh. Much heavier in 1932, he attempted a comeback as a welterweight, but was knocked out in seven rounds by Jimmy McLarnin.

block plays. This leaves tonight's result to be decided on speed, height, and basket luck. Notre Dame will have more speed. Meyer and Moir were faster than their guards in the first game. Nowak secured the ball on center jumps and his work under the backboards was superior to Nagode's performance at Notre Dame. And in that contest, Notre Dame's shooting for the first ten minutes was far above the average. Northwestern couldn't hit and if the same conditions are duplicated tonight, the Wildcats will take another drubbing.

Fouls Are Important.

Notre Dame held Northwestern in check with the closest kind of a man to man defense. Time and again the guards tipped the ball as Northwestern men shot or actually took the ball from their hands as they turned. Northwestern adopted the same defensive tactics in the second half and did quite a bit better.

This close guarding also causes frequent fouls. The accuracy of the players from the penalty line may determine the result of the game. In the final analysis, success in shooting will be more important than carefully planned floor plays. Northwestern turned in a nice job of throwing against California. If it can do as well tonight the battle will be one of the best in the long history of basketball arguments between Northwestern and Notre Dame.

PACKERS, LIONS TO CLASH JAN. 26 AT LOS ANGELES

Green Bay, Wis., Dec. 30.—[Special.]—The Green Bay Packer-Detroit Lion post-season football game on the west coast will be played Jan. 26 at Los Angeles, Cal., it was announced today by Packer officials. Coach E. L. Lambeau, who is on the Pacific coast, arranged the details. Both teams are members of the National Professional Football league, Detroit having won the championship this year.

The Packers have four other exhibition contests scheduled in California, and Lambeau informed local officials that he is considering an offer to open the San Diego fair with a game there Jan. 12.

DE PAUL BEATS MINNESOTA, 48-17

Gophers Miss Shots and Everything Else.

Nick Yost, center, and Adams led De Paul's attack. Yost hit for three field goals and four penalty shots in five attempts. Adams connected four times from the floor and slipped in three free throws in as many opportunities. But Willie Phillips, who shared one forward position with Knez, brought the fans up cheering with three field goals in the second half. His first was a blind toss from a mêlée under the backboard; his second the result of stealing a Minnesota pass in mid-court, and the last came after a nicely timed pass so that he had an open shot six feet out and to the side.

Demons Hawk Ball.

The game was well scouted. Coach Everett Dean of Indiana, whose quintet meets De Paul Friday night at the Stadium, not only looked over the Demons but watched Minnesota for future conference play. Coach George Keogan of Notre Dame, Ted Payseur of Northwestern, Bennie Oosterbaan of Michigan, and Wally Roetger of Illinois also scouted the Gophers.

LOYOLA, 25; VANDERBILT, 22

Loyola university last night defeated Vanderbilt, 25 to 22, at Loyola gymnasium for its fifth victory in seven starts. After leading from the start, Loyola was forced to stall in the final minutes to check a Commodore rally. Marv Colen, acting captain, and Pete Curley of Vanderbilt tied for scoring honors with four baskets apiece.

Loyola made seven points before Curley scored on a pushup shot in the seventh minute. A basket by Calihan gave Loyola nine points, then Curley scored on a long shot from the side. Bob Brennan and Gart Winkler pushed the Rambler score up to 15, after which Vanderbilt accumulated its half time total of 9.

In the second half Loyola built up a 19 to 9 margin. Then Geny and Curley led a rally which brought the visitors to within 2 points of the lead. Loyola stalled in the final three minutes, during which Colen scored on a short pushup shot.

COOPER RETAINS PASADENA OPEN LEAD WITH 137

Pasadena, Cal., Dec. 30.—(AP)—Harry Cooper, aided by four birdies, today added a par 71 to his 66 of the first round to hold the lead through the second round of the Pasadena $4,000 open tournament.

His 137 was two strokes better than Horton Smith, another Chicagoan; Whiffy Cox, Bethesda, Md.; Ray Mangrum, Pittsburgh, and Harold McSpaden, defending Pasadena champion.

Henry Picard, Hershey, Pa.; Fred Morrison, Pasadena, and Ky Laffoon of Chicago, who burned up the home nine with 30s, five strokes under par, were tied for third at 140. Laffoon, ready to quit at the turn, collected five straight birdies coming in.

Two champions toured the Brookside course, a trifle slow after yesterday's heavy rains, in exhibition play before a gallery of several hundred. Lawson Little Jr., British and American amateur, shot a 72, and Sam Parks Jr., Pittsburgh, national open champion, who failed to qualify with a dismal 78 first round score, had a 75 for the 18 holes today.

The championship round over 36 holes will be played tomorrow with the 60 low scorers eligible.

T.C.U. Arrives at Sugar Bowl Battle Scene

New Orleans, La., Dec. 30.—[Special.]—Texas Christian's football team arrived here today to top off its preparation for the New Year's day Sugar bowl game with Louisiana State university. L.S.U., meanwhile, went through its paces at Baton Rouge and will not come to New Orleans until Wednesday morning.

Cool weather greeted the Horned Frogs from Texas, and the boys jumped into their practice suits and went through a spirited drill this afternoon. Supporters of T.C.U. are confident their boys will hold the upper hand against the powerful Louisiana State eleven if the weather remains cool and the playing field is firm. Texas Christian, a great forward passing outfit, depends upon its long tosses to gain ground.

Many fans from Texas already are parading the streets here telling all listeners just what 'Slingin' Sam Baugh, T.C.U. backfield star, will do when he takes the field against Louisiana State. Ticket officials also are in fine form and predict a sell-out of 35,000 when the game opens. Gentlemen who like to wager a cent or two on their hunches can get 5 to 6 and take your choice.

During this afternoon's workout, Dutch Meyer, Texas Christian coach, looked over his men and declared they were ready to offer a real battle. His only worry, he said, is the weather, as rain will cut down the effectiveness of Baugh's forward passing.

Minnesota Hocky Team Defeats Princeton, 3 to 1

OLE MISS ELEVEN REACHES MIAMI

And 27 Girls Greet 27 Football Players.

Miami, Fla., Dec. 30.—[Special.]—The University of Mississippi, which will clash with Catholic university of Washington, D. C., here Wednesday afternoon in the Orange Bowl football game, reached town today and found a pleasant surprise awaiting them.

When the lads from Ole Miss detrained they were greeted by 27 young ladies of the ensemble from a night club floor show. The girls, all blondes, some naturally so, linked arms with the 27 Mississippi football players and paraded about the station—keeping in range of the news cameras, of course.

Finally, Coach Ed Walker herded his athletes together and away they went to Municipal stadium, scene of Wednesday's contest, for some limbering up exercises. There they went through a light drill, which was what they needed, according to Walker. He further predicted that his boys will be ready for the Catholic squad.

The Washington, D. C., aggregation, far from the blondes, toiled under the hot sun, being carded for a double workout. Orange Bowl officials are confident the stadium will be packed at game time, and the 12,000 seats are expected to be sold before then.

Toledo, O., Dec. 30.—[Special.]—The Toledo university five defeated Harvard here tonight, 34 to 21.

RAIN AND MUD? FINE, SAYS KERR; EAST WILL WIN

Sees Big Score Against West All-Stars.

San Francisco, Cal., Dec. 30.—[Special.]—Andy Kerr of Colgate, who shares the job of coaching the Eastern All-Stars with Dick Hanley, welcomed the weather man's prediction today that there would be rain and mud for the annual charity battle with the All-West team here Wednesday.

"We'll win by a big score if it rains," said Kerr. "The eastern boys are accustomed to playing in all kinds of weather."

Drill on Field Goals.

Field goal kicking took up a large part of the eastern team's drill today. Five players were booting the ball accurately from anywhere inside the 40 yard line. They were Riley Smith of Alabama, Dick Crayne, Iowa; Dick Heekin, Ohio State; Sheldon Beise, Minnesota, and Joe Stydaker, West Virginia.

For punting the East will rely mainly on Riley Smith. The West has Wallace, Bill Lam of Colorado, and Charles Cheshire of the University of California at Los Angeles.

The probable starting lineup:

KENNEY, HEAD OF OLYMPIC BOXING GROUP, RESIGNS

Boston, Mass., Dec. 30.—[Special.]—William F. Kenney, chairman of the Olympic boxing committee, resigned last Friday, he said today in answer to action taken in New York yesterday to rid the Olympic organization of all officials who disapproved of America's participation in the 1936 games.

Kenney said he had mailed his resignation to Avery Brundage, president of the American Olympic committee, in Chicago. Gustavus Kirby, treasurer of the committee, censured Kenney for inactivity, to which Kenney replied the quota of funds asked of boxing was too high in these times.

New York, Dec. 30.—[Special.]—All classes of bonds met a ready demand today. While gains were most pronounced among the second grade railroad utilities, high grade loans responded to good reinvestment demand with moderate advances.

The general improvement in prices was carried out on a slackened trading pace, total sales amounting to $10,344,000, compared with $13,910,500 last Friday, the smallest since early November.

Score One to Two Point Gains.

Gains of one to two points ruled in the issues of Southern Pacific, Southern, Wabash, Denver and Rio Grande Western, and New York Central, while fractional improvement spread over a much broader list. International Great Northern loans rose from ¾ to 2½ points.

Industrial bonds were also generally higher. Noteworthy advances included Hudson Coal 5s, up 2¾ points, Allis-Chalmers 4s, up 1⅜, and American Rolling Mill 4¼s, up 1½ points. Utilities Power and Light 5s and 5½s both responded to good buying with gains of 1½ points each.

Government List Higher.

The moderate improvement in the market for United States government obligations was representative of the better demand for gilt-edged bonds. The federal loans showed gains of 1-32 to 4-32 points, with the treasury 2¾s most active. Trading was dull elsewhere throughout the group.

Italian dollar bonds turned strong, rising 1 to 3 points. Government 7s added 2⅝ points.

Kennecott Copper.

Investors' Guide: I have 25 shares of Kennecott Copper stock bought at $25 a share. I would like a report on the company.—H. C.

Answer: Kennecott Copper corporation is the second largest copper enterprise in the world. Annual capacity is about a billion pounds, of which about 73 per cent represents capacity of United States properties.

Mines are in three groups. One is near Bingham, Utah, another in Nevada, Arizona and New Mexico and the third in Chile. Its Chilean property is one of the lowest cost producers in the world. Practically all its output is shipped to Europe.

The company smelts and refines about one-third of output. Remainder is processed on a toll basis by American Smelting and Refining. Through Chase Copper and Brass company it fabricates about 300,000,000 pounds of copper a year.

During the first half of 1935 operating revenues totaled $28,348,000 and net income before depletion was $3,418,000, or 32 cents a share. This compared with operating revenues of $32,267,000 and net income of $3,888,000 [before depletion], or 36 cents a share, for the corresponding 1934 period.

The four year record of earnings follows:

	Operating Revenues	*Net Income	Inc. per Share
1934	$58,433,000	$5,720,000	$0.53
1933	43,395,000	2,308,000	.21
1932	26,032,000	7,102,000	.68
1931	52,537,000	3,849,000	.41

*Before depletion. Loss.

Current position on Dec. 31, 1934, was strong. Working capital alone was sufficient to pay almost $5 per share on the 10,769,379 shares of no par stock. There is no funded debt.

The stock currently pays 20 cents a quarter.

SEC EXPLAINS RULES ON 'OVER COUNTER' TRADE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 30.—Rules and regulations for control of 5,088 "over-the-counter" brokers and dealers [persons dealing in securities off the exchanges] were announced today by James M. Landis, chairman of the Securities and Exchange commission. Registration will become effective Jan. 1.

Those who have not registered with the SEC or who have been denied registration will be prohibited from dealing in securities. The maximum penalities for willful violation are a $10,000 fine, two years' imprisonment, or both.

Driven from Exchanges.

In taking this step toward further power over the securities market, Landis admitted that regulations under the securities act had driven some stocks away from the exchanges. The "over-the-counter" regulations will place these stocks under rigid New Deal surveillance.

Landis also said that some persons, because of SEC regulations, had sought to sidestep the law by employment of various devices. With a trace of sadness in his voice he said that the SEC had no control over warehouse liquor receipts or the sale of barrels of oil.

"The purpose of the 'over-the-counter' regulations," said Landis, "is to find out the reputable dealers and weed out the disreputable ones. This doesn't mean we'll be able to cut all the sheep from the goats. This is the first bite."

Causes for Rejections.

Three major grounds for denying registration for the brokers and dealers were outlined in the rules as follows: Willful misrepresentations of material facts; conviction in connection with the securities and business within the last ten years, and permanent injunction from engaging in the securities business in the last ten years.

The grounds are not mandatory, Landis pointed out, and cited several cases in which exceptions had been made. One example was that of a dealer who had used stocks not his own for transactions and was caught in the market crash of 1929. This man, however, had repaid the amount involved, $14,000, Landis said, and since there was no other count against him he probably would be permitted to continue his business.

Denial of registration would mean that the individual could not use the mails or interstate commerce facilities in selling stocks, Landis explained. He expressed the opinion that the SEC would probably go into court and enjoin dealers who carried on a business without registration.

Forecasts Securities Registration.

Following the registration of the dealers, according to Landis, would come the registration of securities on the "over-the-counter" market and the promulgation of fair trade practices. He indicated that the SEC would seek further legislation during the next congress, which convenes Friday, and probably would seek control over unlisted trading.

Landis said that figures had been given to him showing that on the basis of dollar volume the "over-the-counter" market was four times that of the exchanges. However, Landis explained that he didn't believe the figures were correct, that the ratio was around three to two, although this was "only the wildest hunch."

Of the 5,088 registrations that will go into effect Jan. 1, 347 are dealers and brokers in Illinois. Illinois was second in the list of states, while New York was first with 1,929 to be registered under the new regulations.

Thirty-six applications have been either denied or withdrawn. Two are from Illinois, according to the SEC, which did not give out the names.

STUDEBAKER'S REORGANIZATION IS COMPLETED

Fort Wayne, Ind., Dec. 30.—(AP)—Judge Thomas W. Slick of federal court gave final approval today to reorganization of the Studebaker corporation and the Rockne Motors corporation under section 77B of the national bankruptcy act.

Paul G. Hoffman and Harold S. Vance of South Bend, Ind., trustees, reported to the judge that they had complied with all details of the reorganization plan Judge Slick placed in effect Jan. 28, 1935. The judge released the trustees from their bonds and securities and substituted the reorganized company as administrator of the firms.

The court retained jurisdiction over claims of creditors filed in the proceedings and now undisposed of.

Stock Exchange Seat Sells for $145,000; High for Year

New York, Dec. 30.—(AP)—The stock exchange announced today the sale of a seat for $145,000, an increase of $10,000 over the last sale on Dec. 23 and $5,000 above the previous 1935 high set Nov. 19. The low was $85,000, established April 3.

Trade Failures Smallest of Year in Week of Dec. 26

Failures declined to the lowest level for this year in the holiday week ended Dec. 26, Dun & Bradstreet reported yesterday. The defaults totaled 179 against 215 in the preceding week and 207 in the same period last year.

I. C. C. Ratifies Trustees for Milwaukee

Rejecting objections of an independent bondholders' committee, the interstate commerce commission yesterday ratified the appointment of Henry A. Scandrett, Walter J. Cummings, and George I. Haight as trustees of the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific railroad. The road filed a petition for reorganization in the federal court here under section 77 of the amended bankruptcy act last June.

Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson on Oct. 18 appointed the three men as trustees subject to the approval of the interstate commerce commission.

Scandrett is president of the road. Cummings, in addition to being chairman of the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company, is receiver for the Chicago Railways company, operators of the north and west side street car lines.

Haight Chicago Attorney.

Haight is a prominent Chicago attorney who has made a study of railroads and transportation.

The order issued by the ICC yesterday stipulated that Scandrett shall receive no salary except that granted by the court for his services as trustee. The order answered objections of an independent bondholders' committee, which represents only a small group of security holders, by saying that Scandrett's appointment had been approved by the Reconstruction Finance corporation and that the preponderance of evidence submitted at a recent hearing had shown Scandrett to be held in high regard by railroad executives all over the country.

Appointment of Scandrett, the ICC said, would aid the Milwaukee road materially in reconstructing its earning power.

Cummings Suggested by RFC.

The ICC said Cummings' appointment was suggested by the RFC, to which the Milwaukee road owes $11,499,000. There were no objections to the appointment of Haight.

Immediately after their appointment in October Scandrett and Cummings drew objections from the independent bondholders' committee, both at hearings before Judge Wilkerson here and before the interstate commerce commission at Washington. The chief objection to Scandrett was the allegation by the bondholders that he was subject to "banker domination," while it was held that Cummings' duties elsewhere were so heavy he could not give adequate time to the Milwaukee.

Trustees of the road late yesterday asked the federal court for permission to pay on Jan. 1 two thirds of the interest due last July 1 and Oct. 1 on the general mortgage bonds. The total is $1,984,085. The road also wants to pay 20 per cent of the principal of the various equipment trust certificates which matured during the year. The court set Jan. 21 for a hearing.

CANADIAN NATL. RAIL CONTROL TO BE REVAMPED

OTTAWA, Ont., Dec. 30.—[Special.]—Management of the Canadian National Railways, Canada's largest industry with $2,000,000,000 of physical assets, will be reorganized by the Mackenzie King government.

An objection to "remote control" of an organization to whose deficits the Canadian government annually contributes $50,000,000 from the public treasury was recently registered by the new minister of transportation, C. D. Howe. The present independent three man board of trustees which manages the railroad will be replaced by a seven man board of directors on which the government will be represented by the deputy minister of railways.

The Canadian National will not be amalgamated with the privately owned Canadian Pacific railroad, as President Beatty of the latter has been urging for some time. There will be some further pooling of passenger train services and the elimination of a certain amount of ticket office duplication, but the board of trustees after a study reached the conclusion that substantial further economies were difficult without impairing efficiency.

WEST. ELECTRIC'S SALES LARGEST IN LAST 3 YEARS

Western Electric company sales for 1935 will amount to more than $104,000,000, the largest since 1932, Edgar S. Bloom, president, said yesterday. In 1934 the total was $91,807,000. The peak year for the company was 1929, with sales of $410,950,000.

Due to the upturn of business this year the company was able, during the latter part of the year, to reëngage many of its former employés and to provide five days of work a week for a substantial majority of its employés, he said. A continued improvement during 1936 was predicted.

All divisions of the plant at Hawthorne showed an increase in business, with approximately 9,000 workers on the payroll, compared with 8,500 at the end of 1934, he said.

MARKETS, BANKS CLOSE TOMORROW

Security and commodity exchanges and banks throughout the nation will be closed tomorrow in observance of New Year's day. Included among them will be the New York and Chicago Stock exchanges and the Chicago Board of Trade. An exception will be the Chicago Live Stock exchange, which will be open. In many countries abroad leading exchanges will be closed.

London Silver Price Lifted by Indian Buying

Developments yesterday in the world silver situation were marked by Indian purchases in London which boosted the price of the metal 1 1-16 pence to 22 1-6 pence an ounce [equivalent to 48.99 cents], and by the arrival of Eduardo Saurez, Mexican finance minister, in Washington for conferences with American treasury officials.

Despite the gain in London, the price in New York remained unchanged at 49¾ cents. Montreal futures closed 50 points higher to 70 points lower.

Affects Mexico's Position.

The Mexican conference was caused by the sensational decline in silver prices during December which seriously affected the Mexican economic position. Mexico, the world's largest producer of silver, has been selling practically all the output of its mines to the United States treasury.

Secretary Morgenthau declined to say what the subject of the conferences will be. It is not known whether Mexico will make a protest over the change in the American silver policy which resulted in the treasury department halting its large purchases in the world market.

Ambassador Josephus Daniels is en route to Washington from Mexico City and is expected to participate in the conference.

Policy Creates Problems.

The treasury's silver policy has created a number of problems for Mexico. When the United States buying lifted prices in the world markets, silver in Mexican coins became more valuable when they were melted down and sold as bullion than they were as coins. Later the treasury began buying silver direct from the Mexican government and Mexico reduced the silver equivalent of the peso and went on a managed currency basis.

The London price advance yesterday was attributed largely to purchasing by Indian "up-country" natives in the belief that silver is now underpriced. Dealers also pointed out that since the futures market has been discontinued in London, short sellers have not been able to extend their position in that market and must satisfy their deliveries by purchases in the spot market, in which deliveries are now beginning.

RECORD SILVER SHIPMENT.

SHANGHAI, Dec. 30.—(AP)—A record shipment of 15,000,000 ounces of silver was sent to the United States today aboard the S. S. President Hoover.

WORLD PRODUCTION OF STEEL IS LARGEST SINCE 1929 RECORD

Cleveland, O., Dec. 30.—(AP)—The magazine Steel said today that the world production of steel in 1935 was the highest since 1929. Production for the year amounted to 96,500,000 gross tons, the magazine said. This was an increase of about 20 per cent over the 80,269,000 tons made in 1934 and almost double the 49,721,000 tons of 1932.

The United States produced 33,700,000 tons, or 35 per cent, of the total. Germany was next with 16,000,000 tons, Russia third with 12,000,000 tons. Great Britain produced 9,900,000 tons and France 6,165,000 tons.

World production of pig iron was placed at 71,770,000 tons, compared with 61,550,000 tons in 1934 and 38,968,000 tons in 1932. The United States led in production with 20,700,000 tons.

Holiday Cuts U. S. Output.

New York, Dec. 30.—[Special.]—Operations in the steel industry in the week beginning Dec. 30 will be at 46.7 per cent of capacity, compared with 49.5 a week ago; 56.4 per cent a month ago and 39.2 per cent in the week last year, according to the American Iron and Steel institute.

The decline of 2.8 points in the operating schedule was attributed by steel trade circles to the usual year-end slackening in steel buying.

OLD AGE PENSION PLAN FOR EMPLOYES ADOPTED BY WRIGLEY

The William Wrigley Jr. company yesterday announced an old age pension plan for employés, effective Jan. 1, 1936, providing retirement for employés who are 65 years old or over. The 1,300 workers affected by the plan will share future cost of the policies on a 50-50 basis. The Wrigley company has paid the Aetna Life Insurance company $800,000, the equivalent of back payments to the pension plan.

The lump sum was paid to make old employés insurable on a basis equal to that of younger employés. Without additional cost, senior employés will begin making monthly payments to the Aetna company after Jan. 1 and when they reach the retirement age will receive the full pension each month for life. Length of service and average salary will determine the amount.

In event an employé dies or leaves the company's service before reaching the pension age, the plan provides that he or his beneficiaries will receive the full amount paid in plus 3 per cent compound interest. Other plans adopted by the Wrigley company in recent years include a five day week for factory workers, shorter hours, group life insurance, and employment assurance. The latter plan, in force since April, 1934, assures workers compensation during periods of business idleness.

STORE GROUP DEFENDS ACTS IN LOBBY QUIZ

Washington, D. C., Dec. 30.—(AP)—The house chain store investigating committee was told today by Frank Lazarus, Columbus, O., merchant, that "legislatures should not interfere with business unless they have the facts." Lazarus, a director in the Kroger Grocery and Baking company, said under questioning that the American Retail Federation, Inc., engages in assembling and presenting facts bearing upon retail business, and to that extent it might be termed "lobbying."

He insisted, however, the new organization—under congressional scrutiny since its organization during the last session—was not to "control" legislation, but to assemble and present facts for benefit of all retailers, big and little. Pressed for an explanation of "influencing" legislation, Lazarus said that "in order for any legislators to be able to give fair and adequate judgment there must be facts developed for them."

A. H. Morril, president of Kroger, also was questioned. He said advertising rebates and all other such allowances in buying would not amount to one-half one per cent of the company's business. A contract with the General Foods Sales company covering the period from Jan. 15 to Dec. 31, 1935, granting Kroger a $34,400 advertisment allowance, was introduced into the record.

CHICAGO BOND CASE GOES TO SUPREME COURT

Washington, D. C., Dec. 30.—(AP)—Vernon Tetzke, a bondholder in a $6,000,000 series issued by Chicago firms, asked the Supreme court today to revoke approval for reorganization of the securities and property backing them under federal bankruptcy laws. Counsel for Tetzke asserted lower federal courts had approved a plan which would "freeze out" bondholders who objected.

He owned $3,000 of the bonds issued by Foreman Trust and Savings bank and the A. J. Becker & Co., he said. His attorneys told the court that when reorganization plans were shifted from state to federal courts the Becker company escaped liability of $418,500 and the properties were charged with $63,000 fees.

The Supreme court was told that the bondholders' committee for the securities was formed by the Becker company and that Frank C. Rathje, trustee of the bonds, was "the tool" of the committee.

Loan Association to Pay 2 Per Cent Dividend Today

The First Federal Savings and Loan association of Chicago will pay a fourth semi-annual dividend of 2 per cent to approximately 450 shareholders today, Morton Bodfish, president, announced yesterday.

Rail Operating Net Up Sharply in November

Class I railroads of the United States had net operating income of $52,500,000 in November, compared with $31,582,703, in the corresponding period a year ago, according to estimates based on reports from more than seventy-five carriers. This represented an increase of 31.37 per cent.

During the month the roads reaped a net income, after taxes and charges, of between $8,000,000 and $9,000,000, compared with a deficit of $12,124,848 in November, 1934. In line with earlier predictions, current estimates place November gross revenues at about $300,000,000, compared with $341,017,864 in October and $256,967,180 in the corresponding 1934 month.

Smaller Loss Expected.

With both November and December figures estimated, the bureau of railway economics predicts that for all of 1935 American railroads will show a deficit after taxes and fixed charges of $15,000,000, compared with a loss of $16,887,000 for 1934.

The Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific railway yesterday reported November operating deficit of $7,106, compared with $10,951 in November, 1934. This brought the deficit to $726,439 for the first eleven months of the year, compared with net operating income of $1,805,563 in the comparable months last year.

The road plans to file an application soon with the interstate commerce commission to absorb the Chicago, Rock Island and Gulf railway within its system, it was reported yesterday. It was estimated this move would save $125,000 a year in operating the line.

Carriers continued to show gains in freight trafic last week over a year ago, although declining reasonably from the preceding week, according to first reports filed yesterday. Totals reported were:

	Week Ended Dec. 28.	Dec. 21.	Year ago.
Milwaukee	19,649	24,495	17,678
Santa Fe	18,572	23,089	17,115
North Western	18,114	21,907	16,012

A prediction that railroad business would improve 15 to 20 per cent next year was made yesterday by Edward W. Scheer, newly elected president of the Reading company. The first quarter of 1936 will produce favorable operating results, he said.

LEATH & CO. PLAN TO RECAPITALIZE GIVEN APPROVAL

Stockholders of Leath & Co. yesterday approved a plan of recapitalization submitted Nov. 29 to wipe out dividend arrears on the $3.50 preference stock which amounted to $16.62½ a share as of Jan. 1, 1936. One new share of $2.50 preferred and two shares of common are to be issued for each present preference share under the plan, which is to become effective early in March.

The management expects to begin dividends on the new preferred at the end of the next quarter. Present capitalization consists of 124,761 preference and 88,289 common shares. Trading in these shares is to continue on the Chicago Stock exchange until issuance of the new stock, for which application is to be made for listing on the Chicago board.

Leath & Co. owns and operates thirty retail furniture stores in Illinois, Iowa, Wisconsin, and Michigan. Its general office is at 28 East Jackson boulevard. I. H. Hartman is president of the firm.

E. E. Brown Pays $59,850 on Closed Bank Liability

Edward Eagle Brown, president of the First National bank of Chicago, yesterday made a payment of $59,850 on his personal liability as a stockholder of the West Side Trust and Savings bank, which closed in 1933. The payment was made to S. D. Tannenbaum, receiver for the defunct bank, in the court of Superior Judge Charles A. Williams.

Scott to Succeed Ellis as Armour Transit Head

Frederick W. Ellis, vice president in charge of transportation with Armour & Co., will retire today after 44 years of service with the company. Ellis will be succeeded by his assistant, John B. Scott, who has been employed by Armour for 34 years.

STOCKS CLIMB RAPIDLY; TRADE NEWS IS BULLISH

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Dec. 30.—The financial community put in five hours of serious trading today and leading stocks registered gains amounting to as much as 3 points. Closing prices were around the best of the day, with every section of the list taking part in the advance.

Strength was apparent right after the opening gong, reflecting renewed optimism among the rank and file. However, total transactions amounted to 1,629,050 shares, the smallest in a week.

Selling for income tax purposes was heavy, but it had little or no effect on the general run of prices. In the first four hours cash sales made up about 17 per cent of the volume. Largest sales of this kind occurred in Bethlehem, Chrysler, Consolidated Gas, Electric Autolite, General Motors, General Electric, Autolite, Montgomery Ward, National Biscuit, Pullman, and U. S. Steel. Of that list only Pullman was quoted under the final price of last year.

Forces Causing Upturn.

Bullish statements by leaders of industry and the growing confidence of the public over the prospects of earnings in 1936 were regarded as the main forces behind the upturn. European political news was largely disregarded by traders, who, however, felt relieved over the passing, for a time at least, of the French crisis.

Rubbers, oils, and miscellaneous industrial shares gave the best accounts of themselves. Goodrich common set a new 1935 high of 14¼ and the preferred stock of the company reached a new peak of 81¾ on a gain of more than 3 points. The common and preferred shares of Goodyear each gained a point or more, and Firestone reached 25½, its best price of the year.

American Can gained 3⅞ points, Westinghouse rose 1⅝, and Continental Can moved up 1¾ points. Pan American Petroleum, Standard Oil of New Jersey, Standard of California, Standard of Indiana, and Amerada all reached new 1935 highs.

Sugar Groups Strong.

Sugar shares also turned in an exceptionally good performance. Cuban American preferred gained 5½ and Great Western preferred registered an advance of 3 points.

Steel shares hardened despite another drop in the estimated operating rate of the industry. "Big Steel" moved up a point while Bethlehem advanced a fraction. However, Inland dropped almost 2 points.

Douglas Aircraft was buoyant along with its fellow plane issues. Silver mining shares were strengthened by the firmness of the price of the metal in the world's markets. Other strong performers in the list were Brooklyn Union Gas, American Telephone, J. I. Case, Briggs, Chrysler, Greyhound, Atchison, Illinois Central, Delaware and Western, and Sheaffer Pen. The last named stock was moved to the inactive list this morning and gave one of the best performances at that post. Certain-teed preferred shot up 6½ points.

CUNEO PRESS VOTES 30 CENT EXTRA DIVIDEND

Several more favorable dividend actions were announced yesterday. Cuneo Press, Inc., declared an extra of 30 cents a share, due to improved profits, and announced that at the regular dividend meeting Jan. 6 a regular quarterly of 30 cents will be declared.

Curtis Manufacturing company voted a dividend of 50 cents a share on the common stock, compared with a payment of 25 cents on Aug. 1. Alaska Juneau Gold Mining company declared the usual extra of 15 cents on the common.

Holly Sugar company cleared up all accumulations on the preferred stock with a total declaration of $7 a share, of which $5.25 was for arrears and $1.75 for the current quarterly payment due Feb. 1.

FEDERAL GOLD POLICY FOUGHT IN BOND SUIT

Baltimore, Md., Dec. 30.—(AP)—Attacking the federal gold policy Arthur W. Machen, Baltimore attorney, filed suit today in United States district court to recover $17.50 interest he said was due on a $1,000 bond of the first Liberty loan.

He charged the calling of the loan, maturing in 1947, on last June 15 was illegal because the bonds were not redeemed in gold. He sought to compel the United States to pay him the interest due on the bond he held as of Dec. 15.

The suit charges the two governmental departments were attempting to "nullify and evade the constitutional obligations of the republic."

Relief Policy Held Cause of Idleness

New York, Dec. 30.—[Special.]—Relief as now administered in this country is a serious impediment to reemployment and one of the major causes of continuing unemployment, George B. Chandler, secretary of the Ohio Chamber of Commerce, declared today at a meeting of the American Statistical association.

"To one who has been brought up under the American system of individual initiative and personal responsibility, and has not fallen under the spell of collectivism which is being skilfully propagandized in this country, the system of relief now in operation must, from the very nature of the case, encourage unemployment and operate against the decrease of unemployment," he said.

Supports Statement.

He gave six reasons in support of this statement:

Third, relief destroys the sense of responsibility of local governmental units, which in the past generally were held accountable for the unfortunates within their borders.

Fifth, relief by remote control under the fine phrases of political philanthropy is removing the shame of failure and destroying individual initiative.

Creates New Class.

Sixth, the current national relief policy has created a new social class by setting up a minimum standard of living and a minimum wage scale, the relief policy removing from the supply of labor a substantial number of workers to be employed by private capital.

"It is an ostrich policy," Chandler said, "to assume that because Washington is temporarily borrowing its way and lavishly pouring out largesses the taxpayer must not in the end pay the last penny of it.

"The will power is deadened by wholesale relief. It breeds a philosophy of defeatism. This manifests itself either in a Micawber-like optimism that something will 'turn up,' or in a sulky, sour grievance against society in general."

Noel Sargent, secretary of the National Manufacturing association, asserted that revival of private construction is "the only hope for substantially increased employment." Sargent said that less than 6 per cent of the unemployment problem had been taken care of by "a fourfold increase in national public works expenditures."

Secretary Wallace's Formula.

Secretary of Agriculture Wallace, addressing the farm economics group, offered an "appealing economic formula." He said:

"Our national economic goal must be increased, balanced production of the things which people really need and want [1] at prices low enough so consumers can buy, but high enough so producers can keep on producing, and with income so distributed that no one is shut off from participation in consumption except those who refuse to work; [2] with scrupulous regard for the conservation of our remaining natural resources, and [3] by means characteristic of our traditional democratic processes."

Wallace said a certain amount of government regulation was necessary.

EXPECT 50,000 RETAIL BUYERS AT SHOWS HERE

Approximately 50,000 retail store buyers are expected in Chicago during January and February, according to the Chicago Association of Commerce. They will attend trade shows and expositions. A year ago January and February brought 37,500 buyers into the local market and at the semi-annual gathering of the retail buyers in July and August there were more than 42,000.

Among the important trade events booked here for the next few months are: Shoe fair at the Palmer house, Jan. 6 to 9; furniture and floor covering shows at the American Furniture and Merchandise Marts, Jan. 6 to 18; curtain and drapery exhibit at the Merchandise Mart, Jan. 6 to 18; Merchandise Mart lamp show, china, glassware, and pottery market, all at the Merchandise Mart, Jan. 6 to 18; Interstate Merchants' Council, Palmer house, Feb. 3 to 15.

Surface Line Merger Plan Hearing to Be Held Jan. 16

Hearings in the federal court here on the Chicago Surface lines consolidation plan were continued yesterday until Jan. 16 by Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson. At that time committees representing security holders are scheduled to report the response of their constituents with respect to the proposed merger of all surface lines.

PARK DISTRICT PAVES WAY FOR HUGE REFUNDING

Involves 102 Million of Obligations.

Commissioners of the Chicago Park district yesterday adopted two bond ordinances providing for the issuance of $102,285,750 of bonds to replace defaulted obligations outstanding. The action paved the way for a complete refunding program which will permit reductions in bond and interest tax levies over the next few years when bond maturities are heaviest and eliminate existing defaults in principal and interest.

The most important of the two ordinances authorizes issuance of $99,085,708 bonds. Of these, $10,503,666 to be designated series A, would be used to retire past due principal; $81,153,451 series B to be exchanged for all bonds maturing after June 30, 1936; $3,137,045 series C to retire defaulted bonds held in special funds of the old Lincoln Park district, and $4,291,546 series D to provide funds to pay off past due interest.

Assumes 22 Districts' Debts.

Under the ordinance the consolidated park district would assume the bonded debts of the 22 superseded park districts and issue its own obligations in exchange.

Series A bonds, to bear interest at not more than 4 per cent, either will be sold for cash and proceeds used to retire past due bonds, or exchanged for such obligations, the option resting with the district. Series B bonds will carry coupons similar to those turned in for exchange on a par for par basis and will be callable on the March 1 following the maturities of present issues. These rates would range from 4 to 6 per cent with $69,500,000 carrying 4½ per cent or less. Series C and D issues would carry not more than 4¼ per cent coupons and under present plans their sale for cash is contemplated.

All four series would mature Sept. 1, 1935, with A, C and D becoming callable at par on March 1, 1946. The first coupons on all issues would be due Sept. 1, 1936. For purposes of the refunding plan, bonds maturing between now and next June 30 are treated as defaulted obligations.

May Permit Cut in Levy.

Levies set up to service the new debt range between $8,500,000 and $9,500,000 annually from 1935 to 1953. When and if the refunding is accomplished in the next six months it will permit a reduction of approximately $2,600,000 in the present 1935 bond and interest levy.

The second ordinance provides for issuance of $3,199,042 of 4 per cent funding bonds dated Jan. 1, 1936, due in twenty years and callable in ten years. These bonds would be sold to fund floating debts of the superseded districts. The district recently sold $6,000,000 new bonds to the Public Works administration to support federal aid projects, and another $2,500,000 issue for working cash fund purposes remains to be authorized.

Cash Sales to be Arranged.

Provisions for sale of such new bonds as are to be disposed of for cash will be arranged in the future, Robert J. Dunham, president of the district, said. Commissioners were not ready yet to make announcement regarding refunding plans, either as to how it will be worked out or what parties will act as refunding agents. Issuance of bonds under the refunding ordinance will not be made until after those details are decided, Dunham said.

To provide funds for the final December pay roll and to meet various other obligations, commissioners voted to sell $750,000 of 1935 tax anticipation warants to one of the district's funds. These warants will bring to 71.5 per cent the amount of notes issued against the 1935 levy.

Utility Accounting System Change Delayed by Court

New York, Dec. 30.—(AP)—A special statutory federal court issued today a temporary order restraining the federal communications commission from requiring the American Telephone and Telegraph company to put into effect on Jan. 1 a new accounting system prescribed by the commission. The order will remain in effect until the final decision of the court in the suit for an injunction to block enforcement of the new requirement.

AUTO INDUSTRY RIDS ITSELF OF NEW DEAL RULE

Reaches Best Position Since 1929 Crash.

35 Million Cars by '50

New York, Dec. 30.—[Special.]—In 1950 this country will have about 35,000,000 automobiles, approximately 9,000,000 more than this year, John W. Scoville, chief statistician of the Chrysler corporation, said tonight before the American Econometric Society. Production of motor vehicles in 1950 will reach 5,104,000, he estimated.

The automobile industry this year has rid itself of a threat of brain trust control, and with open competition in talent, initiative, and labor has arrived at 1936 in the best position since the stock market crash of 1929. The Automobile Manufacturers' association yesterday placed 1935 production at 3,400,000 passenger cars and 750,000 trucks, a gain of 45 per cent over 1934.

The New Deal burden of increased taxes was also reflected in this annual report of the association. The motor vehicle users' taxes in 1935 have aggregated 1 billion 288 million dollars, or 13 per cent of all taxes from all sources, federal, state, and local. For 1934 the figure was 1 billion 214 million dollars; for 1933, 1,137,872,000, and for 1932, 1 billion 85 million dollars. In three years the total increased 200 millions.

Registrations Increase.

The registration of motor vehicles in the United States showed a gain over 1934, but there was an even larger rise in automobile ownership in the world outside the United States.

A total of 22,450,000 passenger cars and 3,550,000 trucks was registered in the United States this year against 1934 totals of 21,430,000 and 3,410,000. This year the United States had 71 per cent of the world's automobiles. Last year this country had 72 per cent and in 1933 it had 74 per cent.

For gasoline and the tax on the fuel motorists of America this year spent 3 billion 260 million dollars as compared with 2 billion 730 million dollars in 1934. The total gasoline tax increased from 750 million dollars to 804½ million dollars.

Sales Total 3 Billions.

While successfully resisting New Deal efforts toward controled production and regimentation, the industry this year sold 2 billion 999¼ million dollars' worth of motor vehicles, accessories, service equipment, and parts and tires for replacement. This was a substantial gain over the $2,216,477,000 of 1934. Improved products, better values, and aggressive merchandising—fruits of rugged individualism—account for this success in spite of and not because of political tinkering.

The average factory price of passenger cars sold this year was $705, an increase of $40 over the average in 1934. This, according to leaders in the industry, represented increased purchasing power in America, following the world's economic improvement, even more than it represented a cheapening of the American dollar. People are buying better automobiles.

Statistics on Trucks.

The increase in truck ownership was not on the farms. While total truck registrations were boosted 140,000 in the last year, the estimate of farm ownership, dropping from 26 to 25 per cent of the total, remained at 900,385. Trucks paid 314 million dollars in taxes this year. They numbered 13⅛ per cent of all vehicles and paid 24 per cent of all vehicle taxes. Last year the truck tax bill was 312 million dollars.

Bus operation also showed a growth. There were 116,500 registered in 1935, while 112,200 were registered in 1934.

RAIL AND TRUCK MEN MEET TO PLAN HARMONY

Washington, D. C., Dec. 30.—(AP)—Rail and truck interests sat down today in a "harmony conference" at which they heard the federal transportation coördinator tell them conciliation of their differences would save them much costly litigation before public regulatory bodies. Representatives of a shippers' organization, the National Industrial Traffic league, also attended.

Deciding to call themselves "the national committee for the study of transportation coördination," the group named temporary officers, agreed to meet again Jan. 6, and created a permanent committee to keep alive such harmony as the initial parleys can create.

Strong Cash Situation Is Responsible.

Wheat prices pushed higher throughout the world yesterday. While trade here was somewhat restricted because of the coming New Year holiday, volume expanded slightly. Strength in cash wheat brought in fairly aggressive buying of May futures, some of which was outright buying of mills. It was said sales of flour have been liberal.

At no time were wheat prices in Chicago as low as Saturday. The December delivery closed 1⅜ cents higher at $1.00⅝, the best figure since the war scare market early in October. July gained fractionally, with selling against offers a factor in checking the upturn. Liverpool led the upturn and closed more than 2⅝ cents per bushel higher.

Heavy Exports Aid Prices.

Record small world shipments, a decrease of over 3,000,000 bushels in supplies of wheat on ocean passage to importing countries, and reports that 2,250,000 bushels of Australian and Canadian wheat had been sold for export during the day helped to buoy prices.

Selling by the Canadian wheat board prevented any advance of consequence in the Winnipeg market. There has been a gradual widening of the spread between Canadian and Liverpool prices recently, with the May future in England closing at a premium of 5⅜ cents over Winnipeg, the greatest difference in several years.

Owing to the practical crop failure in Argentina, limited exports from Russia, and only a moderate sized crop in Australia, it is expected Canada will be called upon to furnish a much larger percentage of world's shipments than was looked for early in the season.

Compare Closing Prices.

Closing prices of principal May futures here, with comparisons, follow:

	Yesterday.	Saturday.	Week Ago.
Wheat	$1.00⅝	$ .99⅜	$ .99⅜
Oats	.38¼	.38	.38¼
Rye	.54⅞	.54⅝	.52½

Aggressive buying of May rye, thought to represent removal of hedges, lifted the price of that grain 1 cent over Saturday's finish. Trade in corn and oats was light, with corn closing fractionally higher in sympathy with wheat and on the limited movement of cash grain. Oats finished somewhat easier.

DE LUXE FLORIDA VACATION TRAINS GO INTO SERVICE

De luxe winter vacation trains connecting Chicago and Florida will go into service tomorrow and Thursday. The New York Central's Florida Sunbeam will leave at 11:45 p. m. tomorrow, via the Big Four, from the Twelfth Street station. The Florida Arrow will make its first trip of the season Thursday, leaving the Union station at 8:45 p. m., and the Dixieland of the Dixie route will depart from the city over the Chicago and Eastern Illinois tracks at 8:30 a. m. from the Dearborn Street station.

The Florida Arrow will leave with one of the finest Pullman cars ever built—the George M. Pullman—which was visited by millions during A Century of Progress. This car, built of aluminum, has been regularly assigned to the Florida Arrow.

Advance Rumely Votes Liquidating Dividend

Directors of the Advance-Rumely corporation, which is being liquidated, yesterday authorized a liquidating payment of $1 per share in cash and ½ share of Allis Chalmers stock for each share of Advance-Rumely. Payment will be made after Jan. 14. There are 203,694 shares of Advance-Rumely stock outstanding. Allis Chalmers stock closed yesterday at 37⅝.

FINDS NEW DEAL POLICIES CLOUD UTILITY OUTLOOK

O'Brien Hits Legislation, U. S. Competition.

The public utility executive finds himself in a quandary when attempting to estimate what the future holds, John J. O'Brien, president of Standard Gas and Electric company, said in a statement issued yesterday. He is encouraged by improving business, but his enthusiasm is immediately dampened by the specter of government regulation and competition which threatens ruin.

"Under normal conditions," said O'Brien, "the utility industry would be furnishing aggressive leadership in the present recovery movement. The expanding demand for machinery used by utilities, improvements in technical processes, new operations made possible by chemical and metallurgical sciences, offer attractive fields for the pioneering spirit of the electric utilities. Here is a real opportunity for increased employment of labor and for opening the capital goods markets.

Serious Barriers Obstruct Path.

"Serious barriers, however, obstruct the pathways of utilities. These companies are being subjected to competition from publicly owned plants that are supported by taxes on all property, including greatly increased taxes on utilities themselves. This competition is promoted by the federal government, both by its own power projects and through federal grants of public funds to municipalities for the building of competing facilities.

"In addition, adverse legislation has been passed by congress, which, if upheld, will occasion years of uncertainty in this industry with the likelihood of serious losses to investors and the impairment of utility service."

Lauds Holding Company System.

O'Brien asserted that the holding company has made possible utility service in thousands of small communities unable to finance plants for their individual needs and that it has brought about present efficiency and economy. Any public policy interfering with development of this system of service restricts economic and social progress, he added.

"The regrettable pending litigation of the utility act of 1935 will be costly to utilities and government alike," O'Briend added, "but there was no other course that could be taken."

Companies of the Standard Gas system plan some expansion in 1936, mainly in building rural electric lines, O'Brien continued, but their construction program would be much bigger with "modification of the existing destructive legislation and a cessation of government competition."

Business is improving for Standard Gas companies as with other utilities, he said, but net earnings are only slightly better because of taxes and higher costs.
